TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton's fire department will remain one regular man short, following council's refusal Monday night to hire an additional firefighter.

Fire Chief Cecil Ellis requested another full - time man following retirement of Gerry Lewis earlier this fall.

Town treasurer Brian Fagan prepared a report recommending the town acquire another firefighter. He based his recommendation on a breakdown of manpower requirements to "operate the fire department efficiently."

Committee of the whole did not agree, and council went along with the rejection.

This April, Councillor Stan Ketcheson suggested reverting back to a volunteer brigade because of the cost of keeping 12 full-time men on the job, in addition to the 18 volunteer firefighters.

A statement from Trenton's 1970 Municipal Fire Protection Survey, compiled by the Ontario Fire Marshal's office, suggests "sufficient fire fighters be employed . . . so as to provide proper manning of each vehicle."

The report can be interpreted to mean seven men a shift, are necessary for a total of 28 men on the force. Without the additional man, Trenton's force now stands at one chief, one deputy chief, one inspector, eight regular firefighters and 16 volunteers, for a total of 29 men. The report also stated Trenton's force was occasionally shorthanded during fires, because volunteers were not always available to bring the responding force up to full complement.

Councillor Peter Aziz said he wanted to go on record as approving hiring of the additional man. "I feel if he (Chief Ellis) requires one, he should have one," he said.

Book on Labor To Schools

A book outlining labor movement history is being distributed to Quinte-area high schools by the Quinte District Labor Council.

Called The History of the Trade Union Congress, 1868-1968, the book will be placed in six schools this week with 12 more copies to be dispersed in the near future.

"We want to spread the labor gospel," said new CDLC president Doug Sword of the British-published work. "There is a definite lack of labor education in the schools.

The book will be available to students in school reading rooms.

Royal Anniversary

The Queen and Prince Philip have celebrated their silver wedding anniversary and if the news makes us feel a little older the Royal couple themselves carry the years very well.

The Queen's grace and dignity have illuminated the British and Commonwealth scene for the 20 years of her reign, taking her into many distant places, sometimes in circumstances fraught with danger. Yet never was she deterred from doing her duty.

Prince Philip has maintained the jaunty air that is so refreshing and characteristic of him. He has done much to bring the Royal scene down to a more plebeian level without in any way detracting from its essential grandeur and traditions. He has provided us also with the lively example of his own mind as well as many a challenge from the occasions he has spoken in public.

They are a couple who richly deserve the admiration and loyalty of their subjects, if we may use that word in a world in which few consider themselves subjective to anyone or anything. Certainly their example is a fine one, as is their family life. If some consider it easy to lead the good life when so richly endowed materially so be it, but the task the Queen assumed on her father's death was not an easy one. Nor have the years proved it any the less burdensome. Her Majesty has proved a worthy monarch and her husband a fine consort and father.

Signs of Winter

The first wisps of snow and with it the low sighing of the wind and under the wheels of cars the first hint of instability that spells caution — these were the harbingers of winter the other day. They have come later this year, after a strangely mild period in a month when long birds wing across desolate skies and the waters of the bay toss restlessly and the bare branches of trees cast a grey shroud over the far shoreline.

What will the rest of the year bring? Well, the Farmer's Almanac is slightly off with its prediction — we should be going through a "fair spell" with the 16th to the 19th being unsettled and with "light snow in Ontario." We do have the evidence of last year of course, when there was some snow about this time though by Dec. 25 it was all gone, to return again with renewed vigor in the new year.

On this relentless Tuesday we were driving along the Old Picton Road when we passed a county road works truck and knew immediately what their business was; for some days the body of a dog had been lying by the roadside. It was a big brown animal and it deserved a better fate. Certainly no one had bothered to have it removed. So on Sunday night we called the OPP here and the corporal said he would inform the county authorities.

As we turned the corner and entered the straight along the swamp the body which that morning had still been lying there, and was then even more forlorn looking in the light now, had been taken away. It seemed an appropriate day for such an unhappy chore, but it is one task someone must do and which someone clearly had not troubled himself with when the animal was presumably struck down.

Intolerance

One of the saddest sights in any so-called civilized country is the intolerance and hostility with which strikers greet those who stay on the job.

The latest example is the strike of hydro employees in Quebec. Employees trying to enter the hydro Montreal office at the rear of the building last week were pelted with eggs.

There is evidence that the striking men are indeed underpaid, but this does not justify conduct such as we have described but which, unhappily, is not uncommon in circumstances such as this.

A country that is so quick to brand any hint of racism in the conduct of governments abroad, should look to the mote that is in its own eye. We have a similar degree of intolerance right here in our midst and it involves people of the same race, color and as often as not religion. The issues may be different, but the attitudes are the same.

Captain Haas

The name of that heroic jet pilot, which was not initially available during the incredible action of events last weekend, is Billy Bob Haas. His co-pilot Billy Johnson, who was shot in the shoulder by one of the gunmen, is also — now hear this — mayor of College City, Arkansas.

Winners — And Losers

Funereal Atmosphere As MPs Pack Their Bags

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Parliament Hill is in mourning, and wakes are being held in the West and Centre Blocks.

Forty-six former members of the Commons, losers in the election, are returning to the Capital to pick up the pieces of their wrecked parliamentary careers. And to pack.

A sad business for them. Nobody is in a hurry to say goodbye to a unique kind of life they all, at times, cursed when they were living it.

And now when they are so reluctantly giving it up, it seems that it was all really enjoyable.

The hard, often unrewarding work — for those dedicated enough to sweat at it — now, in fond memory, was not so hard after all, and it was worthwhile.

The disappointments fade and the achievements grow.

The fellowship and the camaraderie, the feeling of belonging to the country's most exclusive "club" was only yesterday and it is not easy to face tomorrow without it.

So the defeated struggle in and go about their different ways of cleaning out their desks, emptying their files and stripping their rooms.

They all have one thing in common — pipe lines, shaped not unlike a casket, into which to pack their parliamentary memories and mementoes, the photos down off the walls and the speeches and books of news clippings from the files.

The boxes, some of them lined up in the corridors of the West and Centre Blocks, add an altogether unnecessarily superfluous funereal air to the whole unhappy scene.

Some of the losers do their packing behind locked office doors, the lights out, as if they did not wish old friends to see them in their disappointment, and to many, embarrassment.

Then there are the secretaries — some of the more active parliamentarians had two — helping with the sorting and the packing, and wondering whether they will be fortunate enough to make the new parliamentary payroll, and if so, who their new MP will be.

For since the Pearson government changed the rules — closing down the secretarial "pool" from which any MP could draw a "Girl Friday" — the members have been recruiting their own young lady assistants, some of them bringing them to Ottawa from back in the old home town.

The advantage there is that the girl from home knows many of the folks back there, and has at least a basic working knowledge of the constituency.

That makes her invaluable in handling problems of the riding and its voters, and some girls become so skilful at this particular specialty in the art of politics they handle most, if not all the routine constituency business for their MP.

The packing all done, the last mission for House gossip made to the parliamentary cafeterias to chat over "old times" with other members, winners and losers alike, and then finally the long goodbyes.

It is all pretty difficult, and done with the heavy heart.

For after only a year here — and even the freshmen losers have served four — you come to feel you belong.

How much greater the wrench if the man had been around for a couple of Parliaments or more, and long has considered himself something of a fixture.

Some former parliamentarians who, for various personal reasons withdrawing from politics, did not run in this election at least had the solace and satisfaction of retiring of their own accord.

But the packing and saying of the farewells, as Lee Grills, Conservative veteran of six Parliaments discovered when the time came, was not easy.

At least it was done in style and good grace, spared the secretarial tears and the long, long faces.

The defeated hate to go and find it difficult to rationalize that when there are winners, there must be losers.

There is also the dying of an old and the birth of a new Parliament.

Student Exchange With Lahr Is Welcomed By Parents

The following letter on the twinning of Belleville with the city of Lahr in Germany has been addressed to Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott.

We read with considerable interest the article in The Intelligencer concerning a proposed exchange of students between Belleville and Lahr—a proposal which I heartily endorse and would at this time like to volunteer my daughter's name as a possible candidate from Belleville.

I would like to mention here that my daughter, Rosemarie, aged 15, is presently a second-year student at Queen Elizabeth School in grade 10. She is studying grade 13 German in the second term (even though she successfully completed the grade 13 examinations last year) and is very fluent in all aspects of German. My wife is a native born German and we are all three conversant in the language.

We are a service family and recently returned from a tour of duty in Germany. For the most part of five years, we resided in the Lahr district and are therefore familiar with the region.

We would be most interested in knowing your views in this regard — aside from what appeared in the press and whether an effort shall be made to select possibly two, three or more students from Belleville to go to Lahr.

I would like to add here that we would be most happy to receive a student in our home from Lahr and I'm sure that there must be other families in Belleville and district who would actively participate in such a venture.

PS — I hope that relations continue between Lahr and Belleville and should I possibly be of assistance in this respect, I most certainly will welcome the opportunity.

A Look at the School Grants Set-Up

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

One of the most curious missions we have had here this year visited last week.

This was a group representing the Ontario Public School Trustees' Association.

They saw Education Minister Tom Wells to protest public schools operating increasingly "short-changed" in their grants in favor of Roman Catholic separate schools.

The public schools were not getting a fair and adequate share of grants, it was claimed.

The only explanation one can find for this visit is that this group somehow or other must believe Mr. Wells suffers from myopia.

Or a sudden softening of the brain.

For to anyone with full wits their argument had to be so puerile as to be almost insulting.

The gist of this argument was that in 1970 the province paid 76 per cent of the operating costs of the separate school boards while it paid only 41.4 per cent of the cost of operating public elementary schools.

And it wanted the same deal as the separate schools.

This disparity as grants is there all right. And on the surface it would appear as though the trustees had a case.

They get only that portion of residential and commercial tax which is declared for them.

The commercial is particularly important, as few corporations and businesses are taxed for separate school support.

So the separate boards get only a fraction of the revenue that go to the public boards, and revenue that is not at all in relationship to the size of the respective populations.

So to achieve some fairness the province gives the separate boards larger grants.

Perhaps the most significant figure in the public trustees brief, and one which they may be a bit foolish to hardly shout so much, is the comparative cost of educating a pupil in the separate and public systems.

In 1970 this cost for the public system was $718 per elementary school pupil. For the separate school the equivalent figure was $683.

Perhaps we should change to the one system. To separate.

John Bright, English parliamentarian, was born 161 years ago today—in 1811—son of a Quaker mill owner. He became a top Liberal orator and free-trade advocate and he resigned office when the British bombarded Egypt. His main interests were economic and political reform, but one of his dreams was a great North American federation, from Hudson Bay to the Gulf of Mexico, free of military interests and "with freedom everywhere, equality everywhere. . . Peace everywhere."

1953—Record parachute jump from a balloon 14 miles high was made by Capt. Joseph Kittinger of the U.S. Air Force over New Mexico.

1944—The fall offensive of the Allied armies in Europe began.

Quinte Dentists' Statement

The following statement on the dental health has been issued by the Bay of Quinte Dental Society.

Dehate over denture services was given the public a distorted picture of dental health care in Ontario, the Bay of Quinte Dental Society said today in a statement.

The 45-member Society issued the statement in a call to the Ontario Legislature to provide for supervision by dentists of to denture specialists licensed under the new Dental Technologists Act.

The Legislature will take up the new act in its fall session, expected in November. The act would set standards for a new type of auxiliary dental worker, the dental technologist. It was given first reading in June and at that time Robert Welch, provincial secretary for social development, said the technologists would be allowed to serve the public independently of dentists.

A spokesman for the local Dental Society said dentists were becoming concerned that the debate over dentures was over-shadowing public interest in preventive dentistry.

"The public is getting a distorted picture because people who deal exclusively in dentures seem to be conditioning the public to accept a need for dentures as inevitable for the average person," the spokesman said.

"Such a distorted view, if it gains any wider acceptance, will result in the unwanted sacrifice of natural dentition by unknown numbers of citizens in the future," the Dental Society representative added.

The spokesman said that while prosthodontic (denture) service was an indispensable part of dentistry at the present time and for the forseeable future, retention of natural teeth was always preferable.

"In order that a balance be maintained between care and treatment to retain teeth, and expert diagnosis and service when full or partial dentures are required, all denture service should be provided as an integral part of dentistry," the spokesman said.

It is for this reason that the dental profession is opposed to dental technologists being licensed to operate independently of dentists, the Society said in its statement.

The local spokesman said certain throughout the province were scrambling "substantial evidence" of unsatisfactory work done by denturists."

Voters' Wisdom

Peterborough Examiner

The American voter must be given credit for seeing through the propaganda barrage that tried to convince him that what was white was black and what was black was white.

The truth is that the tens of millions of ordinary Americans who have made that country great have never wanted to burn their flag.

We would be most interested in knowing your views in this regard — aside from what appeared in the press and whether an effort shall be made to select possibly two, three or more students from Belleville to go to Lahr.

I would like to add here that we would be most happy to receive a student in our home from Lahr and I'm sure that there must be other families in Belleville and district who would actively participate in such a venture.

Clean-Up By 'Pace' Members

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

On November 7 The Intelligencer printed an article and also an Item Smith's advertisements of her previous term served on the city council. Among the few that were mentioned the paper failed to cover for recycling and the river cleanup were included, and of course they were both false statements.

I do not know whether Mrs. Smith was misquoted or not, but the paper pickup was done by the Boy Scouts of Gary Rock, ably assisted by Miss Pam Sword, other PACE members, CJBQ and the children.

Mrs. Smith may or may not have had a small part in the petition but it certainly would not be significant in comparison to the effort, time or expense put forth by Mr. Rock or Miss Sword.

The river cleanup was also initiated by PACE and carried out by 250 wonderful school children endeavoring to set an example for their elders. These kids deserve a pat on the back by the mayor after explaining what he has done personally to clean up our river and bay.

CLARENCE E. YOUNG

Matches And Kids Bad 'Match'

Hamilton Spectator

Walking out of his east end home at noon Tuesday, a man was startled to see crouched behind a car in a parking lot across the street, the little boy of his matches before a fire could start. He was the child in an age — eight — and where he got the matches — at a neighborhood store boxes for a nickel. Going straight to the youngster, the man asked the salesclerk if it was the store's policy to sell matches to small children. "He said they were for his mother," replied the clerk. Visualizing what might have happened had he discovered the boy and his matches a few seconds later, the man confesses he's worried for children. So often, their lives are at the mercy of adults who can't be bothered to treat them as children.

Old Schoolhouse Has Gone to Rats

GUNTON, Man. (CP) — An old brick schoolhouse, with its student population long gone, soon will be over-run by rats, mice and guinea pigs. Henry Cerny is looking forward to it.

Mr. Cerny, an employee in the University of Manitoba's department of immunology where it is charged with handling of lab animals used in scientific research, was a veterinarian when he left his native Czechoslovakia 3½ years ago.

A veterinarian in Ostrava, a town on the Polish-Czechoslovakian border, is equivalent to a master of science in Canada, he said. "So I had to start something else."

With financial aid from the Manitoba Development Corp., Mr. Cerny has spent thousands of hours as well as dollars converting the old schoolhouse to the North American Laboratory Supply Co., scheduled to open in January.

When he gets the operation in full swing, he expects to produce 10,000 mice, 4,000 rats and 14,000 guinea pigs for research each year.

"I'm not trying to push anyone out of business. It is a new field and I'm just working very hard."

Mr. Cerny has spent considerable time investigating animal laboratories in North America and is convinced his operation has "the most modern facilities available today."

The crumbling plaster of the former school walls has been recovered with shiny white plastic. Stairwaes have been removed, windows replaced and a filter and sterilizing machine, to blow clean air throughout the building, add to the basement.

Each room is controlled for temperature and pressure, monitored from a central console. Visitors to the building are required to shower upon entering and don sterilized clothing.

The building is designed to accommodate the various needs for breeding and keeping the animals.

"The different animals will always be kept separate," said Mr. Cerny. "There are some diseases that affect mice but not rats."

In addition, Mr. Cerny has developed his own food formula and experimented with animal inbreeding.

Ann Landers
Boss's Daughter Annoyed

Dear Ann Landers: May I speak in behalf of a persecuted minority that has been discriminated against for years, but no one takes up our cause? I am talking about "the boss's daughter."

We are supposed to know everything about the business including what's going to happen in advance, because we are the boss's daughter.

We are expected to come in on Saturday and stay late if there's anything that needs to be done. No overtime, of course—because we are the boss's daughter.

We may not leave for a dental or doctor appointment or for any of the legitimate reasons the other employees take off for —because we are the boss's daughter.

We are not included in office talk or any of the fun things that happen—because we are the boss's daughter.

If we make a mistake we get twice as much heat from our superiors and then when we get home at night we get more of the same—because we are the boss's daughter.

Sign me, fed up—Because I am the boss's daughter.

Dear Fed: An employee who has as many complaints as you can't be effective.

Furthermore, no girl would stay with a job she hates so thoroughly unless she was scared sure she couldn't do better anywhere else—not even the boss's daughter

Violence Breeds Violence

By DORIS CLARK

Non-violence in pursuit of one's goals — This is surely an attitude that has to be taught. We are prone to barge through when we are so positive what we aim for is right!

Yet our young people — even the very young — must come to see that violence begets violence: that its fruits are hatred, fear and revenge. They need to discover that the use of violence is degrading to those who practise it; and that it takes more maturity and courage to seek redress of grievances by peaceable persistence than by throwing rocks or bricks or pulling a trigger.

Look at Mahatma Ghandi's example. Read Jean Vanier's book "Eruption to Hope." And then just try to give me an argument against turning the other cheek.

Dear Doris: I have just finished reading the letter from "Jay": some years ago it could have been written by me. I hope that for her it's meeting does not mean a shattered dream, because the past is like quicksilver.

My life is full and happy now with a loving husband and three bright children. But I still remember a part of my past that included a dashing young soldier. Perhaps Jay would enjoy the enclosed poems: it contains a theme that will strike a chord in many hearts.

Dear Happy: The letter from Jay spoke of a young officer with whom she had once been in love, and found she was unable to forget.

I feel your poem "How Will It Be?" will indeed strike a responsive chord in her. It isn't easy to guess whether our memory of a past romance would be able to come up to a real life situation if we were to meet that youthful lover again. One might well ask: "Shall I dissolve in tears or will you see the same endearing friend I see in you?"

Jay did not give us a full name or address, so I cannot pass on your poem unless she writes in again. Meanwhile, if any other readers might like it, we could make copies. (Enclose 20 cents and an eight-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope, to Doris in care of this newspaper.)

Dear Doris: Would you try and get me a poem called, "John Brown"? It was in a school reader before and after the turn of the century.

I remember one verse which went like this: "I have a wife and a friend, And a sister I can spend: And a troop of little children: At my knee, John Brown. — R. F.

Dear R. F.: Whoever wrote it was rich in human treasurings, wasn't he? Perhaps these few lines will strike a responsive chord. Anybody?

for me. I won't start now.

I don't mind Tom going hunting and fishing and golfing, but I don't like this one-night-a-week-out. He usually is home by midnight. Shall I agree?—Chippewa Falls

Dear Chip: My advice is for you to get a card game, or a bowling group, and have your night out, too. Insist that your husband keep his curfew. Make this the bargaining point. The alternative is a weekly battle and you'll lose every time.

Dear Ann Landers: Two months ago I moved out of the house into my own apartment and started to smoke grass. I got into a conversation with my girl friend's mother and was informed that people who smoke grass run the risk of having children who are slow learners, or worse.

This scared me so I quit. It's been 12 days since I have had a joint. I've been talking to many of my friends who are still pufers, trying to get some facts. No one has heard about this slow-learner stuff. When I went back and asked my future mother-in-law to show me something by an authority she said, "I don't think I should have to."

Is smoking grass any more harmful than smoking ordinary cigarets? Will it have harmful effects on my unborn children? —Concerned About The Future

Dear Concerned: One of the principal reasons I advise against all mind altering agents is that we do not yet know the effects it may produce over a period of several years. So far there are no definitive findings on the question you have asked —either pro or con. We do know, however, that cigaret smoking women have more frequent miscarriages than women who do not smoke.

You're probably losing 20% a year in interest on your savings account.

Most savings accounts pay you only 4% interest on your minimum monthly balance. Guaranty Trust pays 5%.

That means for every $1,000 in your savings account you're losing over $10 a year in interest.

There's just one other difference between a Guaranty Trust savings account and other savings accounts. Until November 30, Guaranty Trust will pay you a full month's interest no matter what day of the month you open up your savings account as long as you leave the money with us for 90 days.

Even if you open your account on the last day of the month, you still get paid 5% interest for the whole month.

That way you don't lose one cent of interest by moving your savings account to Guaranty Trust.

IN DEFENSE OF DENTURISTS!

"Denturists Lose Fight to Sell Cheaper Dentures!" Denturists Clinics To Be Closed Because They Are Breaking The Law!" "Dental Technologist Advisory Committee Warns of Dangers of Unqualified Technicians Fitting Teeth Without Supervision!"

A CHALLENGE

The foregoing statements appeared in newspapers and on newscasts on radio and television stations throughout the province on Wednesday, November 8th. They were based on statements made by the Minister of Health in an interview with a reporter in Toronto the previous day. Emanating as they have from the office of this Minister, they constitute a challenge as to this Society's claims respecting the qualifications and ethics of all members of the Denturist Society of Ontario — a challenge which we cannot and will not ignore!

We wish to make it very clear at the outset, however, that in our response to this challenge, we will refrain from attacking any individual. Our primary concern is to speak to the issues and to avoid being drawn into pointless confrontations.

THE DENTURIST SOCIETY

The Denturist Society is not comprised of "16 or 17 technicians with some training and another 50 or so with no qualifications at all". More than 200 dental technicians are currently registered as members of this Society, all of whom have been in practice for many years — some for several decades. A dental technician, applying for membership in this Society has to show proof of being in practice for a minimum of 6 years and to provide documentation of his being fully trained in all aspects of dental technology. Additionally, each member, regardless of certificates or diplomas attesting to previous training or qualifications, is required to attend all educational seminars and courses sponsored by this Society and must complete written, oral and practical examinations set by the Denturist Society's Examining Board. Each member must be fully covered by Professional Liability Malpractice Insurance before being permitted to deal directly with the public and must also submit to regular and systematic inspections of his place of business by representatives of this Society in order to ensure that acceptable standards are being observed and maintained.

IN THE MATTER OF QUALIFICATIONS

Aside from the very substantial support of the public for continuation of our services, what better proof of qualifications could there be than an admission by the dental profession contained in a new release circulated to the mass media on October 30, 1972. The Ontario Dental Association stated in their release that "Nearly half of all the dental laboratories in Ontario have abandoned services to the profession" and further predicted that "this shortage of technicians will become greater if the proposed Dental Technologist Act is passed".

The dental profession press release revealed two things: firstly, that there is no mystery concerning the source of our membership. The men and women who owned and operated the dental laboratories that have "abandoned services to the dental profession", constitute the rank and file of this Society and therefore may not be said to have "no qualifications at all". Secondly, it indicates the overriding concern of the Ontario Dental Association, as it is now being publicly admitted that, denied the services of these men and women who are now members of the Denturist Society, they (the profession) are incapable of doing the work themselves.

This is, perhaps as it should be: The primary concern of practicing dentists should not be centred on the replacement of natural teeth with dentures or other prosthetic devices, but should be wholly taken up with prevention, detection and treatment of disease which, in the long run would eliminate the need for dentures.

IN THE MATTER OF COOPERATION

We have stated on numerous occasions, both publicly and privately, that we are prepared to cooperate fully with the Minister of Health and the government in the matter of Bill 203. This is still our position. In order for our cooperation to be meaningful, however, we believe that it entails something more than our merely acquiescing to decisions which have been made without any consultation with this Society. We believe it to be untenable for us to cooperate in situations and under circumstances which we hold to be hostile to our concerns and recommendations. Rightly or wrongly, this was our assessment respecting the Dental Technologist Advisory Committee before whom we refused to appear without representation on that Committee from the Denturist Society.

AN IMPORTANT CONSIDERATION

We are convinced that every legislator is cognizant of the fact that any legislation granting recognition to a new profession has never come into being without, at the same time, recognizing those who have already been practicing in that particular field, be it law, medicine, or a host of others. Should it be any different for denturists? Is it not unreasonable to expect that there should be some means of assessing and qualifying our members, many of whom have been working in this field for many years?

RECOMMENDATIONS

Notwithstanding the public's overwhelming acceptance of the type and quality of services provided by denturists in the more than 90 denture clinics operated by members of the Society throughout the province, we are NOT asking for blanket recognition under a so-called grandfather clause.

This Society, through a Select Committee, has been negotiating for more than a year with a Community College, in efforts to mount both a short-term and long-term course of studies for denturists. It is our belief that a short-term course designed to upgrade, where necessary, the skills, knowledge, and ability of denturists currently in practice, would lay to rest any arguments against recognition as it would assure that all who successfully complete the course and pass examinations based on the proposed course content will be able to meet acceptable standards of education and training.

IN THE MATTER OF PUBLIC SUPPORT

Throughout the last two years, the Denturist Society through its members has provided fully acceptable denture services to many people in Ontario. We are firmly committed to the belief that it is in the best interest of the public for these services to be continued. If it is your wish for the current situation to be resolved in favor of the denturists, we would urge you to continue your fine support for our efforts. Please continue to write or phone your Member of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario expressing your support for our efforts to secure legislative recognition.

If you require the name and address of your Member of the Provincial Parliament please feel free to phone or write:

Modern Mass Saturday

The Toronto Mass, a blending of modern musical idioms and classical forms based on the Catholic Mass, will be performed Saturday night at St. Michael's church.

The Mass is the creation of young Toronto composer Tim Elsa, organist at various churches and cathedrals in the Toronto area, who also spent six years with various rock groups.

It was from this musical background that the blending of forms and styles occurred resulting in the Toronto Mass, first premiered last May.

Since then it has been presented in southern Ontario centres like Hamilton and Kingston.

Peter Lavender, manager for the group performing the Mass, says he got the idea for the Belleville presentation while visiting relatives in the city.

He describes the response of both clergy and public to the presentation as "fantastic".

The work is described as a "celebration" for electric, brass and percussion instrumentalists. The performing singers and musicians are non-professional.

The Mass has been put on record by a company set up by Mr. Elsa — Mass Records. About 2,000 records have sold at concerts and mass celebrations while there also is distribution to university and religious outlets.

Cattle Halt Railiner

A Belleville man, who for the sake of safety, took the morning train to Toronto yesterday rather than face slippery highway conditions, didn't altogether achieve his purpose.

He escaped possible treacherous road conditions as a result of the early season snowfall, but the morning railiner on which he was traveling was delayed briefly after it ran into a herd of cattle.

Railway officials here said the accident occurred in the Bowmanville area when a number of young cattle wandered onto the track. There was no report of how many cattle were killed or injured.

The train continued to Toronto for inspection.

Book Week Promotes Reading

Belleville's segment of Young Canada's Book Week began with a poetic Monday and closes with a puppet, pantomime Saturday, said a spokesman for Corby Public Library today.

Young Canada's Book Week, a program continuing simultaneously across the country, is designed to increase parental awareness of the need for young people to read.

The local program began earlier this week with a poetry contest, asking participants to say why they come to the library in no more than 12 lines.

"Last year we had a shadow box competition but thought this year's event utilizing words would be more appropriate," said Jean Williams, children's librarian.

Winners of three age group categories will be announced at the close of the week, with their submissions printed on book marks.

An audience - participation, preschoolers program was staged at 10:30 Thursday morning in the library's east branch on Victoria Avenue near Meira Secondary School.

A final puppet show will be held in the library's main branch on Pinnacle Street Saturday, at 10:30 a.m.

Children are invited to bring their puppets and join the cast during puppet - presentations of "Three Billy Goats Gruff and Old MacDonald Had A Farm.

Prizes and presentations will be made Saturday morning.

Are Books Fun?

Jean Williams, librarian at Corby Library, fears that because not enough emphasis is placed on recreational reading, school children might stop reading altogether when they stop having research assignments. Doing project work here is Bruce Pearce (left) and Daren Dougall. Young Canada's Book Week is designed to offset some of this trend.

Lack of Canadian Children's Books Irks Librarian

Books are beautiful, especially children's books by Canadian authors. There aren't enough of them. They occupy less than one per cent of the shelf space in Corby Children's Library.

Jean Williams, children's librarian, made these comments today while discussing Young Canada's Book Week, with the theme, Books Are Beautiful.

One of the intentions of book week is to bring domestic works to the forefront, said Miss Williams.

More than 12,000 titles are included in the library's collection of some 17,000 editions. Canadian authors account for only 115 titles in the collection, which serves the 6,000 youngsters using the library.

It is not because we don't buy Canadian books, rather there are few Canadian children's books being published, said Miss Williams.

"Corby Library is a patron of the Canadian author, with our domestic collection representing a high percentage of the available material," she said.

One of the reasons for the small number of children's books available is the high cost of printing.

"Illustrations, especially in color, are costly while the retail price of the book must be kept competitive," said Miss Williams.

Still, there must be a market, "... it can't be the only librarian in Canada who is infuriated with the drought of Canadian literature," she said.

One per cent may look pretty good in a few years to even Miss Williams.

According to her figures, the number of domestic children's publications is declining each year, beginning about five years ago.

Call it nationalism or pride in Canada's authors, Miss Williams wants Canadian books.

"We don't buy Canadian books purely because they are Canadian," she said. "Our readers should have access to domestic books concerning domestic topics."

Two Write-offs from Bus-Car-Crash

While a Quebec charter bus, loaded with more than 40 passengers bound for Toronto, was attempting to turn into the Sun Valley Hotel last night, two cars piled up behind it, sending three people to hospital with minor injuries. Walter Davis of 29 Charlotte Street, driver of the car (here), passenger Carol Goosen of the same address, and William Paul Derusha, of 119 Centre Street, driver of the second car (not shown) were all treated and released from Belleville General Hospital after the 7:30 p.m. collision. The pictured car was appraised by city police as a total write off with $700 damage to the second car. No bus passengers were injured. City police investigation continues today.

Municipal PUC Officials Critical of Hydro Proposal

The transformation of Ontario Hydro into a government - controlled corporation as recommended by - Task Force Hydro, sparked cries of foul play from the Ontario Municipal Electric Association today.

The association (OMEA), in an eight - page brief to Ontario Premier Bill Davis, reiterates earlier criticisms, regarding the takeover, saying "... removal of the electors' prerogative to elect their representatives (municipal utilities commissioners) is a retrograde step."

Task Force Hydro, formed from leading provincial businessmen, suggests the central governing body over the "revised service" would not be elected but appointed.

This move would place the OMEA in jeopardy, taking much of its power concerning local needs and the planning of distribution patterns. The appointment system would mean complete eradication of local commissioners elected by the municipality.

The OMEA serves as a liaison between the municipality and Ontario Hydro, and draws its membership and directors from elected municipal commissioners.

Gerry O'Connor, OMEA director and Belleville PUC commissioner said the task force legal was contradicting itself.

"On the one hand they leave the choice of members or the policy - making board of directors in government hands, while on the other, they stipulate in their brief that government involvement must be kept to a minimum."

The electric association also chastised the theory of profit, as outlined by the task force brief.

Termed "autocratic" and "highly centralized," the "monolith" being created from the present Ontario Hydro, will turn into a money-making operation accountable to no one, reads the OMEA brief.

"Our target is service at cost while there's (government) profit in any manner it chooses," said Mr. O'Connor.

The brief from the OMEA outlines both grievances and alternatives in the hope that amendments will be made to sections dealing with local representation on city governing body and cost for service.

In OMEA circles, the outlook is pessimistic and the Task Force Hydro report will remain unchanged, regardless of their submission, it is felt.

Higher costs, for service, less representation are to franchise to elect "policy-makers" are what Mr. O'Connor sees for Ontario's electric consumers.

Child Shot

TWEED (Special) — A Bancroft area child is in Belleville Children's Hospital in Toronto this morning following a shooting accident at her home last evening.

Cindy Godfrey, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Godfrey, RR3, Bancroft, suffered a neck wound from a .22 calibre rifle. Boy and her 13 year-old brother Paul were alone in the house about 5:25 p.m. Nov. 13 while her parents were shopping.

The child was taken to Bancroft Hospital, transferred to Peterborough Civic Hospital and to Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto.

Main Broken, School's Out

School buses were turned back as they arrived at the school this morning.

The break occurred before 8 a.m., when workmen for one of the mechanical subtrades at the school cracked the main bringing water from the Bay of Quinte to the new building. Bayside's water supply for its washrooms is drawn from the bay and processed at the school's own plant south of Highway 1 before crossing under the highway to the recently opened school. The drinking water supply, drawn from a well, was not affected.

"The men were attempting to repair a small leak in the main when they broke the pipe," said Bayside's principal L. D. Read.

Repairs to the broken main were expected to take about five hours.

Elementary schools on the same site were not affected. They have holding tanks and can draw water for their washrooms.

"Perhaps that is something we will have to look into," commented Mr. Read.

Teachers remained at the school to hold staff meetings. A meeting of all secondary school teachers in Hastings county was scheduled for 8 p.m. today.

Scott Assures Industry Coming

Belleville mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott told Quinte Homebuilders last night he expects "some very good announcements concerning industrial and commercial development within the next month."

He said it will be up to the companies concerned to make public their plans when their preliminary plans are complete.

One pending announcement will concern the decision of a manufacturing firm to build a new production plant here. Another boost to the local economy will come from an American firm that is planning a large new commercial complex.

Another new industry is drawing up plans now to locate here in 1973, the mayor indicated.

"We need a continuation of orderly growth and progress . . . we must not turn back the clock 15 years," he said. Scott said the homebuilders negotiations begin privately tomorrow with Thurlow township for the extension of city services into the township's new service area.

The mayor attended the Quinte Homebuilders' meeting as guest of his son-in-law, Bob Marcotte.

During the meeting Scott was made an honorary member of the National Homebuilders' Association and James Driscoll, retiring president of the Quinte homebuilders, urged those in attendance "to get out and vote and get others to get out and vote" both for Scott and Joe Cox, city aldermanic candidate who is secretary of the builders' association.

In a brief statement Cox told the gathering he is not going to make promises in his campaign but will do considerable door - to - door canvassing. He said, "I understand the problems of the land developer."

DeMark Builders' President

Mike DeMark of DeMark Construction took over last night from Jim Driscoll as president of the Quinte Homebuilders' Association. New vice - presidents are Don Kellar and Reg Breault. Ken Stafford is the new secretary, Joe Cox the treasurer. Gary Wood, Gerry Joyce, Maurice Rollins, Randy Loewen and Ross Parks are directors.

Development Talk

Mayor Wants Toronto Link

When Ontario is divided into five new development areas in 1973, Belleville mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott wants the Quinte Planning Area included in the Central and not the Eastern Ontario region.

He told the Quinte Homebuilders' Association last night initial provincial plans had called for the inclusion of all Hastings and Prince Edward Counties in the easternmost of the development zones.

The mayor said the boundary between the central and eastern regions was tentatively planned to go just Belleville westerly county line.

He indicated that he has presented a case to provincial authorities for revision of this scheme so that the QPB area would be placed in the Toronto - centred development zone.

In a subsequent interview, the mayor said that he has pressed for this change because the bulk of this region's business and commerce is with Toronto and not with the eastern reaches of the province.

The five new development regions will replace smaller units such as the now-defunct Lake Ontario Regional Development council.

The five units are expected to become the basis for decentralized Ontario government administration.

Mayor Scott also said that in his capacity of president of the Ontario Municipal Association he is advocating that a limit should be placed on the length of time the Ontario Municipal Board can hold up a development.

Speaker Predicts House Guarantees

The Ontario government is under pressure to both ensure the licensing of homebuilders and require that the builders give guarantees to new home buyers, a housing association executive said Wednesday.

Peter Clendenan, Ontario services director for the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada, told Quinte Homebuilders at their regular meeting the licensing of homebuilders in Quebec is expected in the next year and Ontario is now considering a program for the licensing of builders being used in California.

He said home buyers' complaints have led the government to consider implementing warranty schemes on new houses.

Stevens stated that if warranties came into effect they would probably cover a one-year period from the date of purchase. These may be supplemented by a kind of insurance policy covering a house for an additional four years.

He advised local homebuilders to give consideration to these possibilities in preparing for the next national convention of builders scheduled for Toronto in January. At that time, the homebuilders' industry may develop its own proposals on licensing and warranties for submission to the government.

Pope Warns World

Devil More Dominant?

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul said Wednesday whole societies have fallen under the domination of the devil. He said sex and narcotics provide openings for Satan's infiltration of mankind.

Pope Paul spoke of the devil and the "mystery of wickedness" at his weekly public audience before a crowd of 6,000 in the modernistic hall of audiences. "One of the great needs of our time is a defence against that evil which we call the devil," the Pope said.

It was the first time that Pope Paul has devoted an entire speech to discussion of the devil.

Observers expressed belief it reflected his concern over the spread of satanic cults in many countries. Sources reported the Vatican has recently received fresh reports from its experts on sects practising devil worship.

Investigators recently found evidence of a black mass, a satanist rite, and vandal damage at the altar of Turin's cathedral in northern Italy, where the "holy shroud" is preserved. The "holy shroud" is revered as the burial linen of Christ.

"We all are under an obscure domination," the Pope said. "It is by Satan, the prince of this world, the No. 1 enemy."

The Pope deplored the fact that in the revised rite of baptism less emphasis is put on exorcism, the part in which the priest orders the devil to leave the person to be christened.

The Pope expressed regret that modern church scholars showed little interest in studying Satan's action "on single individuals as well as on communities and entire socio ies and on events."

He said many would rather seek answers in psychoanalytical and psychiatric studies, "or in in spiritualistic experiences, unhappily so widely spread in some countries nowadays."

Sex Course Suggested For Teaching Prospects

TORONTO (CP) — A course on sex to include a study of the anatomy should be available to students entering teacher's colleges, the Ontario cabinet was told Wednesday by the Provincial Council of Women.

A brief presented to cabinet by the 100,000-member council said such a course would give prospective teachers an "understanding of themselves and others."

Evelyn Harrington of Pakenham, Ont., council president, said in an interview many teachers "just aren't properly prepared to teach this type of course."

"They just don't know how and if they're going to be teaching in schools, they should."

However, the course would not be mandatory, exempting those not able to teach sex because of "of their moral convictions."

The brief also urged that the courses be taught in community colleges and special schools or wherever applicable.

The council also suggested that elementary schools should provide courses relating to alcoholism, vandalism, drug abuse, unemployment, poverty, and the problems of one-parent families.

Study Altitude Effects

Sophisticated equipment is used in the western world's highest permanent laboratory on Mount Logan in the Yukon, to test Canadian armed forces volunteers on the effects of acute mountain sickness. The sickness occurs when people are transported abruptly from low altitude to altitudes above 10,000-12,000 feet. (CP Photo)

Attempted Escape Ends in Corridor

MONTREAL (CP) — Bernard Lortie refused to be sworn in or to testify Wednesday at Jacques Rose's second kidnap trial after earlier making an attempt to escape custody.

Lortie, serving a 20-year sentence for the kidnapping of labor minister, was declared a hostile witness by Mr. Justice Noel Barbes of Court of Queen's Bench and sentenced to five months in prison. The term is to run concurrently with the 20-year term.

Rose is being tried on a charge of kidnapping Mr. Laporte in October, 1970. Mr. Laporte was found dead a week after he was abducted.

Lortie, called as a Crown witness, broke away from his guards outside the courtroom, but ran into a dead-end corridor where he was subdued by police.

Crown prosecutor Fernand Cote started to question Lortie when he was in court on a statement he was alleged to have given police after his arrest in December, 1970.

But defence lawyer Robert Lemieux objected to the questioning and the jury was removed while the lawyers argued about whether Lortie should testify.

Bullets Intervene

LUEBECK, West Germany (AP) — A young East German escaped to West German territory but his 21-year-old girlfriend collapsed in a hail of East German bullets when the couple tried to cross th death strip, West German border police reported Wednesday.

The 21-year-old waiter from Warnemuende and his girlfriend from Wismar reached the heavily-mined and fenced death strip late Tuesday night.

East German border guards spotted them and opened fire. The waiter managed to drag himself onto West German territory, but his girl-friend was stopped clinging to a fence of the fortified obstacle system, police said.

East German guards arrested the young woman.

Thai Bases Used In Vietnam War

BANGKOK (Reuter) — Communist guerrilla attacks against United States air bases in Thailand have focused attention on the key role Thailand has played in the U.S. air war over Indochina.

The United States now operates seven air bases in Thailand, compared with five a year ago. U.S. troop strength at the bases has increased, to 50,000 from 32,000 in 1970.

On Oct. 1, guerrillas launched their first mortar attack against a base in Thailand, firing 36 rounds of 82 m.m. mortar shells into the Ubon base in the north-east. They damaged a control tower, an aircraft maintenance shop and part of the runway.

Two days later, guerrillas clashed with U.S. and Thai security guards at Udon base, also in the northeast. One Thai guard and four guerrillas were killed and three Americans and two Thais wounded. One wounded guerrilla was also captured.

The captured guerrilla, identified as a Laotian, told intelligence officers that a unit of 80 Laotian and Vietnamese commandos, trained at Dien Bien Phu in North Vietnam, infiltrated Thailand in September. They split into small groups to launch co-ordinated attacks on the seven U.S. bases.

Following the raid on the base in Udon province, government authorities said several small guerrilla groups escaped a security net and made their way to the Phuphan mountain range, headquarters of an estimated 1,800 guerrillas in northeast Thailand.

Thai authorities played down the importance of the raids. Gen. Praphas Charusathien, deputy chairman of the ruling National Council, said they had been expected and had no damaging effect.

Samaritans Save Suicide-prone

LEICESTER, England (CP) — "I am going to kill myself. What are you going to do about it?"

Of all the people in Britain who commit suicide, some 80 per cent each year give prior indication of their intention. John is one of a number of volunteers in a group known as the Samaritans who try to save a small proportion of those who reach this stage of despair.

The Leicester branch of this country-wide organization has done away with the image so many people have of the Samaritans as middle aged do-gooders. Since its inception in February, 1964, the Leicester Samaritans have pursued a policy of encouraging young volunteers.

They come from a variety of backgrounds, jobs and professions. Their ages range from 16 to 60. They never talk about the work and few of their associates know that they are Samaritans.

Leicester's volunteer training system differs from that in the rest of the country. There are no formal sessions. A newcomer starts as a helper, which in many cases may mean a tea maker, typist or cleaner. But he is around the centre, assimilating knowledge and information.

During a six-month training period the volunteer must attend two full study days at which he is given four formal lectures.

As yet Leicester has had few dropouts—a problem which has affected other centres in the country.

In Leicester a volunteer does a stint in the centre about once a fortnight, although in some cases it may be more frequent. Normally he is part of a three-man team and duties are varied so he is continually switching days and team-mates. One volunteer may do 30 duties and be teamed up with 30 different people.

"In many respects the younger volunteers are better at answering the telephone than older ones," says one of the founder members of the group. "Younger people are able to communicate more easily. They are not shocked by the situations people get themselves into."

Aim Is to Dominate Western Sculpture

TORONTO (CP) — Gerald Gladstone, sculptor of note when he designed a fountain for Montreal's Place Ville Marie, feels a bit slighted these days because his renown hasn't spread.

He's 43 now and mellowed from his younger years when he strode forth on the art scene with vim and vigor.

"My aim," he announced in 1965, "is to dominate the whole of Western sculpture. Twenty years from now I'll be bigger than Henry Moore."

Mr. Moore, among his other accomplishments, sculpted the archer which adorns the Toronto city hall grounds.

Mr. Gladstone admits to being "hurt" that the National Gallery in Ottawa ignored his work during the last few years.

Mr. Gladstone, of Toronto, received various critical reactions to his Place Ville Marie sculpture.

One critic said the fountain might sometimes resemble a cross between a decapitated mermaid and an oversexed goldfish when glimpsed through the waterspouts which continually envelop it.

"But it's also the work of a superb craftsman who has a lover's eye for form and an actor's instinctive sense of the drama of a captured moment."

However, despite Mr. Gladstone's international reputation —he's in collections in England and the United States—he says he feels left out that a new book on contemporary Canadian painting doesn't give him a passing mention.

"That remark about Henry Moore . . . I was pretty young when I made it," he reflects.

Council Protests Mill Shutdown

Reacting to the shutdown of Canron Imperial Mills of Trenton, the Quinte District Labor Council is sending a letter to David Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, protesting the move.

The council is upset about the loss of 165 jobs at the plant.

Speaking about layoffs, Canron employee Carl Wannamaker, a member of Local 974 of the Textile Workers Union, said:

"The company is now in receivership. The third shift has already been laid off and the second will be out in two or three weeks."

Remaining employees have until Jan. 29 before they too will be out of work.

Wannamaker said rumors circulating in the plant indicate Cosmos' cotton working machinery will be shipped to another Cosmos plant in Marysville, N. B., once the Trenton operation is closed.

Trenton employees have been offered free travelling and moving privileges to go and work at the Marysville plant.

Another rumor has it that the federal government and the administrations of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are supplying loans to Cosmos to revitalize its two remaining Canadian plants. The other factory is in Yarmouth, N. S.

Retiring QDLC president Reg Loader, a recent delegate to the Ontario Federation of Labor conference in Ottawa said divergent provincial minimum wages are behind the move.

"The minimum wage in the Maritimes is about $1.40 or $1.50 an hour. It will be $1.85 in Ontario soon, people think." As a result, companies move to the lower - priced province, he said. Minimum wage here at present is $1.65 and Cosmos' workers start at $1.75 an hour.

He said that from discussions with an OFL organizer, it appears that the Textile Workers Union has "given up Cosmos as a lost cause".

Council will voice the complaints in its letter to Lewis.

Festival Adjudicators Announced by Rotary

The Rotary Club of Belleville has made public plans for the fifth annual music festival.

Described by the Rotary sponsors as "one of the leading music festivals in eastern Ontario," few changes have been made in the planning of the four-day festival.

The festival, beginning Feb. 27, will draw two celebrated musicians to handle the adjudication.

The early portion of the festival, composed of vocalists from solo to choir, will be adjudicated by Canadian soprano Megan Rutledge.

She has been a member of The Royal Conservatory of Music teaching staff since 1959, a member of its board of examiners and has for many years performed with the CBC and the Canadian Opera Company.

The second portion of the festival, instrumental music, will be adjudicated by pianist Clive Lythgoe.

His claims to fame include performing for the United Nations and being personally responsible for the first ever, weekly classical music program on the BBC (British Broadcasting Company).

Festival organizers beaten to point out, the festival is not a competition, even though marks and certificates are awarded for first, second and third.

"It is to give the student the opportunity to become as proficient as possible on a particular piece," said the Rotary Club.

More than 540 categories have been arranged, according to age, selection and choice of vocal or instumental. These categories range from grade one choirs singing a Cookie for Snip, to folk music, to rhythm bands, to accordion orchestras.

Full information is available by contacting the Belleville Rotary Club. All entries must be in by Dec. 1. These to be mailed to Rotary Music Festival Office, Albert College, Belleville.

Women Make County History

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward county councillors will receive their first official introduction to women's lib next year when Avia Head, deputy reeve of North Marysburgh by acclamation takes her seat among them.

Mrs. Head is the first woman representative to be elected to county council. This year for the first time, the office of deputy reeve was introduced in North Marysburgh.

In Sophiasburgh township, Sandra Grieve, a councillor by acclamation, is believed to be the first woman council member for this municipality.

Bessie Dulmage, nominated for reeve, deputy reeve and school trustee in Athol township has eliminated the possibility of a first by deciding to run for a seat on the Prince Edward County board of education. She will oppose incumbent Hutton Martin, who defeated her by only three votes in 1970.

Picton's first woman mayor, Margaret Ackerman will seek re-election opposed by construction tycoon Harvey J. McFarland.

Believe Millhaven Fugitive in Yugoslavia

TORONTO (CP) — Homicide detectives suspect convicted murderer Sreto Drambas, who escaped in a mass breakout from Millhaven maximum security prison near Kingston, Ont., last July, may be in Yugoslavia.

Inspector Jack Webster said Wednesday he has not received confirmation Drambas has left the country, but added he has instigated inquiries through the RCMP and Interpol.

Drambas, 25, and three other men were convicted last April of the 1970 crowbar slashing of dishwasher Trevor Poll, 46, during a restaurant burglary attempt.

Army Promotions Favoring French

OTTAWA (CP) — Armed Forces personnel who qualify for promotion but do not speak French may be bypassed in favour of francophone candidates in a temporary deviation from the merit principle, says an internal defence department document.

"Some deviations from the strict order of merit lists have occurred in the past and may be necessary in the future," says the document, a letter signed by Rear-Admiral D. S. Boyle, chief of personnel.

There is "evident concern in the forces about promotion as it pertains to the problem of cultural imbalances," Admiral Boyle writes in the letter, distributed to military commanders in the field and to a handful of top-ranking officers at defence headquarters.

A copy also was made available to The Canadian Press.

The letter says that deviations have been "very limited" in number and that those bypassed "have been and will continue to be protected and promoted."

Last year, seven candidates for promotion to sergeant and warrant officer ranks were bypassed out of a total of 2,079, as were two candidates to the rank of major out of a total of 338.

Altogether, there were expected to be 34 bypasses in the listed categories last year and this.

The 1971 deviations have been corrected and it is possible that some of the 1972 ones also may be corrected before the end of this promotion year."

The letter says that in accordance with government policy, the defence department is taking steps to achieve francophone representation, approximating the national average, "in all occupation areas and at all rank levels."

About 28 per cent of Canada's population is French-speaking.

However, the proportion of French-speaking to English-speaking servicemen is less than 20 per cent. And the proportion of francophone officers to Anglophone officers is much lower again.

"We are committed to redress the present imbalances within 15 years," says Admiral Boyle's letter.

Victims of Flood Will Receive Aid

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Resources Minister Leo Bernier said Wednesday he will ask the provincial cabinet to make emergency funds available to flood-stricken Windsor area communities.

Mr. Bernier described the damage he had seen in an aerial tour of hard-hit communities on the shores of lakes Erie, and St. Clair and the Detroit River as "sickening".

In an interview at Windsor Airport after his tour with other provincial officials, he promised to seek federal government aid for the area as well.

The provincial aid being sought by Mr. Bernier falls under a program in which the province matches money raised in the stricken area.

Robert Norwood, director of Windsor's emergency measures operations, estimated Wednesday the flood had caused between $3 and $3 million damage.

Herder hit by the flooding were the Windsor suburbs of Tecumseh, St. Clair Beach and Belle River on Lake St. Clair, the Lake Erie shoreline of Mersea Township near Leamington, and the eastern shore of Pelee Island.

Th flooding began Monday night when a combination of heavy rain and high winds drove water ashore from the lakes which had high water levels.

Levels in the two lakes had been remaining almost constant at a time of year when they normally drop. In October Lake Erie was 1.5 feet above its normal level and Lake St. Clair was 1.8 feet above normal.

With 80 per cent of the land under water, damage to crops and property on Pelee Island was estimated to be $1 million.

A reporter who flew over the island Wednesday said cottages had been ripped apart and tossed against trees up to 30 yards away.

Islanders were cut off from the mainland by the storm, with the lake too rough for the island ferry and the island airport under water.

Investigate Crash

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — A board of inquiry was ordered Wednesday to investigate the cause of a crash of a Canadian Armed Forces Sea King helicopter at the Shearwater naval base. Two crew members were injured and the craft demolished.

Capt. Ed Hunter, pilot of the craft, was in good condition in hospital, suffering from an injury to his back and several cuts. Cpl. V. Barone, a crew member, was being treated for a broken bone in his hand and bodily bruises.

Cpl. Barone spent almost an hour in the wreckage of the helicopter after it dropped 50 feet to a landing pad.

Capt. Mike Orpen, co-pilot, escaped injury.

Joyceville Guards Given Shotguns

JOYCEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Guards placed on 12-hour shifts were equipped with riot equipment and shotguns as Joyceville institution Wednesday night, as 122 prisoners continued their refusal to work or enter their cells.

Warden C. W. Chitty met a three-member prisoner committee for 5½ hours in an attempt to return the institution to normal following a protest of a directive suspending evening visiting among prisoners.

The committee members later informed fellow prisoners that the directive remained effective.

Larry Rutter, assistant director of organization and administration of the prison organization, described the scene in the prison Wednesday night as "passive."

He said prisoners were confined to the ranges—cell blocks containing a television and common room. He said they were accepting food.

Mr. Rutter said the purpose of the afternoon meeting was an attempt by the administration to obtain prisoner co-operation to "normalize the institution" in order to "discuss areas of change within the appropriate atmosphere towards a better atmosphere for the inmate population."

The protest began in the prison gymnasium Tuesday evening.

Another meeting between the administration and the prisoner committee was scheduled for today.

Paul Desrochers Is Called Quebec's Grey Eminence

QUEBEC (CP) — Paul Desrochers through off pet names his detractors toss at him—names like grey eminence, patronage minister and power puppeteer.

He even laughs, perhaps a little bitterly, at Parti Quebecois head Rene Levesque's charge that he is chief of "the psychological terrorism commandos."

Results are what the public-relations special adviser to Premier Robert Bourassa pointed to recently in one of the few interviews he has ever granted.

After four years of behind-the-scenes rebuilding of the Quebec Liberal party, he points to a Liberal government now in its mid-term and says he can muster a force of 20,000 party members which he can "ask to do anything at all."

Some of the members will gather in Montreal during the weekend for the annual meeting of the provincial Liberal party. They undoubtedly will be discussing the results of the last federal election and planning for the next provincial election, now generally expected in 1974.

Mr. Desrochers was given the rebuilding job by former premier Jean Lesage in 1968 after Mr. Lesage's government was whipped by the Union Nationale in the 1966 provincial election. The Liberal party's future in the province looked bleak.

Mr. Desrochers brought to the task the cool logic of the businessman, a firm belief in the supremacy of the capitalist system of free enterprise and what he describes as the inevitable economic bankruptcy of the separatist movement.

A former administrative consultant to several international agencies and Quebec firms, Mr. Desrochers admits that members of the 15 committees he set up to revamp the party are also largely drawn from the business and financial world.

Does this indicate the ideological thrust of the Bourassa regime?

"These men are fighting to preserve the system just as much as others are fighting to demolish it," Mr. Desrochers said.

"Neither Robert nor myself nor any of the others we have supported since the beginning are expecting any favors from the system and someday I'll write my memoirs to prove it."

Party work consumes almost all of Mr. Desrochers' time already cut into by an old war wound that forces him to wear a special corset and permits only three hours sleep a night.

He works with each of his committees, each with specific functions such as publicity, finances and inquiries, "at least once a month in my leisure time."

The back-breaking pace has taken its toll.

Mr. Desrochers says he has vowed several times "to swear it all off."

"One weekend when I was not at home, Robert Bourassa went to see my wife and convinced her that I must stay on," Mr. Desrochers said. "When I returned, I accepted but only for two more years—1974 will be the end of it."

Stock of Ale Can Be Sold

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan government will allow Carling Brewery to market in the province its current stock of Calgary Export lager beer in the ordinary way and will apply a one-month delisting penalty on the firm effective the day the stock is depleted.

Premier Allan Blakeney made the announcement Wednesday following an afternoon meeting with Wilmot Tennyson of Toronto, president of Canadian Breweries Ltd., parent company of Carling.

The Saskatchewan Liquor Board, of which Mr. Blakeney is minister in charge, had slapped a two-month delisting penalty on Calgary Export earlier this week after Carling had contravened advertising restrictions under the Liquor Act.

The order meant that the province could not reorder that particular brand of beer for two months. They could, however, sell whatever stocks they had on hand.

Following that order, reports indicated huge amounts of the beer had been produced in anticipation of the Christmas holiday and because beer has a limited shelf life, fears were expressed that it might spoil.

Union Leader Fined

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — R. Kerr Rowley of Brantford, national president of the Canadian Textile and Chemical Union, Wednesday was fined $500 in provincial court on a conviction of intimidation by obstructing a highway.

Evidence at the trial disclosed that Rowley led pickeers into a stre eth September, 1971, near the strike-bound Perspack Ltd. plant in Brantford after police told him not to obstruct the roadway.

Margaret Trudeau Crushed in Crowd

OTTAWA (CP) — Margaret Trudeau was crushed in a throng of school children Wednesday and nearly knocked down the steps of the Parliament Hill walkway when she took part in a ceremony to open Young Canada Book Week.

The incident occurred when she released a collection of about 1,000 balloons from under a plastic tarpaulin.

Each balloon carried a sticker entitling children under 10 to a free book from the publishing firm which organized the event.

As Mrs. Trudeau released the balloons, the children rushed to grab them before they floated out of reach. In the crush, she was nearly pushed backward down the first flight of steps.

RCMP officers and plainclothesmen rushed through the mob to her rescue. Several children and photographers were knocked over in the fray but no injuries were reported.

Once security personnel opened up breathing space, Mrs. Trudeau helped the eager youngsters fish out the remaining balloons still caught in the tarpaulin and spent about 10 minutes signing autographs before moving inside the Parliament Buildings.

He too was nearly trampled in a stampede of 300 screaming children in pursuit of 1,000 balloons being used to publicize Young Canada Book Week in that city.

The mayor was extricated from the crowd of excited youngsters by his secretary, Oliver Wright, who plunged in to help him to the sidelines.

Later, plans called for the mayor to read a story to the assembled youngsters in the council chamber.

Mr. Dennison got half way through the story when his voice gave out. Mr. Wright had to finish the story for him.

Win Prizes

CORNWALL (CP) — Three Toronto residents were winners in the $50,000 Kinsmen Lottery "D" draw, officials announced Wednesday night. Issa Sahoi won first prize of $10,000. Second prize of $20,000 went to Katherine Joby and third prize of $10,000 to V. Herrera.

Drug Problem

CALGARY (CP) — Society must run the risk of allowing some soft drugs to infiltrate its prisons if it wants to retain a humane penal system, says Warden Pierre Jutras of the Drumheller, Alta., correctional institute.

The warden, commenting on possible drug abuse within institutions, said: "We are very concerned, but the only way to stop it completely would be to keep the prisoners locked up for 24 hours a day with no visitors."

Top Grower

TORONTO (CP) — Gaston Vanraes of Aylmer, Ont., was named world champion tobacco grower for the third time in four years at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair Wednesday.

He began farming tobacco in 1951, three years after arriving in Canada from Belgium.

Demerits Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's system of demerit points for drivers convicted of offences under the Motor Vehicle Act has been ruled unconstitutional, vague and discriminatory in provincial court.

Judge Douglas Hume made the ruling Tuesday in dismissing a speeding charge against a University of British Columbia student.

He said the law is unconstitutional because it doesn't allow for equal treatment of all persons accused, it is too vague because it doesn't say how or when points can be re-

Won't Hear Case

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Judge Peter Welch Wednesday refused to hear a case involving narcotics charges being prosecuted by federal authorities.

If Judge Welch's ruling that a federal prosecutor cannot pursue a case started by provincial authorities is upheld, it may invalidate a large number of narcotics cases.

He was ruling in the case of Ronald Higden, 25, and Thomas Kent, 23, both of Toronto, charged with conspiring to traffic in hashish.

Defence lawyers Desmond Morton and Harvey Salem argued that since their clients had been charged by Toronto police who get their authority from the province, the case should be prosecuted by the Crown attorney's office.

The two men had been taken to a special court reserved for narcotics cases and staffed by a federal prosecutor.

Given 5 Years

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — Jack M. Charlton, 34, of Windham Centre, was sentenced to five years in prison after he was convicted in Norfolk County Court Wednesday of 115 charges of fraud involving $22,000.

$66,25 a Pound

TORONTO (CP) — The champion beef carcass at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair, submitted by James W. Hanson and Sons of Guelph, Ont., was sold for $66.25 a pound Wednesday.

Finds His Bus

LA PLATA, Argentina (AP) — Jose Perez's microbus was stolen and when police couldn't find it he rented a small airplane to press the search. He spotted the brightly colored vehicle, landed the plane at a nearby airport and arrived at the scene in a taxi with pistol drawn. Two youths about to drive away were arrested and a crew of car thieves was uncovered.

Dutch Blockade

ROTTERDAM (AP) — Irate Dutch suburbanites demanding safety measures at a dangerous intersection uprooted paving stones at the crossing, built traffic barriers and burned an old car with gasoline bombs to underscore their concern.

Accused Relates How Guard Beaten

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — Russell Joseph Borkowski, 26, told British Columbia Supreme Court Wednesday how he and another youth planned to escape from the Alexis Creek jail without injuring the guard.

Borkowski and Gary John McNamara, 19, of Orillia, Ont., are charged with capital murder in the fatal beating of John Victor Starchuk, 35, a guard at the jail 187 miles southwest of here.

"We talked of how it would be done," Borkowski testified. "How we would get out without trying to hurt the guard. How we would get the door open and what we would do after we got out."

Borkowski and McNamara escaped from the RCMP lockup during the night of June 2. They had been in jail for two weeks charged with breaking and entering and Borkowski had been sentenced to 18 months shortly before he escape.

Borkowski told the court that he placed paper in the lock mechanism of the cell three nights prior to the escape so that the door could be opened from the inside.

He said shortly after Mr. Starchuk came on shift at midnight, he made a dummy of blankets and magazines on a bunk while McNamara slipped out of the cell.

Mr. Starchuk discovered McNamara in the hall and as he was returning him to his cell, Borkowski said McNamara "brought out a rock and hit Mr. Starchuk."

Borkowski said he watched while McNamara held Mr. Starchuk in a choke hold until the latter slid to the floor.

"I remember saying: "You stupid so-and-so. I thought you said you wouldn't hit him."

Borkowski said he tied Mr. Starchuk's legs but when the guard began to lash out at McNamara, he untied him "to give him a fighting chance."

He said McNamara hit the guard several times more with the rock then began choking him again.

Then, he said, he (Borkowski) bound and gagged the guard.

He said Mr. Starchuk was still alive when the two fled the jail on foot.

Decade of Struggle

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Fifteen countries have called on the General Assembly to proclaim a "decade of struggle against racism and racial discrimination." The decade would begin Dec. 10, 1973, the 25th anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Paper Monopoly Evidence All In

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — The last witness has been heard in the Irving newspaper monopoly trial but it will be weeks, perhaps months, before the verdict is given.

Mr. Justice Albany M. Robichaud of the New Brunswick Supreme Court still has to hear the closing arguments of prosecutor William Hoyt, acting for the federal justice department, and defence lawyer Donald Gillis, solicitor for the Irving companies.

These summations are not expected before December and they could be postponed until early 1973. When he adjourned the trial Wednesday, Judge Robichaud said he would then communicate with the lawyers about hearing their arguments at "some suitable future time."

Also to be decided is whether they will argue their cases orally or in written briefs.

The action began when monopoly charges were laid in December, 1971, under the Combines Investigation Act, against K. C. Irving Ltd. of Saint John.

Throughout the trial predictions were made by Judge and counsel alike that the case in Court of Canada before final may wind up in the Supreme settlements.

The precedent-setting aspect is apparent. The combines charges are the first ever laid in Canada against daily newspapers. Their disposal could affect the ownership and operation of papers throughout the country.

Italians' Integration Paper's Aim

TORONTO (CP) — The publisher of Toronto's newest Italian newspaper says some self-styled leaders of the city's Italian community want immigrants to remain apart from other Canadians because it is good for business.

John Ciardullo, 34, who came to Canada from Calabria 11 years ago, said his newspaper is designed to help Italians "break away" from control by Italian businessmen who find them a ready market.

"Let's face it," said Mr. Ciardullo, "this is how they get the money they have, by exploiting immigrants who must buy from their markets."

L'Osservatore Metropolitano or The Metro Observer will take other stands as well, including opposition to the proposed airport at nearby Pickering and support for the Spadina Expressway, and will recommend "priority" for job hunters who are Canadian citizens, provided they have necessary qualifications.

The newspaper will be published twice monthly, once in Italian for older persons, and once in English for younger people in Italian homes.

Stories will not be duplicated. Articles on housing bylaws, taxes and other municipal problems will be in Italian; stories about travel, fashion and education will be in English.

Mr. Ciardullo worked until recently for an automotive supply company.

Elio Madonia, president of the Federation of Italian Associations and Clubs in Toronto, said of the publisher's views on immigrant exploitation that Mr. Ciardullo is "seeking attention by making such general statements."

Mr. Madonia said many businesses in the Italian community are not Italian-owned but employ sales clerks who speak the language of the customers.

Mr. Madonia said 95 per cent of the Italian housewives are able to get out of the Italian shopping district if they want to. Most spoke enough English to be understood.

Old Error Fosters Conflict

LIBREVILLE, Gabon (AP) — An oversight in a 72-year-old treaty between France and Spain has led to a conflict between two newly independent African countries over two sandy islands which may contain offshore oil deposits.

The bossing forces of French colony of Gabon and its impoverished neighbor Equatorial Guinea, once Spanish-ruled but now under Marxist influence, are fighting a war of words and may come to blows over the tiny islands of Mbanie and Cocobeach a few miles off their Atlantic coast.

The two countries have virtually no armies and their combined population is one million.

A landing force of 20 Gabonese policemen recently went to the islands, causing an official uproar in Equatorial Guinea.

A group of islands near the old colonial border was explicitly conceded to Spain by France in a pact signed June 27, 1900. The pact failed to mention Mbanie and Cocobeach. Until the offshore oil boom in nearby Nigeria, the omission went unnoticed. Since then, Gabon and Equatorial Guinea have tried to assert conflicting rights to sovereignty.

Discussions between them broke down earlier this year, so Gabon's President Albert-Bernard Bongo arbitrarily extended his country's territorial waters to 100 from 30 miles, formally taking over the two islands.

At the same time, Bongo claimed refugees from the Guinean-controlled islands in the archipelago complained of brutality at the hands of the Guinean militia. Equatorial Guinea countered with the assertion that Gabon forces captured and "tortured" 280 of its soldiers. Both countries complained to the United Nations.

Underlying the dispute are deep tribal and political differences. Equatorial Guinea's 300,000 inhabitants are mostly members of the Fang tribe which controls its government. The Fang also comprise half of Gabon's 700,000 population, but Bongo, a member of a minority tribe, ousted virtually all Fangs from the government when he came to power in 1967.

Bongo is one of the few African leaders who refuse diplomatic ties with Communist countries. Gabon contains deposits of iron, manganese, uranium and tropical timber and is considered among Africa's more prosperous nations.

Equatorial Guinea is vehemently anti-Western and has links with the Soviet Union and China. Some French diplomats believe the Chinese may be using their influence in Equatorial Guinea to disrupt Bongo's regime.

Intelligencer Sports

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1972

Belleville Quintes will be attempting to bolster their defensive record in OHA Senior A competition this season with the addition of Pete Mateja (left) and Kurt Bagnell (right). Mateja has been signed by the Quintes and is expected to play for Belleville in their Friday night meeting with the Barrie Flyers. Bagnell will attend the Quintes' practice sessions next week. Both goalies are graduates of university hockey.

New Faces in Quintes' Camp

There will be some new faces in the Belleville Quintes' lineup this weekend.

The local Senior A entry, which was drubbed 10-1 and 6-3 by Oakville last weekend have signed a goalie and right-winger for their upcoming home - and - home meeting with the Barrie Fivers.

Pete Mateja is expected to be between the pipes for Friday's game at the Belleville Memorial Arena. The tall, 22 year old notminder played last year at the University of Windsor after a two - year stint at University of Detroit.

Mateja attended the Boston Bruins training camp this season.

The Quintes will be looking to bolster the scoring attack with the addition of right winger - centre Randy Clark. The Edmonton native, now living in Peterborough, performed for the University of Alberta Golden Bears last season after a five - year assignment in the Alberta Junior A League.

Clark is 22 years old, stand-ing five feet, 11 inches and weighing 180 pounds. Previous commitments will force him to miss Friday's game, but he is expected to see action when the team travels to Barrie Saturday.

Another goalie, Kurt Bagnell, won't see action this weekend, but has been invited to attend practices next week. The 24 year old notminder played all 40 games with the University of Michigan last season, then third in the tough American Collegiate League. He hails from Oranerville, Ontario and played Junior B hockey in Sarnia.

The newcomers certainly won't face easy openers. Barrie, one of the Senior A powers for the past few seasons, is currently holding down third place in the league standings with an 8-4 record. Belleville is tied for eighth place at the moment with a 4-7 mark.

Game time Friday night is 9 p.m.

ALFRED NOBEL invented dynamite. If it had been Sam Pollock, he'd probably have insisted upon lighting it in victory cigar with a stick of the new device.

The Montreal Canadiens' general manager appears to be that sort of a hockey man — brilliant in the short run but maybe just a trifle dangerous to have around.

Pollock is in the process of building a puck dynasty. The Habs have lost only once in their first 18 games and currently hold a seven point bulge over the second place New York Rangers.

What must be even more frightening to the Ivans, Imlachs and Gregorys is that Montreal can only stand to get better. Jacques Lemaire is just approaching his peak. Guy Lapointe, Peter Mahovlich and Serge Savard are youthful veterans. Mark Tardiff and Rejean Houle figure to improve. Guy Lafleur is in his second NHL season. So is Ken Dryden.

Chuck Lefley, who spent last season with the Nova Scotia Voyageurs has all the markings of a star. In fact, Steve Reed, who played with Lefley on the Canadian National Team tabbed the winger as a potential super star two years ago. He appears ready to make a prophet of the departed Belleville goalie.

SCORING ACES Frank Mahovlich and Yvan Cournoyer have several good seasons remaining. Only Jacques Laperriere and Henri Richard appear to be nearing the end of the line.

Aging stars are as much of a problem to Pollock as income taxes are to Howard Hughes. Ralph Backstrom goes. Dale Hoganson arrives. Terry Harper moves to Los Angeles. The Canadiens pick up another top draft choice.

The Montreal magnet is more than willing to help his fellow NHL wheeler dealers. He'll give them a solid veteran player and ask no more in return than gratitude, graciousness and a few crumby draft choices. By doing so Sam helps his competitors. It's probably never even crossed his mind that by dealing players for draft picks he can continue to stockpile future stars while at the same time protecting his nucleus.

There is a rule that first year professionals are automatically protected in the NHL's "equalization" draft. Dealing off veterans and fringe players allows Montreal to move their top second year pros onto the protected roster while last year's picks don't have to be protected at all. And then of course there's next year when Pollock's efforts allow the Canadiens to choose three or four times in the first round of the over-age junior draft. And the best goes on, and on, and on. and on.

MONTREAL'S Nova Scktia sextet team in the American Hockey League, augmented by a few of the "Black Aces" from their text squad would undoubtedly finish in the playoffs of the NHL's Western Division. Hell, they might even win the Clarence Campbell Bowl.

Hoganson was tabbed as the Los Angeles Kings' top defenceman. He isn't even a regular in Montreal. Steve Shutt and Murray Wilson were among the most impressive rookies in the NHL pre-season schedule. They've seen as much ice as an abstaining Arab once the money play began. John Van Boxmeer was terrified to the Team Canada training camp. He isn't even on an NHL roster. Pierre Bouchard, a certain starter with most other teams, is the Forum's most muscular useheetie.

Pollock's neatest bit of stick-handling since he conned the California Golden Pigeons out of their top draft choice for FIVE years, came this season when he "gave" goalie Phil Myre to the Atlanta Flames and wound up keeping players like Hoganson, Bouchard and Bob Murdoch who could have been chosen.

Montreal lost a solid, but unspectacular netminder who was unhappy as Ken Dryden's caddie and kept three good young defencemen.

The crushing loss of Myre was not somewhat easier to bear by the fact that Wayne Thomas, Michel Plasse and Michel Deguise are in the Montreal ranks, but not eligible for the draft because they were first year pros. And, oh yes, there's promising Michael "Bunny" Larocque of the Ottawa 67's who can't be drafted next year because of the same rule. Goalies, anyone

Of course it isn't Sam's fault that his yokels are willing to take a penny in the $.

THE PROBLEM is that by fleecing these schnooks out of their collective hockey tuques, the Montreal GM is helping to create an even further gap between the haves and have-nots of the NHL.

While The Canadiens have lost only once, the New York Islanders have managed two wins. Atlanta has climbed to the giddy heights of 7-7. The Golden Pigeons are at 10-10. St. Louis, another sturdy Montreal customer, has benefited to the tune of 3-6-5.

Isn't it possible that some day hockey fans may tire of watching Pollock's charges while the whey out of Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Atlanta and LA?

The Montreal gentile might someday discover himself in the title role of Snow White and the 15 Dwarfs. Then what Sam . . . Ready Rota for Valery Kharmelov and a draft choice?

Full House Doubtful in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Football fans in the capital become stay-at-homes in the autumn and the latest evidence of, that came last Saturday when there were about 11,000 empty seats at Lansdowne Park as Ottawa Rough Riders beat Montreal Alouettes in the Eastern Football Conference semi-final game.

The 16,548 fans were well below the season average of 29,355 for the seven regular season games here. A total of 184,911 fans watched Ottawa at its home grounds.

General manager Frank Clair said in an interview Wednesday that he hoped Riders would draw between 22,000 and 24,000 for Saturday's opening game of the EFC finals against Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

But the advance sale indicates a crowd of about 20,000.

"Even in 1939 and 1939 when we played the deciding games of our conference title, we didn't get a full house," Clair recalled.

Those are the genuinely rewarding things for an offensive lineman."

In addition to the five charter members, there are some fringe Hogs, such as tight end Paul Markle. Herron's locker is next to Pig Row and so is the locker of running back Paul Williams.

"It all started when I had a share in a hog farm in North Bowing three years ago," said Frank. "They started calling me Hog, and eventually assistant coach Dave Smith picked it up and named us the Hogs.

"He even had a Hog Award for the outstanding offensive lineman in each game. From that point we seemed to start taking a little more pride in ourselves and became a closely knit group that worked well together."

Bombers worked out Wednesday in temperatures of about 25 degrees above zero, drilling on plays they hope will make the vital difference when they tangle with Roughriders in the sudden-death final here Sunday afternoon.

The victor goes to Hamilton, to represent the Western Football Conference in the Grey Cup final Dec. 3 and Frank said. "We thought back in training camp we'd have a good shot at going all the way.

Joe Frazier

Frazier, Foreman May Not Fight

Durham says that while Frazier's $250,000 guarantee is on deposit in a Philadelphia bank, Foreman is beset with lawsuits.

"They're suing Foreman and (manager) Dick Sadler here, and there are promoters in Baltimore and Boston who claim Foreman owed them fights against other guys," Durham said.

"It's a mess," said Bruce Wright, attorney for Goodyear Corp., Frazier's backers.

"If the people suing Foreman and Sadler succeed in getting an injunction, they might not be able to have it enforced in Jamaica, but we would be liable to contempt of court if we go through with the fight," Wright said.

Two actions were filed in common pleas court and federal court here on behalf of Mario Erlichman of Philadelphia and David L. Miller of New York. They claim they signed Foreman over a year ago and advanced over $220,000 to him in return for an undisclosed portion of his future ring earnings.

Their agreement, said a local lawyer, provides that Erlichman and Miller have the right to review the terms of any boxing contract Foreman undertakes. The suit charges that Sadler signed for the Jamaica fight without consulting them.

Wright said Frazier is not named as a defendant in either case, but that Cloverlay has filed a counterclaim charging Erlichman and Miller with interfering with the champion's career.

LOSES HEAD

NEW DELHI (AP) — An Indian villager cut off his six-year-old son's head thinking he could put it back on again, then committed suicide by throwing himself beneath the wheels of a train, the United News of India reported. The beheading was a religious ritual of sacrifice, the report said.

U.S.A. Jumps To First

TORONTO (CP) — The United States equestrian team took the lead at the Royal Horse Show Wednesday night.

Mac Cone, second member of the U.S. squad making his international debut at the show, rode Bomber to first place in a fault-and-out competition.

Cone, 26, of Germantown, Tenn., amassed 18 points with a fast 61.5 second round. Elisa De Las Heras of the Mexican team tied Cone for points but in a slower 63.1 seconds.

In fault-and-out competition, the horse and rider take as many jumps as possible in a time allowed beginning again at the first jump if time permits.

"I had to make a fast, smooth and clear round," said a beaming Cone after his win. "I didn't even know that Frank Chapot was leading when I went into the ring."

Canada's Jim Elder, who followed Chapot into the ring aboard Houdini, faulted at the 10th jump, another spread fence, and wound up in fourth place with 27 points.

In open jumper competition, Rodney Jenkins of the U.S. won the Puissance-Stakes, riding three horses in the jump-off.

Aboard Idle Dice, Jenkins cleared the seven-foot wall for first place, taking second on Bellbuco and third on South Side.

Tom Gayford, Olympic gold medalist in 1968, and now coach of the Canadian team, was tied for fourth place aboard Dreamy Jo, with another U.S. rider, Steve Stevens of Palmetto, Fla.

The U.S. team edged ahead of the Canadians, picking up 17 points in Wednesday's international class for a total of 71. The Canadian team has 70 points with the Mexican team in third place with 33 points.

'Pigs' Set Sights On Saskatchewan

That's where offensive tackles Chuck Harrison and Bill Frank, centre Bob Swift and guards Bob Lueck and Chuck Leibrock may be found suiting up for practice before their playoff clash with Saskatchewan Roughriders.

"It's kind of flattering that they call me the Head Hog," said Frank, an 11-year veteran of Canadian Football League play who stands six foot five and weighs 260 pounds.

Not as many people root for the Hogs as for quarterback Don Jonas or running back Mack Herron, but the offensive linemen aren't envious of their more celebrated team-mates.

"Maybe we don't get as much of the glory as a running back does, we're not complaining," said Frank. "Making a block in spring Mack for a 20-yard gain making the good plays work.

Allen Praises Rival

CHICAGO (AP) — Powerful Dick Allen of Chicago White Sox, newly named Most Valuable Player of the American League, said Wednesday: "I hope I'm worthy of this honor and, actually, I thought Joe Rudi would have won it."

Dressed in a maroon suit with leather shoulder decorations, Allen told a news conference:

"I'd like to thank all the guys I played with—I'm one guy who believes that baseball is a team effort."

First baseman Allen, who last season belted a league-leading 37 home runs and a career high of 113 RBIs while batting .308, won the trophy in a landslide.

The once controversial player, who wields a 40-ounce bat like a toothpick, captured 21 out of a possible 24 first-place votes and was named on all 24 ballots of the selecting panel of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

He collected the runaway total of 323 points against the runner-up 184 for outfielder Rudi of the world champion Oakland Athletes, who batted .305 and was named on 22 of the 24 ballots.

While reviewing his past comparatively turbulent career in eight National League seasons, Allen declared:

"Believe me, I won't stop until Chicago has a winner.

"This would have meant more to me had we won the pennant," Allen said. But White Sox would was a close second in the Cy Young vote, so our team did pretty good."

Asked how much of an increase he might ask over his reported $152,000 salary in his first Sox season, Allen smiled:

"I don't know. How much do you have?"

Vancouver Prepares Games Bid

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver-Garibaldi Olympic Committee was to meet today to prepare its bid for the 1976 Winter Olympics.

Bob Hindmarch, acting committee president, said various committees will be named, primarily to look into financing the games. He said it would be the first committee meeting since Colorado voters vetoed Denver's bid for the games.

Mr. Hindmarch refused to speculate on how much costs have risen since a price tag of $68.8 million was placed on the Games in 1970. Some observers have estimated the cost now would be about $54 million.

Before Vancouver and other bidders lost out to Denver, the federal and provincial governments promised $13 million each. Revenues were then estimated at $25 million.

Mr. Hindmarch said Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau has indicated recently that the $26 million offer still stands. But three B.C. ministers who talked with him and other committee members Tuesday would only say the matter is under advisement. Mr. Hindmarch said. The three—Arthur Williams, minister of resources and recreation and conservation, Highway Minister Robert Strachan and Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall—were not available for comment Wednesday.

Mr. Hindmarch said the committee will meet with federal Health Minister John Munro next Monday or Tuesday.

WHA Teams Tighten Race

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

No yards were made in establishing a clear leader in either of the World Hockey Association's divisions in Wednesday night's action.

Ron Walkers' two third-period goals lifted Alberta Oilers to a 3-1 win over Winnipeg to move them back into a first-place tie in the Western sector with the Jets. Each has 21 points. Los Angeles Sharks remained two points off the pace by stopping Houston Aeros 6-4.

Quebec Nordiques tightened the Eastern Division race, defeating New York Raiders 7-4, to move into a share of the division lead with Cleveland Crusaders. Each has 21 points, two more than New England Whalers.

The Whalers, whose Boston locker room was ransacked by thieves who took custom-made skates, sticks and uniforms valued at $10,000, were idle Wednesday night and don't play again until Friday night in New York.

After spotting Winnipeg a 1-0 lead on Christian Bordeleau's goal from Michel Archambault, Walkers scored his 10th and 11th of the campaign to nail down the Alberta win.

Bob Jones' first two goals of the season, in the third period, provided the winning and insurance Sharks' goals at Houston.

Joe Szuta also scored twice for the Sharks, the others going to Mike Byers and Ted McCaskill. Paul Popiel, Murray Hall, Ed Hoekstra and Gord Labossiere shared Aeros' scores in front of 4,136 Houston fans.

Alain (Boom-Boom) Caron scored three goals in front of 7,204 Quebec fans, including one in Nordiques' four-goal third-period uprising, to pace them to victory over New York.

The game was delayed at the 16:08 mark of the second period when minors and majors were given Raiders Craig Reichmuth and Pierre Guite.

The contest was threatened by several minor skirmishes in the third period, but game officials managed to keep the combatants under control.

Robert Guindon, Andre Gaudette and Jean-Guy Gendron also scored in the third period for Quebec which got an earlier goal from Christian Bordeleau's 14th goal of the year in the first period, in front of 5,200 Edmonton fans. Yvon Fontayne evened the score late in the second.

Vickers Pays NHL Dividends

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Steve Vickers isn't just another find for New York Rangers.

The National Hockey League club has had its eye on the 21-year-old winger since he was 15 and playing junior B hockey around his Toronto home.

Their patience finally paid off two years ago when they claimed him in the amateur draft and after a year of grooming at Omaha in the Central League it appears Vickers has arrived.

Spotted earlier in the season, coach Emile Francis inserted him on New York's Bulldog line four games ago with Walt Tkaczuk and Bill Fairbairn and the trio has been flying since.

Vickers scored three goals Wednesday night and Fairbairn collected four assists as the Rangers drubbed Philadelphia Flyers 7-3 on the strength of four unanswered goals in the third period.

Vickers also scored three goals in New York's last game, a 5-1 rout of Los Angeles Kings last Sunday, and his feat Wednesday is believed to be the first time in NHL history, a rookie has scored three goals in successive games.

Elsewhere Wednesday night the scores were: Pittsburgh Penguins 7, Minnesota North Stars 1; Toronto Maple Leafs 2, Atlanta Flames 1; Detroit Red Wings 4, California Golden Seals 0; Buffalo Sabres 3, Los Angeles Kings 3.

Tonight's schedule has Philadelphia at Montreal Canadiens, New York Islanders in Atlanta and St. Louis Blues at Boston Bruins.

Vickers isn't letting two games make a season.

"I still have to prove to myself that I can play well consistently," he said in the Rangers' dressing room. "I just hope I'm not a flash in the pan."

Then, mellowing to the occasion, suggested: "I hope they don't expect me to score three every night. . . .

"Two games don't make a season. Maybe it's just luck."

Francis decided to move Vickers in with Tkaczuk, who collected three assists against Philadelphia, and Fairbairn after the line—with Gene Carr—had given up several key goals.

"Their line had five goals scored against it in three games before Vancouver, so I decided right away to put Steve on the line," said Francis, who also holds the Rangers' general manager's portfolio.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN COSHEY

Coshey — Jeffs

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Jeffs, RR 3 Stirling. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Coshey, RR 4 Marmora. Miss Linda Potts rendered organ music and accompanied the soloist Miss Judy McAdam.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a long polyester satin gown with a guipure lace accent on the skirt, neckline and long sleeves. A wedding ring headpiece held the four-tier veil. The bride carried a cascade of pink sweetheart roses and trailing ivy.

Mrs. Richard Herrington, as her sister's matron of honor, was attired in a long hyacinth polyester crepe gown. She carried a bouquet of mixed flowers.

The bridesmaids, Miss Marilyn Smith, cousin of the bride, Miss Joan Jeffs, sister of the bride and Miss Debbie Coshey, sister of the bridegroom were dressed identically to the matron of honor.

Miss Kelly Bailey, as flower girl was attired similarly to the bridesmaids.

Best man was Brian Coshey, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Richard Herrington, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Grant Bairman and Fred Jeffs, brother of the bride.

Master Bradley Lyons was ring-bearer.

The bridegroom's mother was attired in an aqua crimplene gown featuring a lace-effect top and aqua skirt enhanced by a yellow rose corsage.

Bennett — Morton

St. Edmunds Roman Catholic Church, Sloco, was the setting for the recent wedding ceremony when Lois Marion Morton, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold K. Morton, Thomasburg, was united in marriage to John Charles Bennett, son of Mrs. William Bennett and the late Mr. Bennett of Thomasburgh. Rev. J. C. Greenwood officiated and Rev. Sister Rita presided at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father the bride chose a floor length gown of cream crepe skirt with a high empiral waist and lace bodice. A cluster of white velvet flowers was the headdress for the shoulder - length veil. She carried a bouquet of white and tinted blue carnations with baby's breath, caught by a long velvet blue ribbon.

The maid of honor, Miss Merle Morton, Preston, sister of the bride, wore a long lilac crepe gown. The bridesmaids Miss Joan Bennett, Oshawa, and Miss Mary Bennett, Thomasburg, both sisters of the bridegroom, wore similar gowns as the maid of honor, only in mint and yellow. All wore matching velvet daisies on dresses and in their hair and they carried similar bouquets of baby 'mums.

Gerald Feeney, Oshawa, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was groomsman.

For the reception held at Thomasburgh United Church Hall, the bride's mother greeted guests wearing a street length dress of gold and brown figured crepe and a corsage of bronze 'mums. Assisting them bridegroom's mother chose a street length gown of blue and white crepe accented by a corsage of yellow carnations.

Leaving on a wedding trip the bride chose a purple orlon knit dress with black accessories and a yellow carnation corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett will reside in Oshawa.

Personal

Prior to her marriage Mrs. John Coshey (nee Joyce Jeffs) was honored at several miscellaneous showers. Mrs. Douglas Campbell, Mrs. Garry Bateman and Mrs. Claire Knight gave a shower at Island Park. Northwest Frontier's Craftsmen Copy Arms

DARRA I ADAM KHEL (Reuter) — Two moustached tribesmen with automatic pistols slung from their shoulders walked hand in hand, as is the local custom, into the gun shop here to inspect the Pakistan Army's latest weapons.

The most recent additions to the weaponry they were shown were high-velocity G-3 rifles representing $300 worth of firepower.

But here at Darra I Adam Khel in the ungoverned tribal territory of Pakistan, a G-3 costs only $45.

It is a fully functioning copy of a genuine G-3 rifle such as might come from the government's ordnance factory at Wah in the Punjab.

Craftsmen working with primitive tools in the most famous "handicraft industry" of the notorious Northwest Frontier province claim they can copy almos any weapon from machine guns to revolvers, as well as guns fashioned to look like walking-sticks or pens.

A pen pistol firing a .22 bullet can be bought for about $2.50 while a copy of an Italian Beretta automatic pistol fetches about $10.

However, quality control has not yet reached Darra, some 25 miles south of the provincial capital, Peshawar. When the salesmen demonstrate their wares to potential customers, they hold the gun at arm's length lest it blow up in their faces.

The activities of the arms manufacturers in the grubby alleyways and walled courtyards go unhindered by the civil or military authorities. Treaties signed by the British rulers of pre-partition India gave the tribesmen complete freedom to run their own affairs and the Pakistan government has chosen not to interfere.

Several hundred men and apprentices work in the little factories, beating out convincing copies of British, American German, Italian, Spanish and Czechoslovakian weapons, mostly by hand.

They choose from a selection of seals such as "Made in England" or "Made in U.S.A." to put the right stamp of authority on their work.

Where the tribal territory ends, Pakistan customs agents examine returning visitors. Licences costing $5 a year are needed to take guns out of the tribal area, but many arms are smuggled out.

NBA Will Not Join Up

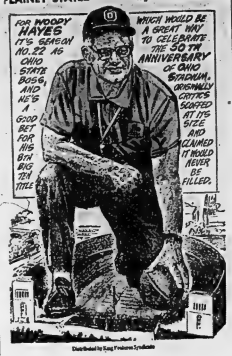
NEW YORK (AP) — NBC radio said Wednesday night the National Basketball Association will announce today it has broken off serious merger negotiations with the American Basketball Association, then the ABA will say it plans to expand by five or seven cities.

The NBA board of governors, who have scheduled a news conference for today, are expected to announce that they have found it too difficult to live with several requirements recently proposed by a Congressional subcommittee for merger, Gil Lebeow, an NBC sports announcer, said.

"The NBA probably will contend that further study is required and that it hopes to come up with new counter-proposals sometime in the future," he said.

But he added the ABA will translate this as a definitive conclusion on the part of the NBA to back away from merger.

"It appears that the affluent NBA owners simply are not willing to live with the idea of giving 30 per cent of their rich gates to the poorer visiting clubs."



One of the proposals for merger suggested by the subcommittee was that each visiting team receive 30 per cent of the gate receipts and each home team get 70 per cent.

With knowledge of the NBA's forthcoming announcement, Lebeow said, the ABA owners have decided to expand to 15 teams from 10.

"He's good at rebounds all right! He's been engaged to three of my girl friends!"

England Edges Wales

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

England edged Wales 1-0, Scotland downed Denmark 2-0 and the republic of Ireland defeated France 2-1 Wednesday in World Cup soccer qualifying matches.

Colin Bell, Manchester City ace, scored England's goal before 36,000 fans at Cardiff, Wales, in the opener of Group 5 competition.

England failed to show much of the cohesive play which won the World Cup in 1966, missing many chances and being thwarted at other times by Welsh goalkeeper Gary Sprake. But the English team appears sure to qualify for the finals in West Germany by eliminating the other Group 5 teams, Wales and Poland.

Scotland took a firm grip on Group 8 with its second victory over Denmark in a bad-tempered match. Kenny Dalglish and Peter Lorimer scored the goals, one in each half. Lorimer and Dennis's Per Reentved were sent off for fighting seven minutes from the end. Czechoslovakia, third team in the grouping, has not yet seen action.

In Dublin, the Irish republic team got goals from Gerry Conroy and Ray Treacy to beat France in an upset. The result left France, Ireland and the Soviet Union tied with one victory each in Group 9.

Ti-Cats Use Real Grass

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats are one of three teams in the Canadian Football League who play on artificial turf—but recently they've not been using it.

Because they open their Eastern football Conference final in Ottawa Saturday, coach Jerry Williams has had the team practising on natural turf behind the club's dressing room.

The Ticats will be playing on real turf for only the second time in five weeks. The last time was Oct. 14 when they travelled to Montreal and beat the Alouettes 31-26.

Saturday's game comes after a two-week layoff and that has Williams a little concerned. In the last game they played after a layoff, against Toronto, "we weren't sharp," Williams said.

"I won't know how this layoff will help until I see how we do against Ottawa."

The other clubs with artificial turf are Toronto and British Columbia.

Globensky Misses Debut

QUEBEC (CP) — Allan Globensky watched his Quebec Les Nordiques team-mates skate to a 7-4 win over New York Raiders in World Hockey Association action Wednesday night in what was supposed to be his debut.

Globensky did not play because his skates, originally believed stolen, were found by Air Canada in Grand Falls, Nfld., where he was playing this year.

Quebec coach Maurice Filion said Wednesday night that Globensky sat out the game rather than use another pair because "they are a person thing and he would not play with them."

Filion said no one knew how the skates turned up in Grand Falls.

Florence Leighton says Loblaws is more personal.

"Fruit and vegetables for instance aren't all packed in quantities. There's just me and my husband left at home, and I don't want a dozen apples. I just want four to bake tonight.

I want to pick the apples I want. I want a certain number, and I want a certain size.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

FRIDAY, NOV. 17

Aries (March 21-April 19): Hold onto newly arriving money and materials until you can plan distribution exactly. Seek special collaboration.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): An early start and diligent effort help as you begin to untangle yesterday's discrepancies. By evening you've earned a rest.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Private affairs are helped by friends, but nothing financial should be entrusted to them. Gather circumstances for a lively evening.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Established projects can be pushed; new ventures begun now are for only short term. Patience with friends is needed but robbed Wife.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): All too many things to do, very little considered in the doing, so assign priorities early and get busy.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Impetuous moves are natural although somewhat speculative. Use your own money rather than any you hold in trust for others.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The closer the relation, the sharper the disagreement. Get to the core of it quickly, make the appropriate compromise or adjustment.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Temptation is urgent, drastic action has to be resisted. If you remain calm and serene you gain much fresh information.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Seek knowledge, apply for formal registrations and confirmation of plans. Catch up on correspondence, be nice to those near you.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Nothing is quite as you had hoped, but most matters can be set right by steady application of your skills.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Convenience doesn't seem to exist if it's worth doing, it's not easy of handy. Friends are subject to restlessness.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Put your money on the line to well-planned purchases, settle outstanding accounts. Consult specialists, get a second opinion.

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes babies to have yellow jaundice?

You'll be surprised to learn how many babies "have jaundice." Keep in mind that jaundice merely means an increase in yellow coloring in the tissues. It's not a disease—it's a symptom. Whether it is a symptom of anything serious depends on other factors.

Immediately after birth, there can be an excessive breakdown of red blood cells in an infant. The hemoglobin (iron) from these breaking-down cells then is incorporated in bile produced in the baby's liver. And excess bile can cause the yellowness known as jaundice.

But, in fact, about 70 per cent of babies will have such an increase in bile, which is not sufficient to cause yellowing that can be seen, but can be detected by modern tests.

This is what is called a normal, or physiological jaundice, and it isn't anything to worry about. It starts about the second day of life and may last from 10 to 14 days.

Jaundice appearing in the first 24 hours of life is another matter, and usually is related to "rh" incompatibility — the mother has rh-negative blood, with the possible result that a destructive combat develops between incompatible particles in the baby's blood. These days the situation is usually foreseen by blood tests before the baby is born.

Such severe jaundice can cause brain damage if permitted to continue, so treatment must be prompt. Usual method is a blood exchange—the baby's blood is withdrawn while at the same time suitable blood is transfused. More recently, it has been discovered that exposure to blue fluorescent light can be effective in reducing blood bile, shortening the period of jaundice and in some cases even avoiding need for an exchange transfusion.

It has also been shown that giving the baby small amounts of phenobarbital for three to five days after birth, or to the mother for a month prior to delivery, can materially lessen jaundice in the newborn.

There are other causes of jaundice in the newborn—congenital defects in the liver or bile tract, or related chemical defects. These are rare, and these are rare.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For a middle-aged woman, would it be harmful to play basketball? Several people have told me it would be bad for the breast muscles.

No harm if you have the energy. (But as for that sport, and for any person, especially middle-aged or older, get in shape gradually. Don't expect to switch from no exercise to a lot of exercise instantly.)

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can trichinosis be contracted by handling raw pork with an open cut on the finger, or must it be eaten?

The larva can enter through a cut.

Remember also that the larva, if present in the raw pork, can cling to hands, knives, cutting boards or other surfaces, so they should be thoroughly washed before coming in contact with other foods.

Opening lead — king of hearts.

It is not uncommon for declarer to go down in a perfectly sound contract because he encounters bad luck in the distribution of the adverse cards. He may fail because one or more finesses go wrong, or because one or more suits break badly.

But granting that this does occur from time to time, the fact remains that in some of there hands it is possible to overcome an unfavorable lie of the cards. Many a contract can be saved by sacrificing dif-

Here is a typical case. West commences hostilities with three rounds of hearts and declarer ruffs the third one. There seems to be absolutely nothing to do but, but when South plays the ace of trumps at trick four East shows out. This is undoubtedly a cruel blow, and if South panics he is apt to concede down one and go on to the next hand feeling very sorry for himself. But if he is made of sterner stuff, declarer puts his mind to work to see whether or not there is a way of overcoming the 4 - 3 trump break.

And if declarer concentrates hard enough, he is virtually sure to come up with the right answer. He stops playing trumps and, with fingers crossed, cashes three rounds of diamonds and three rounds of clubs.

With West following suit all the way, South's task is now routine. He simply leads a low trump and West, whose last three cards consist of the Q-10-4 of spades, finds that one of his two seemingly sure spade tricks has been liquidated. He wins the trump with the ten but must then return a trump from the Q-4 to declarer's K-J.

Tomorrow: Bidding quit.

Farley Mowat Wants To Study Whales

HALIFAX (CP) — Canadian author Farley Mowat said Wednesday he would like to charter the schooner Bluenose II from the Nova Scotia government to take it around the world on a privately-sponsored expedition to study whales.

Mr. Mowat said in an interview he plans to be among the founders of a Canadian organization for whale conservation.

Bluenose II, exterior replica of the famed racing and fishing schooner of the 1920s and 1930s, would be the base of operations for the proposed expedition.

Mr. Mowat said tentative plans call for a founding conference in Toronto sometime in the next few months. The meeting would be sponsored by his publishers, McClelland Steward of Toronto.

Quebec's Power Failures Fixed

MONTREAL (CP) — At Hydro-Quebec spokesman said late Wednesday night that all the power failures left unrepaired during a strike by 8,300 utility employees have been fixed and electricity restored throughout the province.

At noon Wednesday there were 225 power failures affecting 13,000 Quebecers, but the last ones, in the Montreal region, were repaired during the evening.

Another company spokesman said earlier in the day that about 95 per cent of technicians, tradesmen and office personnel returned to work after the national assembly passed emergency legislation at 3 a.m. Wednesday.

Transplant Patient Now Dead

MONTREAL (CP) — John Parkinson, Canada's longest surviving heart transplant patient, died Wednesday night in the Royal Victoria Hospital.

Hospital officials said death resulted from arterial sclerosis, or a narrowing of the arteries. Mr. Parkinson was 54.

Dr. Anthony Dobell, who headed the surgical team which performed the transplant on Mr. Parkinson four years ago, said his heart "was working until the end."

Mr. Parkinson was admitted to hospital suffering from artery trouble on Nov. 2, one day before the fourth anniversary of the 1968 operation which gave him a second lease on life.

He had suffered three heart attacks and a series of heart failures before he underwent the transplant operation. A year later he was able to return to his job as manager in the footwear division at Uniroyal where he had worked for 30 years.

"The hardening of the arteries to his heart resulted in his heart troubles before the transplant operation and the hardening of the arteries to his brain resulted in the series of strokes which led to his death," Dro Dobell said.

Mr. Parkinson was the second longest surviving heart transplant patient in North America. Louis Russell, a 47-year-old industrial arts teacher in Indianapolis, received a new heart Aug. 24, 1968, 72 days before Mr. Parkinson.

Charles Johnston, 58, of Toronto, is now the longest surviving Canadian heart transplant patient. He received his replacement heart Nov. 17, 1968.

Milk Price to Go Up

TORONTO (CP) — The price of milk in Ontario will go up shortly, the president of the Ontario Dairy Council predicted Wednesday.

L. A. Stephens told the council's annual convention the only thing to be determined is how much it will increase.

Mr. Stephens said the industry uses a formula based on such factors as the general wholesale price index, the price of goods and services used by farmers and average weekly earnings, as a guide to setting fluid milk prices.

Since September 1971, the farm price for milk used for bottling has been $7.05 a hundredweight, but the data for last June 30 showed a formula price of $7.20 a hundredweight, 15 cents above the market price.

"Rising prices for raw milk will automatically force an increase in consumer prices."

Professor Ordered Deported

TORONTO (CP) — Istvan Meszaros, a Marxist scholar hired by York University in Toronto, was ordered deported Wednesday for entering Canada illegally.

His Toronto lawyer, Paul Copeland, said he is appealing the decision.

Mr. Meszaros, 42, came to Canada from Britain in September and applied for landed-immigrant status after his application to the London immigration office was refused July 4 for what was termed "security reasons."

The Hungarian-born professor of social sciences was to have started teaching at York University last July 1.

Mr. Copeland said the hearing dealt only with whether Mr. Meszaros was a bona fide visitor to Canada and not with his application for landed-immigrant status.

Mr. Meszaros, who became a Brit ish citizen in 1955, was hired by York University while teaching at the University of Sussex in England.

David Slater, president of York University, said after the hearing that the university would continue to seek reconsideration of the case.

Death Penalty Decision Delayed

OTTAWA (CP) — The country's next decision on whether to retire the hangman has been delayed because of the minority government outcome of the Oct. 30 federal election.

It appears certain the five-year trial period ending the death penalty for most murders will run out before the feelings of Parliament are tested again on the contentious issue. The trial period ends Dec. 26.

A source in Prime Minister Trudeau's office confirms that, although a debate was scheduled for this fall, the priority has suffered a severe downgrading because of the Liberal failure to hang onto a majority in the election.

But there is no real problem in letting the trial period run out, the source said, because the "executive prerogative of mercy"—cabinet commutation of death sentences — still remains.

The trial legislation since 1967 has limited the Criminal Code death penalty to persons convicted of murdering on-duty policemen or prison guards. Since 1957, a total of 27 death sentences... have come before the cabinet. Everyone has been commuted.

This "almost automatic" cancellation of death sentences, as one Conservative MP described it, has been a bone of contention in recent capital punishment debates.

Some MPs who favor strict limitation of the death penalty argue that the will of the people as expressed by Parliament is being frustrated when the supreme penalty is left on the law books but never carried out.

Before the election, Mr. Trudeau spoke repeatedly of the need for a full debate on the trial legislation. But with his party chopped to a minority position by the voters, he has been occupied with revising the federal legislative program in a bid to stay in power and has not yet said whether Parliament would be summoned before the Christmas-New Year's holiday period or only early next year.

A source in the office of Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer, the man expected to propose any new government action on capital punishment, said no legislation had been drafted before the election.

The thinking had been that Parliament would be asked to extend the trial period for another year, he said.

The department had been gathering statistics on murder and crimes of violence during the trial period time so that these could be available for any new debate, the source said. part of the argument for an extension was to be that statistics gathered so far had not been truly representative, in part because of the short time period involved.

In 1970, the last full year for which Statistics Canada has records, there were 430 murders, up from 342 in 1969. There were 314 murder victims in 1968 and 28 in 1967.

Ritchie Reviews World with U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP) — A. E. Ritchie, Canada's undersecretary for external affairs, made a general review of world affairs for nearly six hours Tuesday with senior United States officials here.

"It was both constructive and useful," Ritchie told a reporter as he left the state department for the return flight to Ottawa after about 30 hours in Washington.

But he said he wanted to emphasize—"and this is genuinely the case"—three points:

1. The talks "did not involve negotiations on anything;" they were a discussion of U.S. and Canadian positions on a range of international questions.

2. His visit here had been arranged "weeks ago," well before the Canadian election Oct. 30 which resulted in a minority government in Ottawa.

3. The Washington discussions were similar to talks already held by himself and other senior Canadian officials with governments all over the world so external affairs officers would be in a better position to advise the government on foreign issues.

Ritchie's comments about his talks were apparently designed to put down any speculation that he had come to resume negotiations with U.S. officials on trade matters or even to feel their sentiments about negotiation with a minority government.

He said he had not discussed in any detail the question of Canada's proposed participation in truce-keeping efforts in Vietnam. Discussions on that question had been handled by the two governments through the

Newfoundland Gets Doctors from Abroad

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — During the last few years Newfoundland's department of health has brought in doctors from many countries. Annual advertising campaigns have been launched in Europe and this year the campaign was extended to the United States.

The department hopes to attract doctors to the island's cottage hospitals, some in isolated outports.

Dr. A. T. Rowe, health minister, said: "Response to this years' advertising campaign is good.

The minister and members of his department plan to travel to Europe and the U.S. to interview applicants.

About 25 per cent, or about 120 of the province's 466 practising physicians are government-employed and 55, or almost half, have been brought in from outside Canada.

Newfoundland has the lowest ratio of doctors to population in Canada. Earlier this year the Newfoundland Medical Association rated it as one doctor to every 1,600 or 1,700 people compared with the Canadian average of one to every 800 people.

Dr. Rowe did not say how many doctors his department will be looking for, but there are 19 cottage hospitals on the island with two or more resident doctors. The largest, James Paton Memorial Hospital at Gander, has 12 doctors when fully staffed.

Since the introduction of medical care, doctors' a l a ries have increased. Last year, the average gross f ee for service payments was: medical specialists $46,300; surgical specialists $56,000. However, one general practitioner earned more than the highest-paid specialist. The figure was $141,698 while the specialist, a surgeon, earned $131,541. The lowest payment, $18,610, went to a surgeon.

Dr. W. David Parsons of the Newfoundland Medical Association said: "The shortage of doctors in the province is the reason why the average net professional income of Newfoundland doctors is the highest in Canada.

"The fee schedule is much the same as Ontario's but, because of the shortage, doctors see more p a t i e n t s, work longer hours and consequently receive higher earnings."

Dr. Harry Roberts of St. John's, president of the Canadian M e d i c a l Association, said: "Doctors must take the lead in curtailing exorbitant medical-care income among some colleagues".

Alberta Co-op Finds Ready Sale for Flour

BASSANO, Alta. (CP) — Several farmers in this southern Alberta area have returned from milling to the stone age.

Plagued by problems since its inception a year ago, Alberta Grain Processing Co-Op Ltd. now faces a bright future as consumers become aware of the advantages of stone-ground flour compared with conventional flour.

Growing concern among consumers about chemical additives has spurred sales and new markets are growing.

Ted Schaffer, a co-op director, says the plant can produce 25 tons a day but recently had to close for 35 days when stocks out-distanced orders. Now, the stocks have been depleted and "we have orders for far ahead."

Initially employing two persons, the reopening probably will mean hiring a s aff of up to five or six, he said.

Financing has been a problem in addition to proper management.

The five directors, all area farmers, provided $50,000 to rebuild the $150,000 plant and the balance came from the provincial government's co-operative branch in the form of a guaranteed loan.

"But our biggest problem was that we put too much into capital and didn't put enough aside for operating costs," Mr. Schaffer said.

Now with new financing assured, the firm also plans to produce cereals from cracked hard spring wheat, cracked durum and blended grains.

In conventional flour the wheat germ is removed to extend shelf life. The germ contains high quality protein and most of the vitamins and minerals which are added chemically to conventional flour, milled at high speed.

The shelf-life of the stone-ground flour is at least one year, made possible through the use of special cleaning equipment and the grinding process itself which blends the wheat germ evenly.

"The cool, slow rubbing of the grain between thick granite stones rubs the germ oil evenly th r o u g h the flour which means there is no concentration of oily flakes to oxidize and become rancid."

Mr. Schaffer said most of the wheat used at the mill is provided by district farmers in this area, 60 miles east of Calgary on the Trans-Canada Highway, who do not use agricultural chemicals such as fertilizers or herbicides.

The Research Council of Alberta helped the firm with a preliminary economic feasibility study and provided technical information on wheat processing and flour milling. The University of Alberta's household economics department contributed many of the recipes that are enclosed in each bag of flour.

Pricing at the retail level is one area over which the firm has no control, said Mr. Schaffer.

"We supply five-pound bags in Calgary between 33 and 35 cents and suggest a retail price of 69 cents," he said.

"But Canada Safeway . . . are charging 85 cents for the bag, about 35c p r c e n t markup."

Mr. Schaffer said the Safeway attitude "appears to be that if the consumers want it, that's what they'll have to pay and I don't think they care about volume selling."

If sould a biscuit manufacturer in Edmonton has agreed to act as a broker, selling in northern Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Mr. Schaffer said most of the future production will be marketed in 100-pound b a g s and there are plans to add a 10-pound package to the line.

The firm initially packaged the product, sold under the name Alberta King, in five, 25, 50 and 100-pound bags.

So far, the original investors haven't had much of a return on their money.

"We're not, yet to the break - even point but if things continue this way for the next three or four months, we'll reach that level," Mr. Schaffer said.

Cafik Tops McGee

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — A judicial recount has reversed the result of the Oct. 30 federal election in the riding of Ontario, giving the seat to Liberal Norman Cafik over Progressive Conservative Frank McGee by four votes.

On election night, Mr. McGee held a 12-vote margin over Mr. Cafik.

When Judge Joseph Kelly finished the recount Wednesday night, including the examination of 726 spoiled ballots, the results were Mr. Cafik, 16,720 votes and Mr. McGee 16,204. The New Democratic Party candidate, Alben Ward, had 9,545.

Mr. Cafik's victory breaks the deadlock in the Commons and gives the Liberals 109 seats to 107 for the Conservatives. The NDP has 31 seats, the Social Credit 15, and two are independent.

The recount in the south eastern Ontario riding took four days to complete.

After losing in the elections of 1962 and 1963 Mr. Cafik, who operates a printing and publishing business in the Toronto borough of Scarborough, won in 1968 by 2,000 votes.

Hijacker's Wounds Fatal

MELBOURNE (AP) — A man in his 30s hijacked a domestic airliner Wednesday, but was shot and fatally wounded by police after landing in central Australia.

The hijacker, who booked passage under the name of M. Nelson, was shot several times at the airport in Alice Springs.

Police shot him after he had shot and seriously wounded Constable Paul Sanderman, 31, three times in the chest, stomach and hands, with a sawed-off .22-calibre rifle.

Sandermen was shot once as he tried to wrestle with the man and twice more after breaking away and running across the tarmac.

Police, standing by in hangars, ran on to the runway, shooting as they went.

The hijacker staggered, clutched his shoulder and then ran toward scrub near the airport boundary. Eventually he fell and was grabbed by police.

Sandermain got close to the hijacker by posing as the navigator on a small plane the hijacker demanded after the Friendship Fokker passenger craft landed at Alice Springs and all 34 passengers and three of the crew were allowed to leave.

Only the hostess, Kaye Gorham, was held hostage by the hijacker until Sandermen attacked him and she escaped unharmed.

Public Pays Piper
Potter Flays Self-indulgent

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter questioned Thursday whether state - supported health plans should continue to provide extra or "deluxe service" demanded by many patients.

"Excessive demands by some of the public and over-servicing by some of the physicians are responsible for a large proportion of our inflated health costs," the minister said in a speech to District 11 of the Ontario Medical Association.

"Add to this the additional cost of emergency departments of hospitals, flooded with everything but the emergencies for which they were intended, and we arrive at some pretty astringent figures."

Ontario's medical health plan pays more than $200 million to doctors each year for their services.

Dr. Potter said an answer may be to provide a basic high standard of necessary care for everyone "and allow the public to deal directly with the physician for the deluxe service."

Before the last health plan, a physician was consulted only for serious illnesses, or after home care had been given a fair trial.

"We are now dealing with a generation that includes many unfit, self-indulgent patients with self-inflicted diseases that they charge to the public purse," he said.

"Many believe they have a right to drunkenness and drugs, obesity and abortions, sterility and physical unfitness, and they fully expect to lay the cost of all this on the taxpayer."

While the plan was being "buried under public demands for deluxe service," other areas, such as dental care and drugs, were being overlooked.

Trudeau Comments
Cabinet Pick Made By People

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau hinted Thursday that he will take no special measures to keep Liberal cabinet ministers who were defeated in the Oct. 30 election.

After a cabinet meeting he was asked whether he had decided on the future of defeated ministers.

He replied:

"The people decided. I don't have to make any decision."

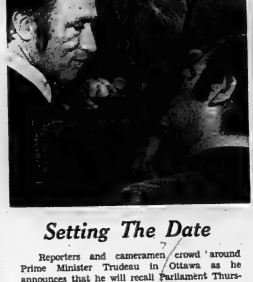
A few moments later, he was asked whether he is considering appointing the defeated ministers to the Senate so they can remain in the cabinet.

"Not very seriously," he replied.

Bypass Builders Face Dilemma

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — James Auld, Ontario environment minister, said Thursday his department will investigate alternatives in reducing the water flow in the Welland Canal in order to re-route rail lines and complete construction of the Welland bypass.

The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority plans to reduce the flow to 400 cubic feet a second from 7,000 cubic feet over four months this winter.



Officials said the reduction will cut off water feed into other channels and creeks causing Ontario Hydro's Decew Falls generating station to cease operations Dec. 15.

Seaway officials say the only alternative is to build rail trestles which would delay the opening of the Welland bypass one year and cost $16 million.

New Parliament Sits January 4

Setting The Date

Reporters and cameramen crowd around Prime Minister Trudeau in Ottawa as he announces that he will recall Parliament Thursday, Jan. 4.

(CP Photo)

Trudeau's Date Draws Protest

OTTAWA (CP) — The new session of Parliament, with a minority Liberal government, will begin sitting Thursday, Jan. 4, Prime Minister Trudeau announced Thursday night. And it will begin with "a lot of positive legislation."

Mr. Trudeau's announcement to reporters ended weeks of speculation about the opening date—along with repeated opposition demands that the House meet in December. He said the main reason for waiting until January is because "we have a very important program to prepare.

And while both Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield and New Democratic Leader David Lewis sharply criticized the decision, Mr. Trudeau's office issued statistics to show that this will be the second-fastest opening of Parliament by a minority government. The quickest was in 1963. Two Conservative governments had taken longer.

Sources close to the prime minister said that he, and a majority of his cabinet, favored a January opening after the results of the Oct. 30 general election were known. But some ministers, along with many Liberal MPs who met here last week, urged a December session to avoid opposition allegations that the minority government was afraid to meet Parliament.

At the moment, in the midst of four recounts, the Liberals hold 109 seats, the Conservatives 107, the New Democrats 31 and Social Credit 16. There are two independents.

Mr. Stanfield, who argues that the Liberals have no mandate to govern, said Thursday night that Parliament should be called for December rather than waiting while unemployment, inflation and other economic ills continue to take their toll.

He said a government that has been in power for five years shouldn't take that long to reorganize itself.

Mr. Lewis, who said he earlier had rejected suggestions of an alliance with the Liberals, told reporters that the prime minister made a poor decision.

"People are waiting for something to be done." If Parliament met in December, the government would "be free to do concrete things after the new year."

Mr. Trudeau told reporters the main reason for waiting until then was preparation of the "very important" legislative program which would include "many of the points we learned during the election." He said there would be little difference between a December and January session, since it was unlikely that any bills could be passed before the end of the year.

"Perhaps there are some items the minister of finance will want to announce," the prime minister said, without elaboration.

Patent Medicines Called Dangerous

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec College of Pharmacists Thursday asked for a federal government inquiry into the "uncontrolled use" of patent medicines.

"Uncontrolled use of patent and proprietary medicines constitutes a threat to public health from the standpoint of both the composition of some of the products and existing laws on their manufacture and distribution," Jacques Gagnon, president of the college, said in a statement.

The term 'patent medicines" covers about 2,000 products that do not require a doctor's prescription.

Mr. Gagnon said the college conducted nine patent medicines in laboratory analysis. The find ings showed that in some cases the product is useless and in others it may be harmful if dispensed without the advice of a qualified practitioner.

The college's survey makes these criticisms of drugs studied:

—Dristan, recommended against influenza, contains a decongestant—phenylephrin—which is harmful to diabetics as it raises blood sugar levels;

—Bisodol, an antacid, in the powder form contains 80 times as much sodium ions as it takes for an ulcer although it is generally recognized there is a high risk in such high levels of sodium ions for cardio-vascular sufferers;

—Rolaids, antacid tablets, also contain sodium ions;

—Madelon, recommended for neuralgia, rheumatism and rheumatic pain, contains phenacetin, a drug condemned following scientific investigation as a possible cause of kidney ailments;

—Anacin, advertised for quick pain relief, contains heavy amounts of acetylsalicilic acid;

—Ex-Lax, a laxative, contains phenolphthalein, a highly irritating substance that can cause colic, "enteritis, palpitation breathing difficulties and skin eruptions;

—Bromo Seltzer, a remedy for stomach upset, headache and nervous irritation, contains acetanilide, a product so toxic it was taken off the list of acceptable drugs, phenacetin and sodium bromide which, if taken regularly accumulate in the blood and can reach poison levels in a few weeks.

Pair Got Passports After Fleeing Jail

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says that two men who escaped from the special correction unit at St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary that it are using newly - issued Canadian passports while at large.

The newspaper says Jacques Mesrine and Jean-Paul Mercier obtained passports at the Montreal passport office about a month ago.

Passport officials in Montreal and Ottawa refused to comment on the report, The Gazette says.

Mesrine and Mercier escaped from the special correction unit near Montreal with four other men who were later recaptured.

Mesine, 35, was serving 10 years for kidnapping, armed robbery and escaping from custody. Mercier, 27, was serving 24 years for armed robbery, armed robbery and car theft.

The Gazette says Mesrine grew his hair out of his moustache and began wearing glasses before applying for a passport in the name of Bruno Joseph Daneveau.

Mercier, who is using the alias Richard Albert Leduc, grew his hair longer and started wearing glasses, the newspaper said.

The newspaper adds that police believe the fugitives are responsible for a series of holdups in the Montreal and Quebec City areas.

Governor Won't Talk - - - Yet
Two Louisiana Students Die

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards says he will not negotiate with students at Southern University—where two young blacks died Thursday in a confrontation with police—until the students renounce violence and return to classes.

The governor declared a state of emergency and had 500 soldiers of the National Guard occupy the campus. His order also prohibited the sale of weapons in the district.

Several hundred students seeking a voice in administrative affairs occupied the administration building Thursday at the university, the largest predominantly black campus in the U.S. They refused to leave at the request of sheriff's deputies and state police.

A smoke bomb was thrown from a crowd of students at the front of the administration building in the direction of an advancing line of policemen.

The police replied with tear gas.

The students scattered and, after the air cleared, two young men lay dead on the sidewalk in a pool of blood.

Coroner Hypolite Landry said the two were killed by shotgun at the point blank range, they fired nothing but tear gas.

Chief Deputy Lone Rives of East Baton Rouge said his men were armed with shotguns and carried five ammunition, but "no sheriff's deputy fired a weapon."

State police spokesmen were not available for comment.

Sheriff Al Amies said his men heard pistol fire coming from the students lined in front of the administration building.

The campus was closed until after Thanksgiving.

Edwards, who had considered black support in his election campaign, said he will act a news conference:

"There aren't white people involved against black people. It's a situation which involves a black administration and a black university, and involves black students."

The violence followed three weeks of unrest at Southern's 9,100-student main campus in Baton Rouge and a branch campus in New Orleans.

Alberta To Boost Gas Levy

EDMONTON (CP) — The energy-hungry areas of Eastern Canada and the United States have been faced with the prospect of dramatic increases in the price they'll pay for natural gas in the wake of the Alberta government's proposal to implement a two-price system for gas.

As described by Premier Peter Lougheed in the legislature Thursday, the proposal gives the natural gas industry until April 1 to April to come up with more money or find itself possibly refused provincial permits to export gas.

While the province has no "legal" authority to increase the price of Alberta gas outside the province, it can control the wellhead price of gas.

The 1971 wellhead price averaged about 16 cents for each unit of one thousand cubic feet. Exported gas was worth $270 million to the Alberta economy.

Mr. Lougheed said boosting the price to 31 cents a thousand cubic feet would bring the province an additional $200 million a year.

"We believe that the mandate we received from the people of Alberta was a mandate to make such changes in policy and direction which would benefit the people of Alberta," he said, referring to his Progressive Conservatives' 1971 election upset of a 36-year-old Social Credit administration under which the province's petroleum boom began in the late 1940s.

"This is one of those major changes."

He said new contracts for gas contain provisions for prices "significantly higher" than those in old contracts but "still below fair value."

The province also proposes to "redetermine" the gas price every two years rather than every five years as recommended last August by the energy resources conservation board.

Lahr, Belleville Ties Strengthened by Visits

When Belleville and Lahr first entered into association in 1959 they had no idea that we would be getting into new things. It will be like going to finishing school in Lahr."

For Canadians, such a visit will mean total immersion in German, something Dr. Scott says he thinks will not be a problem.

The summer exchanges would be more social than the education - oriented winter trips, he said.

Managing the program is the International Rotary Club, which has a solid nucleus of members in each community.

Only a substantial building block is the Canadian Armed Forces. The organizers hope to have the students transported via buses at Trenton and Lahr but details must still be worked out before, selection of individuals can begin.

"They said they would favorably consider our request," said Dr. Scott, indicating a positive announcement may soon be forthcoming.

The Lahr delegation also expressed a desire to send hospital personnel to Belleville to observe administration and technical procedures employed here. In exchange, employees at BGH could visit Lahr's new hospital which, thanks to the youthful base nearby, brings more Canadian babies into the world than Germans.

Communication has either begun or will soon get under way between the cities' union members, arts enthusiasts and sports administrators. In addition, a pen pal program is being initiated in schools in both communities.

But best of all, said Dr. Scott, "We have a home now from home. Anyone from Belleville will be welcomed in Lahr."

Hospital Board Studies Parking Garage Plans

Belleville General Hospital's planning committee, armed with plans for a new parking garage presented to it privately Thursday, will make recommendations for a solution to the BGH parking problem at the next board meeting Dec. 5.

Greer, Galloway Associates have presented three alternate plans for garages to the committee. The smallest and one most likely to get approved — if any are — would contain approximately 160 parking spaces at a cost of $1,367 per space.

This building would be for two levels of parking above an ambulance garage. The Ontario Hospital Services Commission has called for ambulance facilities.

Cost range for parking garages in Ontario is listed at $295,520 for a 160-space structure to just under $575,000 for a 450-space garage, largest of the Greer, Galloway submissions.

No decision has been made on the best location for a parking garage, nor has one been made on whether to build one at all. However, Greer, Galloway plans show the garage at the southeast side of the hospital lower-level.

One major policy question that still must be settled relates to whether the parking should be free or on a cost-to-the-user basis.

New Faces Will Replace Veterans

PICTON (Staff)—In Prince Edward County this year several veteran municipal politicians will retire.

Prince Edward County warden Ross Downey, who is reeve of Hillier declined to stand for re-election this term and the reeveship now will be contested by Donald Sutton, a township councillor and deputy-reeve Lewis Wight.

Reeve of North Marysburgh Harold Harrison also will retire next month, and Jack Wells will become acting-reeve by acclamation.

In Ameliasburgh township, deputy reeve Harrison Post has retired and this office will be filled by Ross Mallory.

Hallowell reeve George Vincent, a council veteran of 10 years this year declined to seek re-election and deputy reeve Keith MacDonald became reeve by acclamation.

Mr. Vincent will remain active in community affairs as representative in Prince Edward ward.

In Picton, councillors Harry Abram, Corey Walraven and Harold McLaughlin will retire. Mr. McLoughlan is a veteran councillor, with many years took an active interest in town recreation.

Several former municipal politicians are returning to municipal politics this term, among them former Wellington reeve Robert Boyce, who will battle with incumbent Douglas Marvin for this office.

In South Marysburgh, former reeve Allan Bleeker will seek election against incumbent Clifford Walker, Mr. Ralfey was defeated by the present reeve in 1970.

Beside Dolmage, a former Athol township councillor, will again make a bid for public office, vying for a seat on the Prince Edward County board of education against incumbent Hutton Martin.

A number of councillors this year are making bids for higher office, among them Picton deputy reeve James Bird, who will contest the reeveship against incumbent Albert Pleuth. Mr. Bird, a elementary school teacher, is Councillor Ross Cronkwright of Picton will seek office in deputy reeve opposing Donald King, a former councillor returning to the political scene.

Grant Buys Riverbank Property

The Lower Trent Conservation Authority will receive a provincial grant of $3,340 to assist in the establishment of a green belt area in Trenton.

The money will be used to assist in the purchase of a river bank lot of Lot 11 on the east side of Front Street. The property has an area of 33 by 50 feet and has frontage on the Trent River. A 1½-storey frame building on the property will be demolished.

The above property will be the first of six acquisitions proposed by the authority along the river for establishment of a green belt area and to beautify the shoreline of river banks.

All member municipalities in the authority are designated as benefiting and will share the authority's share of the cost.

Parks Board Resists Hospital Parking on Bay

Members of the Belleville Parks Board of Management are not likely to go along with any suggestion that the Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors be allowed to build a bayfront property be used to help ease the hospital's parking problems.

This was indicated Thursday night at the monthly meeting of the city parks board.

Alderman Gerald Joyce brought the matter to the attention of the parks board as he referred to discussions yesterday at a special hospital board parking committee.

Alderman Joyce said that as a parks board member he was opposed to any such proposal and had told the hospital committee that this would likely also be the feeling of the parks board.

There was no formal resolution from the parks board on possible use of bayfront property of the CP tracks being used for hospital parking, but board chairman Alderman Paul Russell said he would go on record as being opposed to the suggestion.

"There is just no way I would approve giving up bayfront property," he said.

As an alternative to use of bayfront property for hospital parking Alderman Joyce said the hospital board was investigating construction of a parking garage north of the tracks on property now residential.

If the proposal was carried through, three residences — one of them already owned by the hospital — would be required along with a small part of another city playground area.

Rezoning of the residential area would be necessary to allow use of the area for a parking garage, the alderman said.

Alderman Joyce said he mentioned the matter to accounts and board members of hospital board thinking.

Four Corners Soon Normal

That daily downtown traffic mess at the city's main four corners will soon be only a bad memory.

At least the Front and Bridge intersection and that section of Bridge Street between the four corners and Lower Bridge will soon be back to normal after weeks of disruption as a result of storm and sanitary sewer installation.

William Tatham, general contractor for the sewer installation project which has ranked as he of enactments, said Thursday that installations between the Lower Bridge and Front Street are nearing completion and that if the weather holds, rain statement will - soon get under way.

"We'll do the repaving as soon as possible Mr. Tatham promised.

But installation of new storm and sanitary sewers, while at the same time maintaining services and stores and also seeing that water, gas and telephone service is not disrupted, can pose its problems, as anyone seeing the maze of underground pipes at the Bridge Street installation may understand.

Before the project started, all underground services were supposedly marked by utilities.

But Mr. Tatham says his work crews can hit unforeseen underground installations that were not marked.

But what wasn't shown on the plans was that another gas line was found running at right angles to the one shown.

"If we had hit that there could have been trouble," said the contractor.

Apple Day Big Success

It was announced that a spell-binding, fair-attaining previous years' efforts.

It was our eighth drive in years," said K. J. Bartlett, a spokesman from last night's meeting.

Proceeds from apple day can be used for the local scouting movement and send scouts on trips.

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls last night.

8.18 p.m. . . . Quinte Hotel; alarm malfunction.

Candy Lovers' Heaven in Campbellford

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

CAMPBELLFORD — A visit to the World's Finest Chocolate factory here is almost like seeing a fairy tale come true. Wall-to-wall chocolates.

At first the aroma of sweetness is almost overpowering — but the visitor soon forgets the smell as he becomes accustomed to it.

So say the workers as well as touring members of the Belleville - Trenton chapter of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association Wednesday.

The visitors toured the First Street plant at an ideal time of year. Best known for their 50-cent, four-ounce milk chocolate and almond bars sold by schools and service organizations, World's Finest has its busiest time during the fall and pre-Christmas season.

In all, says company vice-president Bill McComb, the Campbellford plant's 75-odd workers turn out better than a million pounds of assorted chocolate bars, (oh!) counting another million pounds of raw cocoa powder sold industrially under the trade name Cook Chocolate, for use in cake mixes and chocolate drinks.

At the plant here, cocoa beans are imported from countries on the west coast of Africa, South America and the West Indies. The beans grow only in area 12 degrees north or south of the equator.

Most of the commercially sold chocolate produced here is milk chocolate, although a bittersweet variety, containing twice as much as the milk mixture, is sold as well. The majority of bar sales are in the four and eight - ounce sizes, although giant bars in sizes ranging up to 25 pounds are also available, though usually used for prizes, banquets or as promotion gimmicks.

The entire production line is so complicated to explain, but from the stage of processing cocoa beans, cocoa butter, roasting the almonds, to texturing, whipping, addition of milk under temperature-controlled conditions and pouring into moulds, it is a smoothly run operation that appears to be almost effortless for the workers as they go through their motions.

There are numerous tests conducted before the chocolate is shipped. "We're very strict about quality control," Mr. McComb said.

During their tour of the plant, IAPA members watched as workers occasionally discarded an ill-formed bar of chocolate, or one that had been poorly wrapped. Quality control inspectors Joe Rivard and Karl Howse, also a bacteriologist, were on hand to explain the various tests and steps incorporated.

As for the aroma of chocolate, one 12-year veteran employee said he quickly forgot. he was working in a chocolate factory. "The only time I notice it is when I come back from my three - week vacation."

World's Finest's plant opened here in 1959. One addition was constructed in 1964, another in 1971. Since then, the company's sales operations have been expanded in order that distribution points in centres such as Trenton and Belleville can be established. In many areas, their product is only available through fund - raising organizations.

Barbers' Battle Just Beginning

The Belleville barber struggle promises to be a long one.

In one camp are the 42 employees of the Belleville Barbers Association's 16 member shops.

Opposing them are four shop owners who Monday night resigned from the association after several hours of heated debate.

The fight is over working hours and it would seem both sides have a solid case.

The association is opposed to the rescinding of a city bylaw that would allow barber shops to remain open as long as they want. Secretary Alex Ricard says such a move would negate 40 years of effort to reduce the work week.

But Paul Clare, former association president and spokesman for the renegades, says barbers will still have the option to decide when/ether they'll remain open. All his group wants is freedom to run their businesses as they see fit.

he bylaw stipulates that barber shops must close by 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, as well as one working day during the week. Most shops are closed Sunday and Monday but stay open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. the other days, giving customers 50 hours a week in which to have their locks trimmed.

Mr. Clare's group, however, would like to stay open Thursday and Friday evenings until 9 p.m. and until 6 p.m. on the other four days.

"I feel that if businesses are offering service to the public in a given area, then people deserve to have all the services there open at the same time," he said.

His shop, Paul's Place, is located on Victoria Street, only two stores up the road from Mr. Ricard's shop. Both are within walking distance of Front Street where most stores now remain open until 9 p.m. on Thursday and Friday nights.

"I'm not saying to anyone else that you have to open," he said. "We're asking for the right to do what we want with our businesses."

The barbers' association took a petition to city council Nov. 8 in which they declared their opposition to any change in the bylaw. At the meeting, Mr. Ricard said:

"We don't want to go back to conditions of 40 or 50 years ago with a 70 hour working week." He added that he felt 50 hours was sufficient service to the public.

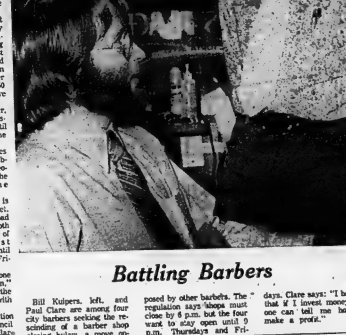
At first, it appeared there was a solution to the problem. Since the bylaw applies only to barber shops, they couldn't the rebels call their stores Hair Care Salons, as Bill Kuipers of the Quinte Hotel proposed?

But upon further investigation, it was discovered that neither city hall nor the Ontario Department of Labor has a classification called salon and therefore could not issue work licences. In fact, only barbers and hairdressers make the list in the hairdressing category.

The breakaway shops, which also include Robert's Barber Shop on Front Street and Sal Marino's shop in Belleville Plaza, have been ignoring the bylaw for several weeks — despite the threat of a maximum $5,000 fine. Clare thinks the reason no charges have been laid is simple: the association realizes the four have a point.

He backs up his claim by pointing to Kingston, where two months ago a similar closing bylaw was rescinded. In Toronto, the regulation was dropped a year and a half ago and most barber shops — particularly in shopping plazas — stay open late.

Kuipers added that in his shop, the three employees are actually down to a 42-hour week with the time to be further reduced after Christmas when he'll begin closing Saturdays at 4:30 p.m. Longer open periods have increased overhead but the extra business and a move to shift work have meant a rise in profits.



Longer hours are necessary for another reason, says Clare. "Being fair stylists, we take longer than with the older straight cut so we feel we should be open evenings."

Such a step, however, would be difficult for many association members who operate their shops without extra help.

In a bid to recruit support for their case, new association president June Clark and secretary Ricard went to the Quinte District Labor Council meeting Tuesday to sound out other workers' views.

The council expressed sympathy and voted to send a letter to the Department of Labor asking for action.

"It's spreading like a dandelion," said Mr. Ricard, who added previous efforts to gain DOL support had been unsuccessful.

Barber

Battling Barbers

Bill Kuipers, left, and Paul Clare are among four city barbers seeking the rescinding of a barber shop closing bylaw, a move opposed by other barbers. The regulation says stores must close by 6 p.m. but the four want to stay open until 9 p.m. Thursdays and Fridays. Clare says: "I believe that if I invest money, no one can tell me how to make a profit."

Head-on Crash Injures Three

BRIGHTON (Staff) — A two car head-on collision on Highway 2 at the Barnovan Beach Road late Wednesday morning sent a young Trenton veterinarian, a Scarboro and a Brighton resident to Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Brighton detachment of Ontario Provincial Police report that a car driven by Adriana Andewel, 24, of Scarboro, and one driven by Dr. John Lange, 28, of 469 Dundas St. West, Trenton, met on a curve on the highway at 11:30 a.m.

Both drivers have been admitted to Trenton Memorial Hospital. A passenger in the first car, Ton Andewerg, 19, of RR2, Brighton, was treated and released.

Initiatives Program

"Junk mail" is the appellation traditionally handed to anything and everything in the way of information from the Government or bureaucracy. The term of course is unfair to a great deal of information that is of consuming interest and indeed importance.

One publication just received is so attractively put together and presented that it just cannot be ignored, even though the programs it describes have come in for their share of criticism.

We refer to Projects by People, a gaily-colored and illustrated booklet put out by Information Canada and specifically Manpower and Immigration. It describes what the department refers to as 34 imaginative and successful projects undertaken during 1971-72 and which represent only a sampling of the many thousands undertaken.

Each is illustrated by some anonymous but clearly bright-eyed artist whose work goes far toward showing the reader just what the programs are all about. His characters are believable and cheerful looking and his colors are vibrant without being garish. The men are handsome in a way that is credible. The women good looking also and you have the feeling they are in character too. Indeed it is good reading for a grey November day and you wish that on going outside the same happy faces and the same rich color were more apparent .To that extent this booklet does tend to upstage the rather conservative and grey Canadian scene and the desolate November environment.

The pictures and descriptive material come under such headings as village water supply, store-front lawyer aid (with computer assistance) for the poor, service for native people, helping to forge communlty spirit (as in a Western community where there had been racial divisions), assistance to prison inmates, provision of full-time jobs in theatre, park programs and a host of others.

The brochure is in English and French and a separate release points to a statement by Manpower and Immigration Minister Bryce Mackasey stating that Ottawa will contribute $85,000 to the 1972-73 Local Initiatives Program, noting that once again the dual objectives will be to provide jobs and improve community services.

Of course there has been criticism of some of the programs where they have seemed to be little more than make-work efforts of no real value, but all parties are pretty well agreed that the program is a good one, especially in hard times like now, and that it must be continued. Certainly the information presented by the Government in this regard is as illuminating as it is attractively presented.

Exchange with Lahr

Dr. Philipp Brucker and his fellow visitors from Lahr have returned to Germany after a stay of about a week in Belleville. We trust they enjoyed their sojourn and that they will return one day. The prospect of other exchanges is one to which we look forward, particularly those involving students of the two cities. The twinning of our two communities is a further extension of Belleville's practical interest in the world outside. Rotary has its visitors from South Africa and in January the club welcomes two Australian girls. These are all assurances of progress in the improvement of international understanding at the local level. Long may such exchanges continue.

Pitman is perhaps the first politician to recognize this. And of course he is no longer active.

The second point of keen interest should be taxes.

Bob Bell-Sterfield and David Lewis petitioned personal income tax cuts (though Lewis was going to achieve this by increasing corporate taxes).

Trudeau has been non-committal, though he has said he certainly would have to look at taxes on the evidence of the election.

The fact is that we probably can't afford tax cuts. And we probably don't need them for the reason usually given, to boost the economy.

Tax cuts would have to mean less revenue. And with government at large in Canada overspending this in turn would mean increases in a rate of debt which already causes concern.

As for boosting the economy, there is evidence that there is plenty of money in the hands of consumers now to keep it flowing. And more money in the way of tax cuts could be inflationary.

But taxes would seem to be the most logical point for defeat of the Trudeau government.

If it can't defeat them both the PCs and the NDP would have to vote against it.

So what will the prime minister do?

Both of these matters are of strong importance to the government here.

For it is constantly under the gun on the full employment question. A statement by the prime minister on the practicalities could take the pressure off the province.

And if there were to be a cut in taxes it almost certainly couldn't expect more money from Ottawa.

Arctic Resources Body Under Attack

MPs Take Issue with 'Participatory Democracy' Groups

By FARRELL TESSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—One of the more interesting developments of the past few years has been the rise to prominence of voluntary citizen groups which become directly and forcefully involved in government decisions—and in opposition.

Some of the more outstanding examples of these are Pollution Probe, People or Planes, the Committee for an Independent Canada, and a newer one, the Canadian Arctic Resources Committee.

In most cases, these organizations spring up almost overnight as people get worked up about national, regional or local issues and decide to deal directly with governments from a position of power. And powerful they can be, for many are composed of experts in the field and they have considerable financial resources to enable them to get their argument across to government and the public.

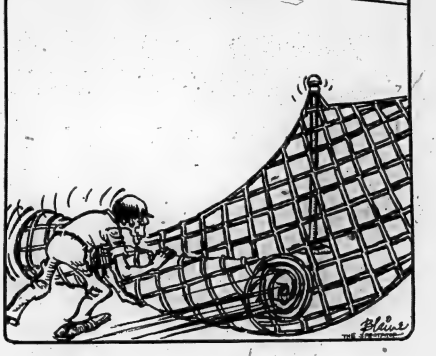
About five years ago Prime Minister Trudeau started to talk about participatory democracy. While he had some success in involving people in the decision-making process through normal political channels, the real participation has been performed by these instant organizations.

The back-bench MP may begin to feel a little restive if the citizens' groups continue to go over their heads directly to the ministerial level and not work through the long-established process of submission to the elected representatives.

Lobbies and influence peddlers have been common on the Ottawa scene for many years but are normally connected with private business and industry or the larger groups organized in labor. If these other groups spring up whenever an issue of any consequence arises it will introduce a whole new concept and tend to make the average back-bench MP feel redundant.

Of course, citizens' groups don't have things all their own way. Some of their conclusions and recommendations already have been attacked by other people interested in the same subjects. A case in point is the Arctic Resources Committee which has involved itself in the argument over the transport of oil and gas from the Far North to southern markets.

The group's main recommendation is that before pipeline applications are received there should be a series of public hearings in the North and in Ottawa so that policy issues can be canvassed. They are concerned that decisions about pipelines, rail lines and highways may be made without full regard to the social, cultural, environmental and economic issues raised.



At least two prominent people have fired back. D. B. Furlong, managing director of the Canadian Petroleum Association, declines critics of the proposed Mackenzie Valley pipeline would have every chance to make their arguments when the National Energy Board holds hearings on any application to construct the line.

"It doesn't seem to matter to these supposedly well-educated people that the arrangements which their supposedly scholarly opinion are based are almost entirely wrong," Mr. Furlong declared.

He noted that some of the research being done by such groups as the Arctic Committee was financed by the federal government and suggested it wasn't exactly ereated to use public funds to support people and views opposed to the petroleum industry.

More significantly, similar statements have come recently from a public servant, the commissioner of the Northwest Territories, Stuart Hodgson, who took a verbal swing at the environmentalists who become instant experts on the North after a single visit.

He said there was a record number of northern visits this past summer by self-styled experts on pollution, pipelines and resource conservation who have been questioning the wisdom of developing the North. He gets impatient with them, complains pipeline construction and noises that the companies already have spent millions in research. He contrasted the attitudes in Canada with those in the Soviet Union where achievements of construction over the problems of permafrost have been hailed as great forward steps. Mr. Hodgson suggested, with considerable reason, that the companies which have invested millions in exploration and research in the North should be encouraged instead of being slighted and, in some cases, condemned.

Continuing Unemployment A Fact of Life

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

There are two points to be particularly watched for as Prime Minister Trudeau announces his new plans resulting from the federal election.

The promise of the prime minister has been that he will do something about employment.

He thus joins the PCs and the NDP, both of which have been preaching full employment.

But in dealing with the question one has to wonder whether the prime minister will face the public with the fact he must already know: That full employment is no longer possible in our present life style.

No active politician to date that I know of has been willing to acknowledge this to the public. But a good many of them must know it.

In this vein it was interesting to read Walter Pitman, former NDP leadership contestant and member for Peterborough, recognize it in the Toronto Star. In commenting on the election, he said this:

"No party trusted the electorate to understand the context of a steady-state society in which economic growth and full employment were both illusory."

Pitman is perhaps the first politician to recognize this. And of course he is no longer active.

The second point of keen interest should be taxes.

Bob Bell-Sterfield and David Lewis petitioned personal income tax cuts (though Lewis was going to achieve this by increasing corporate taxes).

Trudeau has been non-committal, though he has said he certainly would have to look at taxes on the evidence of the election.

The fact is that we probably can't afford tax cuts. And we probably don't need them for the reason usually given, to boost the economy.

Tax cuts would have to mean less revenue. And with government at large in Canada overspending this in turn would mean increases in a rate of debt which already causes concern.

As for boosting the economy, there is evidence that there is plenty of money in the hands of consumers now to keep it flowing. And more money in the way of tax cuts could be inflationary.

But taxes would seem to be the most logical point for defeat of the Trudeau government.

If it can't defeat them both the PCs and the NDP would have to vote against it.

So what will the prime minister do?

Both of these matters are of strong importance to the government here.

Vancouver Island, Hudson's Bay Co.'s last territorial possession on the Pacific, was amalgamated with the British government colony of B.C. 106 years ago today—in 1866—leaving Rupert's Land still ruled outright by the company. The island had had a form of government since 1850 but only a few hundred white residents lived there and the legislature, inaugurated in 1856, had spent nothing on roads and bridges. There was no opposition to the island uniting with B.C. because both were in debt, and prospects of joining the Canadian federation provided the necessary spur.

Hijacking Menace: Only A Handful of Countries Seem Opposed to Counter Action

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst

A week's strike by all of them would probably bring the international machinery around to a quick and workable solution.

The world has returned to a discussion of solving the skyjacker menace. And again, everyone seems stymied by circumstances, despite the fact the most recent hijacking of a Southern Airways DC-9 almost ended in a fiasco.

The previously-proposed solutions are cropping up again. These include a United Nations declared boycott of any country harboring skyjackers, chiefly Cuba, Algeria and Libya and refusal to fly into such countries, or to permit their aircraft to service nations where hijackings have taken place.

The most effective solution so far had been the one-day worldwide boycott of the airlines and their pilots—a measure they threaten to take again for an extended period and would take if all else fails.

World action, even in the face of last week's, near-total disaster, will be hampered by revolutionary countries who view skyjackers, chiefly those of the Palestinian Liberation Movement, varieties as heroes and warriors for a cause.

Libya's fanatical Moslem president, Colonel Quadafi, has made it quite clear something which even Cuba's Castro has never done—that his country is a legitimate and welcome refuge for Palestinian guerrillas who hijack aircraft and kill Israelis—athletes or any other kind.

The Cuban announcement of life-long imprisonment in Cuban jails for last week's hijackers puts a new complexion on the entire Cuban reaction to hijackings to Havana. If we are going to go the route of an extradition treaty wi h Cuba, a place where Canada could and would try U.S. follow, then Ottawa should speed up negotiations currently with the Cubans over such a treaty with Canada.

One point seems clear by the most recent, near-tragic incident, is that the U.S. policy of on-the-scene acts against aircraft under control of hijackers, could be fatal to crew, passengers and even the aircraft.

The FBI is under severe criticism in the United States—and should be—for firing into the front of the Southern Airways DC-9 on ascent. If pieces of rubber tire had penetrated the jet engines, the aircraft would surely have crashed.

Major studies of the similar paranoical attitudes of almost all hijackers tend to date, indicate that violence of any kind will only trigger the mental unbalance which has turned them into air pirates.

One of the chief of these, published in book form, was written by an author who did most of these studies for the U.S. government and claims he was rejected because of his pessive conclusions.

The fact is almost every time someone has gone to the aid of while an aircraft is under hijacker control, innocents have been killed or wounded. The tactics who are hardline in this regard, have stopped passengers and crew with bullets while trying to kill the hijackers.

Remember the retired CN train conductor, unnecessarily killed on a flight to California by lethal bullets fired in the plane.

No, the answer is not this sort of trigger-happy, futile response, but massive action at a very high level against countries and airlines which condone hijackers or are sloppy about passenger security methods.

Even now, after almost five years of near-or-less steady hijackings, no one is prepared to get really tough, except the world's airline's pilots.

Pepin Could Be Retained

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

Whether the Liberals have 109 or 108 seats in the House of Commons is not a matter of great importance. Either way they are a long way from the 133 they need to hold a majority.

When the difference between 99 and 108 turns out to be the Drummond, Que., seat held in the last Parliament by Trade Minister Jean Luc Pepin, it does matter. Mr. Pepin was one of the two or three most useful members of the Trudeau cabinet. Regardless of party preference, it is a serious loss to Canada that he has lost the seat by judicial recount.

Perhaps the greatest threat faced by the Canadian economy now is the pressure being applied by the government of the United States to force a shift in the balance of trade between the two countries. Stated in the simplest possible terms, the Richard Nixon administration wants to make more jobs for Americans by making fewer jobs for Canadians.

The trade negotiations which were going on between Ottawa and Washington ended in a halt while both countries were having elections. Now that President Nixon is more firmly in the saddle than ever, his government can be expected to resume its push for rewriting trade pacts, and especially the trade pact, to make more Canadian money flow to the United States and more American money flow to Canada.

In this difficult dickering Mr. Pepin has been a powerful man. He seems to have been handling the job from the Canadian side of the bargaining table, at least as well as could be expected. It is unlikely that a new face, shoved into the job of trade minister, could carry on as well.

Even though a judicial recount has declared him defeated, he is not officially. He can, and we hope will, continue in his minister of trade at least until Parliament meets.

Assuming that the Liberals will continue in power for at least some weeks or months after Parliament meets, it is desirable in the interests of all Canadians that Mr. Pepin should keep on the lead, the Canadian team in negotiations with the United States. There is a good case for opening a safe Liberal seat, by the resignation of its newly-elected member, to guarantee Mr. Pepin a place in Parliament.

There are vacancies in the senate. There are surely elected Liberal members who are less useful to the country than Mr. Pepin, who would have their wounded feelings suitably soothed by a senatorial appointment, change for awaiting a House of Commons seat.

Three Recounts Yet to Be Made

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons political lineup depends on three more judicial recounts in constituencies where first tallies showed New Democrats ahead in two and Social Credit in the other.

Expected shortly are recount results in Meadow Lake, Sask., and Portneuf, Que. The recount in Burnaby-Seymour, B.C., is expected next week.

Current standings, following eight other recounts, including a couple of reversals, show 109 Liberals, 107 Progressive Conservatives, 31 New Democrats, 15 Social Credit and two independent.

In the official post-election counts, the New Democratic Party had Meadow Lake by 30 votes over the Conservatives and Burnaby-Seymour by 257 over the Liberals. Social Credit was holding Portneuf by 363 votes over a Liberal.

Last Friday, a recount in Drummond, Que., made it a 208-208 deadlock of the two biggest parties. A recount reversal in Ontario riding Wednesday put the Liberals ahead again 109-107 by returning Liberal Norman Cafik to the House.

Chief Electoral Officer Jean-Marc Hamel received results Thursday of a recount in Okanagan-Kootenay, B.C., which confirmed the re-election of Liberal Douglas Stewart by a margin of 197 votes over Conservative Howard Johnston.

Others were election-night results have been confirmed by recounts, and reported recently to the chief electoral office include Sault Ste. Marie, where New Democrat Cyril Symes won by 228; Kitchener, a win by more than 200 for Keith Hymmen, and Nickel Belt, Ont., where New Democrat John Rodriguez was confirmed a winner by more than 1,000 votes.

PC McGee Studies Possibility of Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyers for Progressive Conservative Frank McGee are studying whether he should appeal his four-vote election recount upset in Ontario riding.

Wednesday's upset, following four days of ballot counting by Ontario County Judge Joseph Kelly, returns Norman Cafik, 43, for his second term representing the riding in the House of Commons.

Mr. McGee, vice-president of a public relations company here, said Thursday he does not know how long it will take his lawyers to decide what his chances are to appeal the judicial count to a higher court or in what court to launch the appeal.

Mr. McGee, 46, won the seat last east year Tuesday by a margin of 12 votes in the Oct. 30 election night count. The margin was later increased by one in the official count.

Towns Too Timid With Developers

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP) — leadership in proper land use, lack of municipal planning was one factor that forced the Ontario government to provide

"Municipal officials for years have demonstrated an unreasonable fear that unless developers can dictate their own terms, they will go elsewhere," he told the Grey-Bruce Ontario Real Estate Association.

"As a result, the community has all too often seen precious land resources absorbed into development schemes without any real regard for community needs."

While there were restrictions on the use of land, particularly zoning bylaws, "the evidence points to the fact that land use still has been determined by short-term economic considerations."

Group Named To Examine Housing Needs

TORONTO (CP) — A developer, businessman and a citizens' action group are represented on a provincially appointed advisory committee to examine Ontario's role in providing public and private housing.

The nine members of the committee, under chairman E. Conway, a Toronto planning consultant, were announced Wednesday by Premier William Davis.

Chief task of the committee will be to examine the housing situation, review studies already done at all governments levels, and study the experiences of the Ontario Housing Corp. (OHC)

Emeritus E. Clow of Thunder Bay, OHC chairman, was named to the committee, as well as Peter Burns, director of community renewal for Ottawa, and Margaret Scrivener, member of the legislature for Toronto St. David.

Butter Imports Seen As Likely

TORONTO (CP) — Canada will probably have to import butter this winter, the chairman of the Canadian Dairy Commission has warned.

Speaking to the annual convention of the Ontario Dairy Council Thursday, S. C. Barry attributed the need for imports to adverse weather and crop conditions in eastern Ontario and Quebec.

Buying a new car? It's a tough decision to make.

This one. That one. Two-door. Four-door.

It's enough to boggle the mind. When you get right down to it though, it's really a question of "does this car meet my needs, and is the price right?"

We think we can help take some of the hassle out of that big decision.

Every '73 Dodge, big or small, has more of the features you want as standard equipment so you don't have to pay extra for them as options. Naturally, we've retained the features that have made Dodge famous for dependability over the years, like Unibody construction, Torsion-Bar Suspension, 7-stage rustproofing, etc.

But here's what we've done for you in 1973. All '73 Dodge six and 8 cyl. engines have the revolutionary new Electronic Ignition System.

No points. No condenser to replace.

Front disc brakes are standard across the board too (except 6 cyl. Darts). On our full-sized Monaco and Polara's, as well as the above items, at no extra cost you get Chrysler-Quiet Ride, Torqueflite automatic transmission, power steering, new impact absorbing bumper systems, color-keyed carpeting and heater/defroster system with upper level ventilation.

Phewww!

To sum up. It doesn't really matter which new Dodge takes your fancy, the sub-compact Colt, compacts like Dart and Challenger, intermediates like the "Chrysler Quiet" Charger and Coronet, or the really big ones like Monaco/Polara.

More standard features, innovative engineering plus extra care in every detail, make us believe your new Dodge is the best Dodge we've ever built.

Mandarin Oranges Arriving Now

Toronto — Mandarin oranges from Japan, a time-honored feature of Christmas festivities across Canada, began arriving in the port of Vancouver the weekend of November 11.

Importers say no shortage of Japanese mandarin oranges is likely this season, anywhere in Canada.

Shipments are expected to total 4.3 million boxes compared to 3.8 million last year. Nine vessels are scheduled to land Japanese oranges on Canada's Pacific Coast between now and early December.

As soon as each ship arrives the succulent fresh fruit is transported quickly to retail outlets so that it is available to consumers in peak condition.

Growers in Japan are reported to be harvesting a bumper orange crop estimated at 3,360,000 tons.

Canadians use Japanese mandarin oranges to stuff Christmas stockings, to prepare decorative centrepieces and, of course, to eat as a dessert or anytime snack. The holiday season just wouldn't be the same without them.

Demand has increased over the years to the point where Canadians consume more fresh Japanese mandarin oranges than the people of any other country outside Japan.

Can Teen-age Alcoholism Be Properly Curbed?

By DORIS CLARK

Swedish people, especially youths, drink to get drunk. There is no real Swedish tradition of social drinking.

A seemingly oppressive bureaucracy and a lack of leisure activities mitigate against temperance and government efforts to control alcoholism.

The only solution that has worked to date in dealing with Swedish alcoholism is to find more leisure activities for teen-agers. — from The Journal, Addiction Research Foundation of Ontario.

Well, I haven't noticed an oppressive bureaucracy in Canada, nor lack of leisure activities either, but there are still those, in Canada, who drink to get drunk. What are they escaping? Does it work?

Dear Doris: We would like to give our parents a surprise supper for their 30th wedding anniversary, with family and a few close friends For a gift we would like to send them to Great Britain as they have not been away alone together since 1942.

Now for my questions:

1. Would it be proper to suggest a contribution in the trip rather than any other gift from guests?

2. Would it be acceptable to place the corsage or boutonniere at my parents' places as guest of honor?

3. Do you recommend serving liquor? I thought a glass of wine to toast them would be sufficient, with a fruit drink for the children.

4. Who makes the speech, proposing the toast?

5. Should the gift (just an envelope, I hope) be presented before or after dinner?

6. Is it correct for us all to shout "Surprise!", when we bring them into the dining room? — B.S.

Dear B.S.: The gift of a trip abroad ought to be the top!

1. It is not proper to even expect a gift at a 30th anniversary. But if you are asked for a suggestion you could make it known that contributions to the Great Britain fund would be gratefully received.

2. Wouldn't it be better to pin the flowers on them before they came in to dinner?

3. Wine for a toast is fine, with fruit drinks at the children's places.

4. The eldest son or a close family friend. Pick somebody who can be counted on for a brief and entertaining eulogy.

5. After the dinner, by the eldest son or daughter.

6. If you like. But can you really pull an event like this off as a complete surprise?

Dear Doris: I am planning to have a birthday party in December for my little girl who will be six years old. I want to make it a special one for her, since I am getting tired of the routine hot dog, hamburger and cake parties. I would like to invite some of the mothers too. — Early Starting.

Dear Early: How about a Pet Party? Children of six love pets — both family and imaginary ones. Make a game of modelling animals from modelling clay, give them names, have them act out a puppet show, animal style.

Or do it the other way — have each child turn into a pet, for a nut or candy hunt. They are divided into two teams — puppies and kittens. They start on their hunt and when they find a candy they bark — or meow — until their team captain comes and picks up the hidden goody. Team finding the most nuts or candies wins.

Just before refreshment time, have a quiet time and read a story about a pet. (The library will help here.)

(Do you wonder why t h e people you care about act as they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem, by writing to her in care of this newspaper. And remember that stamped envelope.)

Oranges and Oranges

Mandarin oranges from Japan are coming to Canada again this year, in lots of time for Christmas. Mrs. Seizi Wada, Raymond, 4, and Arlene, 7, were at the Ballantyne Pier in Vancouver when the first of nine shiploads arrived. A record 4.3 million boxes of the taste-tempting fruit will be arriving on the Pacific Coast during the next several weeks.

Ann Landers

Wedding Motto Given

Dear Ann Landers: I've been reading your column for years. You make a lot of sense. But it was your comments on marriage a few weeks ago on your DC radio show that made me sit down and write to you.

As a woman who has suffered with mother-in-law trouble for over 20 years, I can tell you, Ann, your remarks were absolutely the best I've ever heard on the subject. My only regret is that my husband and his mother weren't sitting in the same room with me when you had it. I know they both read your column religiously. Would you do me—and millions of other women who are in my shoes—a big favor and print it in your column?—Oak Park Listener and Reader

Dear Oak: Several listeners have asked me to repeat in print what I said on the radio. I do so with pleasure: If I could hand every newly-married couple a learned motto as a wedding gift, it would say this: "Your first allegiance is to each other. Let no man or woman come between you." I am not suggesting that the parents of newly-married couples join the Foreign Legion. What I AM saying is that the man who is unwilling to put his wife before his mother is not sufficient mature for marriage.

By the same token, the woman who is unable to put her husband before her father and mother is not grown up enough to be a wife. Realigning loyalties can be agonizing, particularly when a parent is involved. Feelings of guilt can play havoc when a choice must be made between two people we love. The mature son or daughter does not feel that marriage imposes such a choice; there are no pangs of guilt attached to leaving momma and poppa.

The mature parent prepares his child to be a central figure in another family. Too often the parent who refuses to let go and insists "my child needs me" is twisting the facts. What he MEANS is, "I need my child."

A mature person recognizes the different kinds of love. It is possible to love—and at the same time—a wife, a mother, a sister and a grandmother; cherry pie, football, Rembrandt, and rock music. But we don't love them all in the same way.

The love between a husband and wife is unique. It should be a combination of admiration, respect, physical desire, mutual interests and mutual goals. In a successful marriage the wife is the number one person in her husband's life, and he occupies the same place in hers and no one can come between them.

Dear Ann Landers: You goofed it, Babe. I refer to the answer you gave to the wife who was feeling guilty because the "stole" money from her drunken-bum husband's wallet while he slept it off. . .

I've been down that road and it's a heller. I grew up honest, but my husband drank like a fish and I had to do what I could to feed our children and keep a roof over our heads. The only way I could manage was to take a few tens out of his billfold while he was asleep. Funny thing, he never missed it.

I got to feeling guilty one day, like the woman who wrote to you, and do you know what my clergyman told me?, He said, "Marriage is a partnership. Whatever your husband makes is half yours so long as you are doing your share as a wife and mother." He advised me to stop feeling guilty and believe me, that one visit changed my entire outlook.

I hope you will print my letter because I'm sure thousands, maybe millions of women are doing the same thing and feeling rotten about it—like I was, before a man of God wised me up.—Clear Conscience In Carolina

Dear Clear: Here's your letter and it was one of dozens that made the same point. Thanks to all who wrote. I see no reason why a wife who must filch from her husband's wallet can't tell the rum-bucket—and stop on doing it.

Hamilton Plans New Arena

HAMILTON (CP) — Major league hockey in the city came a step closer to reality Thursday when plans for a $5-million 10,000-seat stadium in Hamilton's east end were announced by Mayor Vic Copps.

Plans for the new rink, to sit on 20 acres of city-owned land, were submitted by a group led by Hamilton lawyer Henry Katz and stockbroker Doug McKay, a former partner with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League.

Copps said the proposal was one of six considered and will be recommended to city council at its next sitting, Nov. 27.

The agreement calls for purchase of the land by the Hamilton Coliseum Group at $15,000 an acre. The private company would build and operate the arena—to seat 10,000 initially with later expansion to accommodate 16,000 to 17,000 a possibility.

The city, in turn, would agree to rent the arena facilities for a minimum $35,000 a year over the next 30 years. This money would help the group arrange financing of the project.

Copps said the city also would have to undertake to provide services, including major roadwork, to the site.

Smoke Fumes Irk Neighbor

Heavy acrid fumes from this large refuse bonfire on the rear yard of the Queens Self Care Unit in East Belleville roused the ire Thursday of a Herchimer Ave. housewife, who asked why the refuse couldn't have been carted off to the dump. No permit is required in the city to burn refuse on private property but persons doing so leave themselves open to possible court action for air pollution.

Fuel Oil Said Dumped in River

Belleville pollution fighters have taken on Leo Contracting Ltd., the company now completing the sanitary sewer up the Moira River.

Members of PACE, the anti-pollution group, have kept a close eye on the sewer project all summer and fall, but their fears proved groundless.

About 3:30 p.m. three employees in the provincial pollution office at 180 Front St. saw a Leo truck pull up to the river bank. George Smith, William Groten and Mrs. William Hockley said they saw the men unload a 200-gallon tank and dump its contents into the river. A film of oil spread over the water and Mr. Smith, who hurried down to the riverbank, noticed a strong smell of diesel fuel.

He telephoned city police and the city authorities, but the truck had departed, leaving the tank to drain its contents into the river.

William Hockley informed the city engineering department Wednesday, and assistant engineer Michael Angelo inspected the site. Because flow was obstructed by the Police Seek Car Owner

City police are looking for the owner of a vehicle that struck a rental taxi and fled along West Dundas Street Thursday night.

The vehicle was later found unoccupied on Everett Street. Only the driver was in the cab and he was not injured. Damage to both cars totalled $50.

The hit and run occurred shortly after 9 p.m. near the Four Seasons Hotel front entrance.

Nick Mika, Publisher of Canadiana

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

Nick Mika has another goal for himself.

With his wife, Helma, he has realized his life-long ambition of establishing a publishing house. Now, as the tenth anniversary of the charter-ing of their business approaches, Nick is determined to produce almost as many books in the next year as he has done since Mika Silk Screening Ltd. began.

The Mikas have 62 books to their credit now and they are aiming to release 50 titles in 1973.

They came to Canada from Germany in 1948, worked hard and in 1955 started a basement silk screen shop, basis of a business that has exhibited consistent growth ever since.

By 1958, the Mika studio had moved to Dussek St. and had made a solid local reputation for itself. With Bruce Graham, in November 1962 the firm was incorporated.

A decade later, the company is housed in spacious new quarters at the corner of Stanley and Station Streets and its work has changed greatly.

Nick Mika is no longer in the silk screening business—that is except for a few special projects like making Christmas cards for friends and clients of long standing. The new Mika is essentially a publisher.

"I always wanted to be a publisher," he said, adding he has held this ambition since his youth when he worked as a reporter.

Although the silk screen business has become the vehicle for realization of his dream, the Mika company went for many years (until 1966) without turning out one book.

Backbone of the enterprise for many years were such jobs as silk screening the numbers on close to a million telephone dials for General Electric, doing the lettering on shortwave radio dials for Canadian Marconi Ltd. and putting silk screened stripes on leather to be used in the production of Bata Shoes.

Mika's factory in Belleville came in 1966, the first of the cando's publications, a volume replete with silk screened views of the city.

"Centennial Year woke up Canada," says Mika. "It made the country more nationalistic." It was in 1967 that he and Helma produced illustrated histories of Trenton and Kingston and began to see the potential for Canadian historical texts.

Subsequently, 16 facsimile productions of old county atlases have been made. Of these, one on Frontenac County has been the biggest success with 2,000 volumes sold.

However, the Mika's Mosaic of Canada that tells the history of the country through silk screenings of pictorial postage stamps is number one, having sold more than 6,000 copies.

Nick Mika says newspaper advertising is the backbone of the company's marketing approach. "We advertise heavily in papers . . . they are our best salesmen."

He states candidly he has learned from mistakes. "I have learned never to have too much supply on hand—do not buy what you do not need. Keep your inventory low," Nick advises.

And his business philosophy: "Charge the right price for a quality product — never less money for an inferior product."

The new year will bring the release by Mika of a volume on Frontenac, commissioned by the Kingston Centennial Committee and a 1,200 page dictionary of Ontario.

Then too, there will be more county atlas reproductions.

Which counties will be covered? Mika gives the impression that eventually he will turn out one for every county in the land.

"Every county wants a book," he says knowingly.

None will be silk screened-all will be white prints copies of rare old volumes for which Mika will write forewords, select illustrations, and compose index data.

"I want to leave the silk screening to someone else now . . . I am a publisher," says Nick, as he approaches the company's second decade of operations with a weighty set of new production goals.

Deer Jaws Informative

The collectors: Natural resources ministry biologists.

The reason: Teeth can provide some clearcut clues in conservation of the area's most populous big game animal — the deer.

A deer's age can only be defined by the condition of his teeth. Linked to other information, this can provide department conservationists with a sharply-defined picture of the state of district deer herds.

This year, for the first time, the ministry has asked all deer hunters to turn in the jaws of animals shot during the current hunting season, which closes this weekend.

Hunters also are asked to note the sex of the animal and where it was shot. This also gives a key to herd productivity in specific areas.

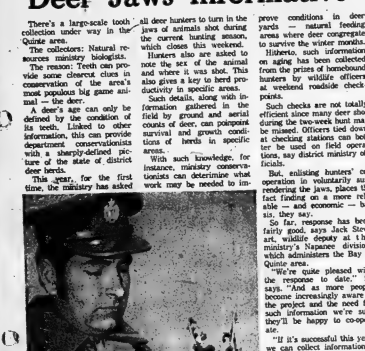
Such details, along with information gathered in the field by ground and aerial counts of deer, can pinpoint survival and growth conditions of herds in specific areas.

With such knowledge, for instance, ministry conservationists can determine what work may be needed to improve conditions in deer yards — natural feeding areas where deer congregate to survive the winter months.

Hitherto, such information on aging has been collected from the prizes of homebound hunters by wildlife officers at weekend roadside checkpoints.

Such checks are not totally efficient since many deer shot during the two-week hunt may be missed. Officers tied down at checking stations can better be used on field operations, say district ministry officials.

But, enlisting hunters' cooperation in voluntarily surrendering the jaws, places the fact finding on a more reliable — and economic — basis, they say.



So far, response has been fairly good, says Jack Stewart, wildlife deputy at the ministry's Napanee division, which administers the Bay of Quinte area.

"We're quite pleased with the response to date," he says. "And as more people become increasingly aware of the project and the need for such information we're sure they'll be happy to co-operate.

"If it's successful this year, we can collect information a lot more cheaply than by the check station method."

Along with the jaws, hunters also — for the second year — are being asked to surrender deer hides, which latter are turned over to northern Ontario Indian handicraft groups.

Both jaws and hides can be handed in at any ministry office and — in the Belleville area — at the Elmwood Inn, home of the Quinte Region Frankford Fish and Game George Woodhouse and the Club.

Indians' Protest Effective

Indians have finally won a skirmish with the politicians.

Radio station CKWS in Kingston will drop the "Stoned Ranger" commercials, regarded as discriminatory by Tyendinaga Mohawks.

Brant Maracle of Tyendinaga led a group of protestors to Kingston last Friday to seek a ban on the commercials. They are sponsored by a Cataraqui car dealer and feature Toronto (Tonto) and Stoned (Loser) Ranger. Mr. Maracle's group claimed they ridiculed Indians.

Mr. Maracle said the radio station had 10 weeks remaining in the contract for broadcasting the twice - daily commercials. He has been informed that broadcasting will cease this Friday.

Trucker Cleared

The truck driver who inadvertently caused a light standard to fall and pulled a hydro conductor from a house following a North Front Street accident Tuesday evening, has been cleared by police.

Fred Stratton, of 128-D North Park Street, had been sought by police.

He was driving by the accident which sent three passengers to hospital. His rental truck caught wires knocked down in the accident and dragged the standard, which, when it struck a hydro control process which goes into operation.

But, if assessment of a prediction situation indicates wolves, the control program will be organized in the area.

However, the ministry does not "indiscriminately" trap wolves, emphasizes the ministry deputy.

Offhand, he estimated the number of wolf bounty claims has remained "fairly constant," although traditionally more wolves are shot in deer-hunting season — likely due to the fact more sportsmen are in the bush at that time of year.

Anticipations are that such bounties may be revoked and replaced by a damages legislation — with funds used for predation reparations and predator control programs.

Official bounty remuneration currently is $2 — 60 per cent paid by county governments and the remainder by the province.

Provincial Ministry Starts Predator Control Program

It was the latest such project instituted by natural resources ministry wildlife officials in a predator-control program that has become more intensive in the past few years.

Reports of such attacks have been on the increase in recent times.

But this doesn't necessarily mean an increase in the number of predators, probably coyotes — the small bush wolvers which are the most common of big predators in the Bay of Quinte region, says Jack Stewart, wildlife deputy at the ministry's Napanee division.

For one thing, the public is becoming more aware of such control programs and hence may be reporting incidents more frequently, he says.

A decline in natural food of predators — notably rabbits — may also be a factor.

But also significant is the fact there's evidence not all predators are coyotes. Some attacks can be traced to dogs running at large.

For instance in the Shannonville-area incident, when predator control was launched — with traps set by an experienced trapper — six coyotes and three dogs were caught.

"These dogs belong to somebody — not necessarily neighbors, since dogs can run over quite large areas," says the wildlife official.

There are side effects to dogs running at large. At times they will cross-breed with coyotes — producing a hybrid species, bigger, stronger, more productive, without the natural fear of man-inherent in a wolf.

Rural residents should exercise more control over dogs, since even the most harmless-seeming canine could unknowingly be involved in predation.

"You can't generalize on predation — you've got to go in and find out," he says.

While the way sheep are killed may indicate the species of the attacker there is no "foolproof" method of identification until the animals are caught.

People often are "surprised" when canines are proved among the predators. And if dogs are responsible, wildlife officials cannot be involved.

The fact reports may be up to the whole indication on the predator situation either, says Mr. Stewart. Some incidents, he believes, may have gone unreported in the past.

The "natural assumption" in such cases is that "wolves are over-running the country. But that is not necessarily so."

When wildlife food sources diminish, wolves have a natural birth control process which goes into operation.

But, if assessment of a predation situation indicates wolves, the control program will be organized in the area.

However, the ministry does not "indiscriminately" trap wolves, emphasizes the ministry deputy.

Offhand, he estimated the number of wolf bounty claims has remained "fairly constant," although traditionally more wolves are shot in deer-hunting season — likely due to the fact more sportsmen are in the bush at that time of year.

Anticipations are that such bounties may be revoked and replaced by a damages legislation — with funds used for predation reparations and predator control programs.

Official bounty remuneration currently is $2 — 60 per cent paid by county governments and the remainder by the province.

Shoplifters Jailed

Teresa Baker was given six days in custody and Sandra Cain four after both were found guilty of theft under $200. Mrs. Baker was convicted on six counts of shoplifting, Miss Cain on four.

Their Nov. 7 haul included merchandise, clothing and jewelry taken from six Belleville stores. Value of the stolen goods was $124.65.

In passing sentence, Judge John Chesterfield said millions of dollars worth of merchandise is stolen each year by shoplifters. He added he hoped the sentences would act as deterrents.

North Lakes Icing Over

TWEED (Special) — With overnight temperatures dropping well below the freezing mark, a film of ice is beginning to form over small lakes in the Tweed forest area.

Also ice is forming on the bays of the larger lakes.

The temperature at Tweed last night dropped to 24 degrees but at Bancroft it was mercury dropped to a chilly seven degrees.

Mayor Feels Municipalities To Have Greater Influence

Mayor J. Russell Scott says he feels the federal government's minority position in the house of commons will strengthen the position of municipalities at a pending tri-level conference opening in Toronto next Sunday.

"The municipalities are more important than ever now . . . if the government can get them to agree to legislation, other parties will be more likely to accept it," he said.

Next week's meeting will be the first tri-level federal, provincial, municipal conference and Scott will represent Ontario municipalities.

All municipal associations in the country have combined their efforts to draw up a common presentation to the conference through a joint municipal committee on intergovernmental relations.

This municipal commission that cost $74,000 to prepare, Scott says, is more designed to define the problems of Canada's cities and towns than it is to set forth specific proposals.

However, the mayor says he wants the Toronto gathering to approve the calling of such tri-level conferences on a regular yearly basis. He also advocates establishment of an on-going liaison committee of federal, provincial and municipal representatives.

In Ontario, there is a provincial - municipal liaison committee that brings federal officials of the provincial government with municipal leaders for discussions on pending legislation.

Scott says that in introducing legislation the government frequently mentions that its programs are endorsed by the municipalities and this endorsement often stands in more ready acceptance of programs by opposition parties.

He feels such a tri - level body could add new stability to Canadian government as it enters a new phase of minority government.

"We are more in touch with the thinking of the people . . . Trudeau is just finding out now what the people were thinking. We knew a year and a half ago."

Scott indicated the joint municipal presentation will deal with seven topics: public assistance, taxes and recreation, housing, transportation, environmental protection, policies and financing, the need for co-ordination.

"We can help the senior governments develop good legislation," said the mayor.

Although refusing to discuss details of the municipal position, he did give hints as to the thinking of Canada's cities and towns.

We have to look after the recreational needs of the people for 300 days a year without government assistance . . . both the federal and provincial governments go their own ways and set up national and provincial parks that are of little use to people than municipal facilities by most people," Scott explained.

On the subject of environmental protection, he said, this problem is essentially a municipal problem. . . we should have liaison on these matters as cleaning up the Great Lakes."

He feels that the cities should be contributing to the drafting process for new legislation at the federal level, as they do with provincial legislation in Ontario. "This is far better than getting copies of new laws after they are drawn up for presentation."

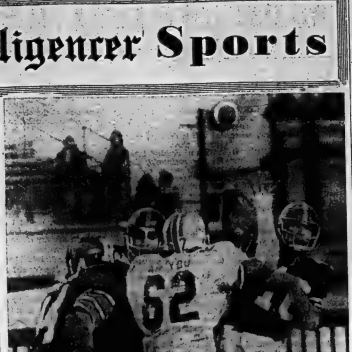
Canada Back In First

TORONTO (CP) — Canada regained the lead over the United States at the Royal Winter Fair Horse Show Thursday when Elizabeth Ashton of Toronto won the Buchanan's Black and White international pairs-puissance event.

Miss Ashton, registered her second victory of the week by guiding Scotch Valley in the 6-foot 6-inch leap that put Canada ahead 68-66 and she increased her own standing to a single point behind leading rider Hoffert Dunlop of Newmarket, Ont.



She was the only rider of five finalists to navigate the puissance course without a knockdown.

"He's a super-horse," Miss Ashton said of her mount, "and definitely Olympic material. Scotch Valley won the first class on time and tonight on a high jump. He can do anything." The horse is owned by Allen Thomson of Toronto.

Jim Elder of Aurora, Ont., came closest to matching Miss Ashton's performance. He rode Intrepid in a flawless round until a fault at the last fence.

Elder finished in a three-way tie for second with Kathy Kusner of the United States and Hugo Arteaga of Mexico. Each had four faults.

Jesus Portugal of Mexico was fifth on Chapultepec with eight faults. Mexico now has 43 points over-all.

Cassata Connects

Ottawa quarterback Rick Cassata gets away a pass despite the efforts of Montreal's Junior Ah You during Eastern Football Conference semi-final action in Ottawa Saturday. Rough Riders defeated the Alouettes 14-11 to advance to the EFC finals against Hamilton Tiger Cats this Saturday.

Gayford Speaks Out

TORONTO (CP) — Tom Gayford, a veteran of Canada's equestrian team, took a few shots Thursday at people who want to set up riding training centres for the team.

He's more interested in seeing better spirit on the team.

"We've got some people around who are looking after themselves all the time, bitching and bellyaching, cutting up the team," he said in an interview. "And they're greedy, like a bunch of kids that want the last piece of cake at a party."

He refused to mention names, but said he wasn't referring to any members of the team competing at the Royal Winter Fair international horse show.

Pearson Awarded Namesake Trophy

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union has created two new awards to be presented in conjunction with the CIAU College Bowl, the national football championship, Nov. 25.

The Mike Pearson Trophy goes to a distinguished Canadian citizen of outstanding achievement who, having participated in intercollegiate athletics, has by personal accomplishment exemplified the ideals and purposes of intercollegiate athletics and amateur sports.

The other goes to a member of the news media who has made a major contribution to the development of intercollegiate sport.

The first winners are Lester (Mike) Pearson, former Prime Minister and Bob Gage, sports writer for the London Free Press.

"It is only fitting that Mr. Pearson be the first recipient of the trophy bearing his name," said Carl Totzke of University of Waterloo, president of the CIAU.

Pearson played rugby, football, basketball and hockey for the University of Toronto and lacrosse for St. Johns College, Oxford. He also coached football, hockey and lacrosse at U. of T.

Gage, who has been with the Free Press since 1940, has covered all sports and has not missed a Western basketball home game during that time. He i a member of the organizing committee of Canadian Intercollegiate Sports Reporters' Association.

Totzke and CIAU executive director Bob Pugh of Ottawa also announced the names of four conference nominees for the Hec Crighton Trophy as the outstanding CIAU football player.

They are Bill Robinson, Toronto, quarterback for the champion St. Mary's University, Bluenose Conference; Dave McGillis, Calgary, halfback with the University of Calgary, Western Conference; Chris Rumball, Ancaster, defensive halfback for McGill Redmen, Quebec Conference; and Andy Parichi, quarterback for Windsor Lancers, Ontario Conference.

Hockey Pucks Hot Items

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Where do all the pucks go in the winter time:

Well, such of them as elude the desperate grasp of National Hockey League goalies, go to Parry Sound, Ont.

Why Parry Sound? Because that's where Dr. Bud Wright ministers to the maladies of the populace while operating in his spare time a firm called Hockey Diversified.

HD buys the goal-scoring pucks from the NHL. It x-rays them and takes their fingerprints, then mounts them on a brushed-aluminum plaque for sale to the public.

Dr. Wright, 36 cabouts with Jim Brendle, a Scarsdales, Ont., trade magazine editor, have watched hockey crowds battling for scrap pucks in the stands and have decided there's money in it.

It's no small deal. So far this year, about 800 goals have been scored in the NHL.

Neither Dr. Wright nor Brendle will disclose how much they're paying NHL Services Ltd. for the pucks, nor how much they plan to charge for the finished product. There are still a few bugs to work out.

"We're still perfecting the cartons the pucks will use to mail the pucks to us," Dr. Wright says.

Also, "we received a prototype plaque and we didn't like it, so back it went."

"When we have it perfected, it will have an NHL crest at the top and it will say Registered Goal Collectors Series 1972-73. All the pertinent information about the goal will be printed there—the number of the goal for the player, who assisted, everything a collector might want to know."

But what about the ones the players might want to keep? Errol Thompson of Toronto Maple Leafs scored his first NHL goal regularly. After he beat goalie Roy Edwards of Detroit Red Wings, he had to beat linesman Neil Armstrong to the puck.

"They weren't taking that one on me," he said. "I was told later I would have got the puck back. I didn't know that then."

There "plateau pucks" as Dr. Wright calls them, are mounted and returned free to the player who scored.

But who wants a puck from the sticks of the great unknowns in the NHL?

"Some chap might want to collect a puck from every player with the Leafs, for instance." Dr. Wright rationalizes.

Ottawa Hopes To Snap Loss String

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When Ottawa Rough Riders entertain Hamilton this Saturday in the first game of a two-game total-point Eastern Football Conference final, they will be trying to snap a streak of three losses to the Tiger-Cats.

In four games between the two clubs this year, Ottawa won only one—an exhibition contest July 6 in Hamilton. The Tiger-Cats took all three regular-season matches, including two in Ottawa's Lansdowne Park.

This is how they went:

Hamilton, Sept. 4—A record crowd of 34,772 fans in Ivor Wynne Stadium on Labor Day saw soccer-style kicker Ian Sunter boot a 42-yard field goal with 18 seconds remaining to give Hamilton a 17-16 victory and hand the Rough Riders their first loss of the season.

Rough Riders took a 6-0 lead in the first quarter on two field goals by Gerry Organ and stretched it to 16-14 at the half on another Organ field goal and a touchdown by Wayne Giardino, who pounced on a Chuck Ealey fumble and ran 42 yards into the end zone. Organ made the convert.

Flanker Garney Henley scored the two Tiger-Cat touchdowns, one on a 72-yard scamper, the other on a 29-yard passing play. Sunter converted both.

After a scoreless third quarter, Hamilton kept Ottawa bottled up except for about four minutes. Tiger-Cats took possession on their own 15-yard line with 1:27 remaining worked the ball to the Ottawa 34 and set the stage for Sunter's heroics.

Ottawa, Sept. 16—Quarterback Ealey and Henley combined with a defensive effort that picked off five Ottawa passes to hand the Rough Riders their second defeat in seven games, 30-22, before 25,537 fans in Lansdowne Park.

Ealey, twisting and turning, fired three touchdown passes, two to Henley and a third to Tommy Joe Coffey. Sunter hit for two field goals, a pair of singles and three converts. Bill Van Burkleo rounded out the Tiger-Cat scoring with an insurance single late in the contest. Ottawa's three majors were by Terry Wellesley, Hugh Oldham and Giardino, who gobbled up another Hamilton fumble and ran 81 yards for the score.

Organ made all three converts and picked up a single effort of two attempted field goals.

Ottawa, Oct. 1—Tiger-Cats were cressing to their seventh win in 10 starts until the fourth quarter when Ottawa came to life with two touchdowns by Wellesley and Oldham. But a dying seconds interception snuffed out the Rough Riders' chances and Hamilton finished on top 23-16.

Ealey scored the first Hamilton major in the first quarter and Dave Buchanan added another. Lineman Bruce Smith scored the third after Ottawa quarterback Rick Cassata fumbled the ball when joined by Tiger-Cat end Angelo Mosca kicked the loose ball into the fourth Rider end zone. Wellesley cradled the ball for the six points.

Sunter converted all three and added a 46-yard field goal and a single.

Ottawa's attack, which looked so inept that the home crowd of 25,028 booed, got only two field goals from Organ until the fourth-quarter explosion. He also added the two converts to round out the scoring.

CFL Franchise South of Border?

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian Football League was presented three notices of motion Thursday, including one asking for approval in principle to expand into the United States.

League president Bill Clarke of Regina told a news conference that league officials met for five hours Thursday and spent most of the time discussing expansion into the U.S.".

He said there were no decisions made and that the meeting was of an exploratory nature.

"However, notice of motion was given of three proposals to be decided Dec. 1 at the league meeting in Hamilton."

The president said the motions ask the CFL to approve in principle expansion into the U.S., as well as to deal with an application which has been received "but is not currently before the league," and to "aggressively" pursue expansion in Canada.

"Presumably the motions will stand and will be dealt with at the Grey Cup meeting . . . provided people do not change their minds and withdraw the motions."

Clarke said there are no applications for franchises before the league. An application from New York City was rejected in February and no others have been received since.

The president added, however, that if the CFL were to take the New York party to present its application again, "it would probably be here by morning."

Clarke declined to say who presented the notices of motion at the closed meeting, but said they were not all from one club.

Rogers Lebew, Calgary Stampeders' general manager, said that "no one asked for a vote" on the question of expansion at the meeting.

"I don't think anyone really wanted to vote at this time. We want to get more information, to discuss the ramifications of expansion and especially expansion into the U.S."

Referring to a report that Robert Schmertz, a wealthy New York sports figure, had given the league until Jan. 1 to make a firm decision on expansion into the U.S., Lebew said:

"We all have deadlines. . . . Sometimes we don't meet them and we still live with them."

Pass, Punt, Kick Competition

Lewis Relies on Arm

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

Though David Lewis, Trenton Collegiate's junior football team's quarterback for the past two years, failed to make the Bay of Quinte finals this year, he did make it to Ottawa's Lansdowne Park.

David will be competing in the 15 and under year - old Eastern Canada Divisional playdowns in the Spalding Achievement Awards for Football Canada Fundamentals at half - time during the Hamilton Ti-Cats - Ottawa Rough Riders eastern semi - final game Saturday.

He will be representing the Ottawa division in a kick-pass-punt distance and accuracy contest against boys from the Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, and Hamilton divisions.

"Dave is a well rounded athlete," said David's Trenton football coach Joe DiCresce, "he's a good burdler, and he went to all - Ontario in the triple jump last year. He played bantam basketball in grade nine. This year, he's playing midget all - star hockey, and just finished his second season with Trenton's junior football team.

"Dave's forte is throwing, his kicking is a little weak," said coach DiCresce. David admitted that his kicking needed imhrovement, but said, "I've been practicing for weeks now. Wednesday, I was out in the snow at the field (Trenton's) with some friends. They've been helping me get ready for Saturday."

The Trenton quarterback said of the Ottawa region playdown November the fourth in the nation's capital, that he "practiced for weeks before to get the spiral, but at Lansdowne Park, I kicked a 37 yard punt end over end. "It made me nervous. I looked up, and everyone was looking down at me."

The tenth grade Trenton Collegiate student entered his name in one of the drop bones provided in all Trenton area schools by Knights of Columbus' Burt Garrow who organized the competition for Spalding in Trenton.

"I decided to try it," said David, "most big competitions are usually for the older guys, but this one was for younger ages and the competition probably wouldn't be so cut throat. Since I've got only two months to go to my sixteenth birthday, I just squeaked into the contest."

Though David pulled a muscle while practicing his kicking Wednesday, he said, "never tired. I've been in the competition, I want to go again, it's exciting."

"It's your decision kid—the little car you've always wanted or stock for your eye!"

Sugarman Rink Comes Alive

Greg Packs Punch

Reargards such as Bobby Orr and J. C. Tremblay have described the phrase "offenceman" to hockey vocabulary in recent years, a phrase that describes defencemen with more than their share of offensive ability.

GREG MARCHEN

The Belleville Quintes have a defenceman of these own, who is faring pretty well in the scoring department. Greg Marchen has tallied six times this season to tie Wayne McConnell for second place among the Belleville goalgetters.

The big blueliner has added four assists to give him 10 points and a fourth place ranking in the Quintes' scoring statistics. He trails only the Georgs Godson, Lorne O'Donnell, Al Ferguson trio in that department.

The threesome convinces to provide the bulk of the OHA Senior A team's scoring having tallied 29 of the 49 goals recorded by the Quintes this season.

O'Donnell with 19 points is currently holding down fifth place in the league scoring. Hank Monteith of Oakville paces the point parade with nine goals and 18 assists while teammate Dave Nicholishen is tied for second with Mike Draper and Gary Milroy of Orillia. The trio has recorded 24 points each.

Godson, centre on Belleville's top scoring line, has 18 points on three goals and 15 assists. He is deadlocked with three other players for sixth place in the league standings.

The Quintes lack of hitting, a problem that has plagued them all season, is pointed out by the fact that the team has totalled only 84 minutes in penalties in their 11 appearances to date.

Belleville will be attempting to better their 4 - 7 mark tonight when they face the third place Barrie Flyers in a 9 p.m. bout at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

Tickets for the January 5th meeting with Russia will be on sale at tonight's contest.

Nice Guys Can Finish First

by Eric Emerson
Sports Editor

"NICE GUYS FINISH LAST." — Leo Durocher.

Now I certainly wouldn't dispute Leo's opinion on when to call the hit - and - run, but I would dispute his almost famous quote.

There's a fellow playing football for the Ottawa Rough Riders by the name of Gerry Organ, who definitely qualifies as a "nice guy."

As first - string quarterback with the University of Guelph, he earned the respect of veterans, the admiration of the coaching staff and he was one of the few established players who actually knew the names of even obscure rookies who would furnish "dead meat" for the varsity practice sessions.

Gerry's only drawback as a pickl was that he was pretty bad. At least he was bad enough for head coach Dick Brown to shift him back to tight end part way through the season. As an end he was good but not great. He garnered all-star votes mostly on the strength of his kicking which was, and is, something else again.

DESPITE HIS TALENTED toe, Organ wasn't drafted by any of the CFL teams following graduation in 1970, but, being a nice guy, it wasn't hard for him to get some aid in cracking the pro ranks. One of the Guelph coaching staff helped him draft a letter to the Ottawa Rough Riders asking for a tryout.

Ironically enough that coach was Garney Henley, one of the men who have most to fear from Organ's placement kicking. The Hamilton Tiger-Cat star was a member of the Guelph coaching staff and as such was concerned with finding a spot in the CFL for his protege.

Since Hamilton already had Tommy Joe Coffey, the pair decided to try the Ottawa Rough Riders. Gerry ousted the talented Ivan McMillan from the Rough Riders' roster mainly on the strength of his receiving abilities, something which McMillan couldn't offer.

Despite the fact that his efforts on Gerry's behalf mean that his former pupil will constitute the main scoring threat when the Eastern Conference finals open in Ottawa Saturday, Henley still maintains that "I have no second thoughts at all" about finding him a place on the Rough Riders' roster.

ANOTHER IRONICAL POINT in Saturday's game will be the fact that Henley and another former teammate of Organ's will be stationed in the end zone to run back any wide field goal attempts by the Ottawa kicker.

Dave Clarke, another Guelph graduate has been employed by Hamilton as a kick return specialist. The little speedster broke a 109-yard kickoff return against Montreal early in the season and would like nothing better than to return one of his buddy's boots for a six - pointer.

Organ has earned the respect of CFL teams such as the Ti-Cats by winning back to back scoring championships. He paced the conference last season with 92 points and led the entire CFL this year with 131.

Sometimes, Leo, nice guys finish first.

Teachers Spill Reid's Dairy

Dave Bell passed to Doug Jodoin. Teachers' JoJoin passed to Al Mott. Mott, with 22 seconds left, in the Quinte Hockey League game Thursday, beat Reid's Dairy, goalminder John Gunter for a 3-2 win. The Teachers' win places them in a first place tie-way tie with Reid's in the four team league.

Paul Paddon and Phil Meeks netted the other two goals for the Teachers. Don Goodfellow and Paul Zakos scored a goal apiece for the dairymen in a game that saw two fighting penalties, one bench, and one gross misconduct penalty meted out by the referees.

In other Quinte action, Belvedere stole the tires from beneath the cabbies' hopes of a respectable showing with a 8-2 over Central Tilbs. Central's only two goals both came from Kevin Allen.

Kingston Captures Bonspiel

The Quinte Curling Club's Women's Invitational Bonspiel Thursday saw a Kingston Curling Club rink skipped by Noreen Sugarman take home the Pepsi Trophy for a high score of 29½ over two 10-end games.

Teams from as far as Bancroft made up the 16 rinks that participated in the day long event. Betty Kelsey, Bonspiel Chairwoman, said, "all the women enjoyed themselves. The competition was stiff, but always remained friendly." Noreen Sugarman's rink, with vice Carol Pearson, second Marg MacDonald, and lead Moira O'Reilly took the Pepsi Trophy while the Tweed rink of Genny McCue were runners-up with 29 points.

The third and fourth high west to two other Kingston clubs, B. Carnegie of Kingston Curling Club took third high, while Eva Webster's rink also of KCC came in fourth high.

Mallory Paces Loyalist Win

Reid Mallory's four goals in Thursday's OCAA hockey contest with St. Lawrence College could have won the game for the Loyalist team. But his teammates contributed to Mallory's efforts to wallop the St. Lawrence team 11-3.

Barry Stierson and Barry Rountree tallied two apiece for the Loyalist team, while Dave Ferguson, Gene Berndt and Johnston added on the scoring.

St. Lawrence tallies came from Larry Grady, Ian Howard and Rick Morren with the final.

When we win,

Datsun has won more rally championships than any other car in Canada. Against the best competitors. Under the worst conditions.
So what? Maybe all you really need is a car that behaves sensibly and economically in traffic or on the freeway.
So this: the things that have helped us win rallies are standard equipment on the Datsuns you'll find in your dealer's showroom.
Front disc brakes, overhead cam power, independent rear suspension and tough unit body construction add up to a car that will survive wherever you drive.
And because they're all yours at no extra cost, they also add up to a lot more car for your dollar.
Road-test Canada 'Rally champ at your Datsun dealer's now. You can't lose.

Mac Millan May Laugh Last

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Billy MacMillan may yet have the final laugh on Toronto Maple Leafs.

The National Hockey League club left the 23-year-old winger off their protected list in last June's National Hockey League draft. He was the first leaf to go in the expansion draft—to Atlanta.

Now MacMillan and his Flames' team-mates are burning up the NHL'S West Division. Their latest conquest came Thursday night, 4-0 over New York Islanders—another first-year team—and moved them into third place, one point behind the co-leaders Philadelphia Flyers and Los Angeles Kings.

MacMillan's fourth goal of the year, at 5:14 of the first period, and second-game winning score for the Flames was all the margin goaltender Phil Myre needed in posting his first shutout of the season.

Montreal Canadiens, who opened a seven-point lead in the East Division race over New York Rangers, were hard pressed to beat Philadelphia 6-5 while Boston Bruins blanked St. Louis Blues 4-0.

With the Leafs lahoring in sixth spot in the East, out of the playoff picture as of the moment, MacMillan couldn't be more pleased with the change of scenery.

"Beautiful city and great fans," he said recently, after settling with his family in the Georgia capital that never before had entertained a hockey franchise. "I just love it. Most of the guys do."

It's a far cry from lying in Toronto's Wellesley Hospital with an ailing back and hearing that the Leafs weren't prepared to wait out his recovery.

He had been barboring thoughts of joining kid brother Bobby with Minnesota Fighting Saints of the rival World Hockey Association before sitting down with Atlanta general manager Cliff Fletcher.

The Flames offer was in the same area as that negotiated by the Saints, so MacMillan, a Charlottetown native who was Prince Edward Island's man of the year in 1970, remained in the NHL.

He readily admits he's surprised at the Flames' fast start, but even more startling is the reception the club is getting in its new ice palace-Om Gmii.

"We're averaging 11,000 a game, really killing basketball," he says of the fan competition with the Hawks of the National Basketball Association. "They're drawing about 4,500-5,000 a game.

"The fans apparently go for the body contact."

If such is the case, the 9,820 who showed up for the Islanders' game were treated to a scrap between Flames' veteran captain, Noel Price, and rugged Brian Spencer.

Marsh Daniel, Guy Lafleur, Guy Lappinte and Jacques Lemaire scored first-period goals for Montreal as the Canadiens opened a 4-2 lead in front of goalie Ken Dryden.

Dryden, however, was forced to retire after the first period and a club spokesman said the 1971-72 rookie of the year was ailing prior to the game.

Michel Plasse replaced him and gave up the other Philadelphia scores, including two in the third period by Bobby Clarke and Don Saleski when the Flyers twice closed within one goal of Montreal.

The game was delayed at 12:25 of the second period when rookies Steve Durbano of St. Louis and Boston's Terry O'Reilly rolled into punches. Durbano drew a double, major for his aggressiveness and a misconduct while O'Reilly was nailed with a minor, major and misconduct.

Raiders Receive WHA Help

SANTA ANA, Calif. (CP) — Gary Davidson, president of the World Hockey Association, confirmed Thursday the WHA is assisting in the operation of New York Raiders, but denied there are any financial problems.

He said rumors the club is in receivership or insolvent "are untrue and without substance in fact" and that the problems facing the club ownership were of a personal nature.

Davidson said WHA administrator James Browitt is in New York assisting in the Raiders' operation.

"From the inception of the WHA, we knew there would be problems," said the WHA president, "and fortunately the WHA has been structured in such a way that we can get to them quickly and take steps to correct them."

He did not foresee the New York franchise failing.

"It is a great sport city . . . and (the Raiders) could become a contender for the WHA championship. . . .

"The operation of the New York franchise is not affected in any way," Davidson continued. "It will continue to play its games, its payroll and other commitments are being met and the entire operation will be stabilized shortly."

Toronto Maple Leaf goalie Jacques Plante cuts Real Comeau (18) of Atlanta Flames off from puck, while teammate Mike Pelyk (4) is checked by Keith Mc-Creary (9) of Atlanta during National Hockey League action in Toronto Wednesday night. Toronto won the contest by a 2-1 count but Atlanta bounced back Thursday to score a 4-0 win over the New York Islanders.

Buchanan Lights Cake While Burning Barons

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ron Buchanan gave himself a belated birthday present Thursday night—he was 28 Wednesday—when he scored four goals and picked up an assist in leading Cleveland Barons to first place in the Eastern Division of the World Hockey Association.

Buchanan, who has knocked around the minors since being a high-scoring junior with Oshawa Generals, scored two goals in each of the second and third periods as Cleveland Crusaders beat Ottawa Nationals 6-3.

Cleveland's win gave them 23 points, two more than Quebec and four more than the idle New England Whalers, who have two games in hand.

Ron Climie, Guy Trottier and Steve King scored for Ottawa.

Buchanan's first two goals gave the Crusaders a 2-0 lead, but the Nationals tied it before the second period ended.

However, Buchanan scored 45 seconds into the third period and Cleveland coasted from there.

Attendance was 2,348 for the relatively mild game in Cleveland to which Ottawa took five of the 11 minors.

In Bloomington, 6,348 fans saw Terry Ryan score the winning goal for Minnesota while teammate Terry Ball was serving a penalty in the third period.

Minnesota appeared to have the game well in hand midway through the second period as they held a 3-1 lead. However, Quebec came back with two goals in less than two minutes to tie it 3-3.

Wayne Connelly scored twice for the Fighting Saints, Ted Hampson scored once and so did Billy Kiser.

Pete Cusmirovsky, Yves Bergeron, Alain Caron and Mike Rouleau scored for Quebec. J. C. Tremblay picked up three assists.

Tonight, the Whalers play the Crusaders in Cleveland, Chicago Cougars visit Alberta Oilers and Winnipeg Jets go to Los Angeles to play the Sharks.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

SATURDAY, NOV. 18

Aries (March 21-April 19): Aside from impulse, current stones and problems tend to work themselves out. Suggestions come in from all sides.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Expect opposition to almost any idea. Discretion and a look at the other side's planning work better than insisting on your own way.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): If you're in a group, go along without raising a fuss over everything—otherwise leave quietly. Your plans deserves better circumstances.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Moderation in all things is needed as you pursue knowledge. Finesse in dealing with people is necessary throughout.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You're in no mood to trail along after what is happening. Recognize inner stirrings as constructive instead of seeing them as hexes in others.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Old familiars know how to stop you, strangers must guess. Getting out of your usual paths is the only way to proceed.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Discussions of budgets, bills, and the like run in circles, go nowhere. Take practical measures on today's issues.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): See your program in long, methodical phases, have patience with temporary obstacles. Great care with mechanical things is suggested.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Taking on more than you can handle is about par for the course, likewise haste, waste, and fatigue. You can resist coercion.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Some personality and competitive tension is inevitable. Leaving surprises for next week is really more feasible.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Decisions have to be made. Consult those who are actually concerned, map out a simple course of action which all can follow.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Little things count, including taking time for care and courtesy. Travel takes longer, can't be hurried or put off.

Having Measles Best Defence

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can a person have rubella more than once? As a child I had the red measles, rubella. I also came down with a rash that spread rapidly at school.

At the time I thought it was a second case of rubella but my doctor later said you could get it only once.

I have talked to several people since and they have never heard of such a thing. They say you can get it as many times as you come in contact with it.

My, my, such a confusion about measles. And well worth straightening out.

First, you're confusing rubella with rubeola. The ordinary "red measles" is rubeola. The milder "German measles" is rubella. It's milder, that is, except when it's contracted by a pregnant woman, and in that case it can cause all manner of defects in the baby. So it is very important to distinguish between ordinary measles and rubellas.

With either disease it is most unusual to have the disease twice. I can't quite say it never happens, but I've never known of its happening, and if it does, it is extraordinary.

Your friends who say "you can get it as many times as you are in contact with it" are wrong—fortunately. Having the disease does confer immunity. So does vaccination, and vaccines now are available for both diseases.

Your friends' insistence that you can get the diseases over and over again probably stems from the fact that there are five known diseases that are very similar in symptoms—the rash and so on. So if they thought they had measles two or three times, they doubtless had one or two of the similar diseases, and not either "red measles" or rubella more than once.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would it ever be possible for a woman to become pregnant if she has had her Fallopian tubes removed?

These are the two tubes that lead from the ovaries to the uterus, and through which the ovum (egg) is transported in order to be fertilized by the male sperm. Pregnancy without at least one tube is impossible.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 40 and in good health and enjoy bicycle riding. My husband is much against it, says it is not slimming to the figure and only builds big muscles in the legs and other places.

I ride about three or four hours a week, sometimes less. Does a person benefit from it? Did you realize your muscles and legs large? I have put my bike on for sale until I find out from you.

Not being a psychiatrist, I won't try to guess why your husband is against bicycling. Maybe he's afraid you may look too attractive to other men.

Maybe he thinks you ought to stay home and polish the silver.

But any exercise will use up calories and help keep you slim.

And if three or four hours a week would "build big muscles," football coaches would buy bikes for their players.

Bidding Quiz

Partner bids One Diamond, next player passes. Both sides vulnerable. What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠KJ74 ♥KJ74 ♦53 ♣3652
2. ♠A5 ♥J3 ♦QJ65 ♣AJ874
3. ♠93 ♥KJ98 ♦AQ732 ♣73
4. ♠KQ96 ♥AQ83 ♦— ♣KQ652
5. ♠A9743 ♥AJ8 ♦QJ6 ♣AK8

1. One heart. The general idea is to respond in the higher ranking of two equally long suits, but this rule is by no means inflexible. When the hand is such that the responder just has to make only one bid and then retire from the auction, it is better to name the lower - ranking suit first. One heart leaves room for partner to bid a spade, and thus allows a major suit fit to be discovered at the lowest possible level. A direct spade response could result in never finding a heart fit, if it existed.

A notrump response would be dead wrong. It would violate a cardinal principle of bidding — to first seek a major suit fit.

2. Two diamonds. This shows 6 to 9 points and at least four trumps. It is far more important to announce the diamond fit and to pinpoint the real value of the hand than it would be to show the club. Two clubs would not reveal the diamond support and would also be imprecise as to high-card values.

3. One heart. The hand is too strong for two diamonds and not good enough for three diamonds (forcing). The heart response not only initiates the search for a major suit fit, but also has the advantage of being the cheapest one (to be 6 to 16 point class. This calculated ambiguity can be cleared up later on when partner responds to one heart.

4. Two clubs. The search for a trump fit commences by bidding the longest suit first. The hand action is to bid spades and hearts next, thus identifying the 4-4-4-1 pattern. The fact that the lowest suit is named first tells partner that the spades and hearts, when they are mentioned later, are of shorter length. If both suits were of equal length, they would be bid in the reverse order — from the top down.

5. One spade. Although the hand lends itself to notrump play and might therefore suggest a two notrump response, it is nevertheless better to investigate game in spades first. The response by no means rules out the possibility of eventually playing the hand in notrump.

Tomorrow: The only chance.

Advice to Governments

No Need to Spy, Buy Credit Report

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — With the files of credit - reporting firms available, governments need not bother to spy on their own citizens, a legal specialist on privacy said Thursday.

Edward Ryan of the Ontario Law Reform Commission was addressing the opening session of the annual Canadian-American Seminar at the University of Windsor.

This year's seminar deals with information processing and the right to privacy.

Mr. Ryan said the two largest firms in North American credit-reporting have files on more than 35 million North Americans.

"With this service available, no government need risk the political danger of spying on its own citizens when it can just become . . . a client of a private company," he said.

In the face of this "massive, hidden, anonymous and potentially arbitrary power" democratic processes can be destroyed, Mr. Ryan said.

Mr. Ryan said that the firms were sometimes careless, sloppy and operating on hearsay in assembling personal file.

Their reports include information on political activity, drinking and drug use, family matters and even sexual relations, he said.

In fact, they may include everything about an individual "his friends and enemies care to say or can be tricked into revealing."

Laird to Quit

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Defence Secretary Melvin Laird repeated Thursday that he intends to resign in January, but said he has not yet made any future plans.

Perelman Glum

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — Humorist S. J. Perelman, who left for Australia after expressing fears about the muggers on New York streets, was a victim of Australia's first domestic air hijacking this week.

Perelman, 68, arrived back in Sydney Thursday night and told reporters: "I was unable to see any humor in the situation.

"Like all peacable citizens, I'm remarkably cowardly by nature."

Noise OK

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto's anti-noise bylaw does not protect workers on the job, Judge A. E. Newell ruled Thursday in a decision which might affect all municipal noise bylaws in Ontario except those in Ottawa.

Judge Newell dismissed a charge against Teperman and Sons Ltd., building wreckers, of causing unnecessary noise with a diesel compressor last Jan. 27 during the demolition of a building in downtown Toronto.

The bylaw specifies that unnecessary noise must disturb "inhabitants" and the judge ruled that office workers are not inhabitants of their offices.

Drugs Threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government's top drug law enforcer asked the Food and Drug Administration Thursday to put stringent controls on a list of nine drugs originally intended as sedatives.

John E. Ingersoll, director of the bureau of narcotics and dangerous drugs, said the nine drugs, all barbiturates, have been involved in more than 1,700 suicides and deaths in a 17-month period.

"We have found that these drugs are extremely dangerous," said Ingersoll. "They are highly addictive and create a high psychic and physical dependency."

Walkout Off

TORONTO (CP) — Separate school teachers reached tentative agreement on a new salary offer Thursday and called off a walkout scheduled for today.

Johanne Stewart, chief negotiator for the 3,800 teachers, said she will take the new offer to a mass meeting of teachers for ratification or rejection. No date has been set for the meeting.

Crushing Start

Margaret Trudeau is caught up in throngs of people as she released 1,000 helium - filled balloons on Parliament Hill Wednesday to kick off Young Canada Book Week. Several spectators and photographers were knocked down in the crush to gather the balloons (CP Photo)

Pelee Folks Have Had It Unless Help Is Provided

SCUDDER, Ont. (CP) — After this week's storm and floods, many of the 200 persons who live on Pelee Island may not be able to get back on their feet by themselves.

"I shouldn't say this, but I think we've had it unless the rest of Canada helps us," Councillor Hugh Hooper said in an interview Thursday.

The storm that battered the island's east shore on Tuesday left more than half of its area under water. Damage estimates already exceed $1 million.

Mr. Hooper said there was concern many cottagers may be reluctant to spend money rebuilding their damaged cottages, so reducing the summer tourist population.

Few of the islanders have insurance to cover their losses and most of them are not sure where they can find the money to rebuild.

Those who do rebuild may have to go through the same thing again next spring.

Mr. Hooper said spring rains are expected to raise the lake level another nine inches, a level he said the island will not be able to withstand.

Cousin of Queen Watered Milk

LONDON (AP) — Three relatives of Queen Elizabeth were in trouble with the law Thursday.

One cousin down the royal line, Earl Mountbatten of Burma, was fined for watering down the milk on his farm.

Another, the Earl of Lichfield, had his driving licence suspended for using his Rolls-Royce after drinking.

And her daughter, Princess Anne, was warned by police that she might be prosecuted for speeding after being flagged down twice recently at the wheel of a sports car.

There was no comment from the Royal Family.

A weights and measures inspector twice took samples of milk at a farm run for Mountbatten by a manager. The first time he found three per cent of water in the milk and the second time two per cent.

Mountbatten, who was not in court admitted the offences and was fined £40 and costs.

A lawyer for the Second World War hero, who later became British viceroy in India and also was Britain's chief of defence staff, said steps had been taken at the farm to make sure it didn't happen again.

Firm Defrauded

TORONTO (CP) — A county court jury found a 51-year-old Toronto man guilty Thursday of defrauding Union Carbide Canada Ltd. of $200,000. John Vanderkop, former export manager of the company, was remanded to Nov. 24 for sentencing. The prosecution contended at the six-week trial that Vanderkop used his position from 1963 to 1970 to indulge in price manipulation, currency exchange schemes, forgery, bribery and other practices to procure money which should have gone to the company from export sales.

Kissinger Gets Orders

Truce Talks To Last Days

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger, armed with final instructions from President Nixon, will start a new round of Vietnam peace talks Monday in Paris.

The White House announced Friday that Kissinger will fly to Paris Sunday for the talks with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho.

Press secretary Ronald Ziegler declined to predict whether the new sessions would end the negotiating process. But he said he expected the talks to last for "several days, perhaps longer."

Ziegler said the new talks would be followed by "further consultations with the South Vietnamese and perhaps the North Vietnamese." And he added the United States "is entering into these talks with a constructive attitude."

"If the other side enters into these negotiations with the same spirit of goodwill that has characterized these sessions since Oct. 8, we would expect a successful outcome," he said.

Kissinger said Oct. 26 that a final set of meetings, lasting perhaps three or four days, should wrap up the talks. His announcement came after North Vietnam released details of a tentative nine-point plan for a ceasefire.

Since then, South Vietnam has raised several questions that have appeared to delay final agreement. And North Vietnam said Thursday it will resist any effort to make substantive changes in the original draft settlement.

Kissinger and Nixon met for 40 minutes Friday at Camp David, Md. Ziegler said the president provided "direction to Dr. Kissinger." He said the two men are in daily contact by telephone.

Kissinger will be accompanied on his 21st trip to the Paris talks by his deputy, army Gen. Alexander Haig. William Sullivan, deputy assistant secretary of state, and three aides from the National Security Council.

Today's Chuckle

The happiest ending in the movies is when the guy behind you finishes his popcorn.

Next - - China vs. Russia?

Peace---It May Mean Hostility Elsewhere

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The heralded truce in Vietnam may mean the start of an era of even graver hostility between the Soviet Union and China.

In the Vietnamese battle area, Moscow and Peking were able to screen their profound disagreements with a show of surface co-operation against so-called aggressive American imperialism.

The two giant Communist powers collaborated in transporting military supplies to the North Vietnamese forces and were aligned behind the Viet for a North Vietnamese victory or acceptable truce conditions.

The ending of the Vietnam war will eliminate the only area where some semblance of Soviet-Chinese co-operation could be maintained.

Whereas the Soviet Union seems set on maintaining and strengthening its ties with the North Vietnamese and North Koreans, the Chinese appear more open to a looser relationship based on their claim to be natural leaders of the Third World—the impoverished states of Asia and Africa.

The United States, in accordance with President Nixon's earlier Guam doctrine of maintaining a low profile in Asia, is apparently set on assuming a guardian role in an "Asia-for-the-Asians" program.

In this situation there appears to be scope for heightened Chinese-Soviet rivalry. While the Chinese appear receptive to the idea of a loose grouping of non-aligned and nationalist-minded states in the Indochina region, the Soviet Union may move to maintain and strengthen its Communist ties along orthodox party lines.

Tri-Level Parley

All Set to Talk But What About?

TORONTO (CP) — Two days before the first national meeting among representatives of municipalities, provinces and the federal government, some participants appear uncertain of the federal government's role.

MacDonald Dunbar, executive director of the Association of Municipalities of Ontario, was one of those who said he had no knowledge of the format after the meeting which opens here Monday.

"In fact, I only found out I was expected to go a few days ago," he said.

John Kruger, executive assistant to Metropolitan Toronto chairman Albert Campbell questioned the method used to select delegates. "How can we sit down beside a city which has a population of 2,000," he asked.

The idea of a tri-level conference had been discussed for two years, and last September Ronald Basford, federal minister of urban affairs, invited the other two levels of governments to meet.

Two municipal delegates were chosen by municipal associations in each province and about 65 municipal observers are expected to attend.

Ontario will be represented by Premier MacNaughton, treasurer and minister of intergovernmental affairs. He will be accompanied by Claude Bennett, minister without portfolio.

Special federal and provincial delegates as chosen by the Association of Municipalities of Ontario are J. R. Scott, mayor of Belleville, and Val Swain, mayor of Brampton.

Clean Lakes Plans Hit Money Snag

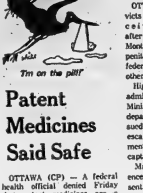
DETROIT (CP) — Talks are scheduled between the United States and Canada on the cleanup of the lower Great Lakes, Ontario Environment Minister James Auld said Friday.

Mr. Auld said in an interview the Canadian federal government has received agreement from Washington to discuss the international pact to clean up the lakes.

He said the meeting had been agreed upon after telling the Interstate Legislative Committee on Lake Erie that President Nixon may block spending on the cleanup.

New York Assemblyman Ronald Tills of Buffalo, chairman of the committee, telephoned the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to check Mr. Auld's statements.

"They confirmed that there is a problem and they were not able to indicate how much money would be available," he said. "They said they would operate on the 1973 budget."



Mr. Tills said that with the type of funding provided for in a recently-passed $24-billion U.S. water bill, there's no way the U.S. can fulfil its part of the agreement."

Patent Medicines Said Safe

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal health official denied Friday that patent medicines are a threat to public health and said the government is continuously reviewing manufactured drugs.

Commenting on a call by the Quebec College of Pharmacists for a federal inquiry into the "uncontrolled use" of patent medicines, Dr. A. B. Morrison, assistant deputy minister of the health protection branch, said a panel of pharmacists continually advises the government on drugs.

The suggestion that uncontrolled use of patent medicines is a public health threat is "not new to us," he said. The danger exists with abuse of these medicines, he said.

"We are convinced that patent medicines are safe when they are used according to directions," Dr. Morrison said.

But he added that it would be difficult to regulate against all drug abuse.

"If you took every patient medicine off the shelf that could be abused there would be nothing left," he said.

Trap Failed

OTTAWA (CP) — Two convicts who applied for—and received—Canadian passports after they had escaped from Montreal's St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary Aug. 21 caught the federal government up in another controversy Friday.

Highlight of the affair was an admission by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp that his department had knowingly issued the passports to the two escapees in the hope the documents might lead to their recapture.

Mr. Sharp told a news conference the passport office had sent out the documents to convicts Jacques Mesrine, 36, and Jean Paul Mercier, 28, at the request of the RCMP.

But he added that in future he would doubt the wisdom of such a move.

Mr. Sharp expressed hope that the issuance of the passports would lead to capture of the two men.

It was the first time the procedure had been used and the RCMP took full responsibility in writing for the passports.

Mr. Sharp said he first learned of the action Friday, but added that had he been asked he would have authorized the procedure.

Indian Baby's Body Send Home In Plastic Bag

JEAN d'OR PRAIRIE, Alta. (CP) — Larry uttered one word of complaint during the two weeks since they received the body of their four-month-old son in a cardboard grocery box 20 minutes after being told he had died in hospital in Fort Vermilion, 50 miles from this reserve last miles northwest of Edmonton, Bill St. Arnold, the Prairie reserve band council secretary, said he received word of the baby's death by radio minutes before the aircraft landed and he advised Carmen St. Cassia, the northern health services nurse. "I went right to the mother and told her the baby had died," said Miss St. Cassia. "What was upsetting me was that the baby's eyes weren't closed" she said. "It was naked in a plastic bag and was not properly prepared or laid out." Richard Turcotte, a field officer for the Indian affairs department, said "I don't know whose fault it is, but had that been my child, I would have taken my .303 rifle and started shooting at the top down."

Passports Given Convicts

External Affairs Minister Michael Sharp gives confirmation to reporters in Ottawa Friday that passports were recently issued to two escaped convicts at the request of the RCMP because police said it would help recapture the two. He also said that he had no idea where the two are now. (CP Photo)

Hijacking Fight

No Step Ruled Out

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Friday Canada has not ruled out any possibility in its search for measures to deal with international hijackers.

He told reporters these include such steps as cutting off aid to countries harboring hijackers or cancelling landing rights in Canada for countries such as Cuba.

However, he said, Canada would be reluctant to go this far and still hopes an agreement to deal with hijacking can be worked out at the international level. Talks are being held under the auspices of the United Nations and the International Civil Aviation Organization.

Mr. Sharp, who made his comments after meeting the president of the Canadian Airline Pilots Association, said he is not convinced cancellation of foreign aid would be an effective means to deter hijacking.

Aid is given to people and projects, rather than governments, he said, and "we really don't want to hurt the people of a country just because their government may be following bad policies."

In Cuba's case, he said, Canada is still hopeful that a bilateral hijacking agreement, exclusive of a possible general international agreement, can be worked out.

Talks between Canada and Cuba started earlier this year after an American, Patrick Dolan Critton, commandeered an Air Canada DC-9 en route to Toronto and forced it to fly to Havana.

Gas Price Increase Forecast

TORONTO (CP) — George Gathercole, chairman of Ontario Hydro, said Friday an increase in the price of natural gas is inescapable.

There is no doubt that all consumers of gas are going to pay higher prices, he said.

He was commenting on a debate in Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed that gas producers in the province raise prices to customers in the rest of Canada and the United States.

Mr. Gathercole said Ontario Hydro will protect the demand through the Ontario government. Ontario Hydro uses between 30 and 40 billion cubic feet of natural gas a year.

He said the proposal of a price of 21 cents per 1,000 cubic feet by 1975, could raise the cost to 50 or 60 cents in Ontario after all the extra costs are passed on.

John T. Clement, Ontario's consumer and commercial relations minister, said from a consumer's standpoint he is not happy with the Premier's announcement. He said the matter will be discussed by cabinet.

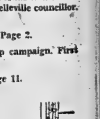
Tributes and Souvenirs Abound

Royalty's Silver Wedding Is Gold-lined for Shops

LONDON (CP) — Tributes to the Queen and Prince Philip on their silver wedding anniversary Monday are pouring out in Parliament and Fleet Street.



The Queen, 46, and Philip, 51, will mark the day with a brisk round of public appearances — attending a thanksgiving service in Westminster Abbey, taking part in a civic banquet and procession in the City of London and inspecting the modernistic Barbican development in the heart of the financial district.

Their first chance to relax with family and friends will come in the evening when they will throw a party for 500 at Buckingham Palace.

Glowing tributes came from the House of Lords, which formally moved "an humble address" of gratitude to the Royal Couple for their contribution to the country and their example in public and family life.

The newspaper-reading public has been drenched in nostalgia. The mass-circulation Daily Mirror, running a one-week royal series, appropriately chose the moment to revamp its masthead in royal purple. The Beaverbrook Evening Standard published a silver-wedding supplement.

More than 80,000 commemorative pieces of pottery have flowed into shops, as well as a rush of silver coins, silver goblets and other assorted souvenirs.

'Happy anniversary darling.'

Fire at Harrowsmith

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A fire Friday night destroyed four main street buildings and left one family homeless in Harrowsmith, a town of about 500, 12 miles northeast of here. No one was injured in the blaze, believed to have started in a vacant service station. It spread to an adjacent clothing store, town hall and Oddfellows Hall.

No Hot Meals

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Hot meals were discontinued at the Kingston penitentiary institution 128 miles east of here Friday as 432 prisoners continued a sit-down strike they started Tuesday night. The cold meals were replaced by sandwiches because the custodial staff and the instructors working in the kitchen were unable to keep up with the demand for food. The prisoners, who usually staff the kitchen, refused to work or return to their cells. They were confined to corridors and allowed to watch television or nap in unlocked cells.

No Fingerprints

MONTREAL (CP) — An RCMP officer testified Friday that Jacques Rose's fingerprints were not on any of the Front de Libération du Québec notes released during the October 1970, kidnapping crisis. Sgt. Lloyd Dunham, testifying at Rose's second kidnapping trial, said in Court of Queen's Bench he studied the documents at an RCMP laboratory in Ottawa.

Murderer Beaten to Death In Quebec 'Pen'

STE. ANNE DES PLAINES, Que. (CP) — Leopold Dion, convicted murderer and rapist, was beaten to death Friday night at the maximum-security Archambault federal penitentiary here, Quebec Provincial Police said today.

Jean-Paul Dallaire, assis ant prison director, said Dion was killed by a fellow prisoner. No charges have yet been laid.

A coroner's inquest will be held into Dion's death, police said. Ste. Anne des Plaines is 15 miles north of Montreal.

Dion, 32, was sentenced to life in prison for rape in 1969 and was paroled in September, 1962. Eight months later a coroner's inquest found him criminally responsible for the strangulation deaths of four young boys who refused his sexual advances.

City, Thurlow Agree On Utilities Service

Representatives of Thurlow township and the Belleville Utilities Commission Friday worked out terms of an agreement for extension of services from the city.

The commission will supervise the installation of new water mains into the township and maintain them when they go into use, utilities commissioner Gerry O'Connor said today.

Mr. O'Connor described yesterday's meeting with Reeve Horace Casey, deputy reeve Borden Forsythe and clerk Claire Horton of Thurlow as "beautiful . . . we are making progress together. We have it, really, because regional government is immediate."

The chairman said he foresees no complications in securing approval for the extension of services from the provincial government because it is in full concurrence with the project.

Construction may begin as early as next year on water mains and sewers within the first Thurlow service area that includes all of Camilton and the Maitland-Cloverleaf Drive areas.

Tweed Senior Housing Receives Federal Nod

TWEED (Staff) — Federal financial approval has given a major impetus toward realization of a senior citizens' housing project here.

Formal approval by the urban affairs ministry of a $222,719 Ontario Housing Corporation loan for the current project was confirmed Monday by Charles Rollins, MPP Hastings.

The development involves building 20 one-bedroom units in a two-storey apartment building on McCarron St. here, costing a total $247,000. Capital costs are shared by senior governments — 90 per cent federal funds, 10 per cent provincial.

Contract for the project was let earlier this year to Belleville's Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd., and work now would "hopefully start as soon as possible," said Reeve Barbara Allen.

Land assembly involved three separate owners — and thus more complicated legal work to ensure a clear property title, she added.

But sufficient land is available to permit an addition, doubling the capacity of the development to 40 units.

Reeve Allen said there was a "tremendous need" for such housing in the village. Its creation could release more accommodation on the general housing market, thereby ensuring senior citizens did not have to leave the municipality.

"This is a real blow to the people who have worked so hard for the security of their lives," the tall fellow trustees at Monday night's board meeting.

Mortgage Burned

TWEED (Special) — The mortgage burning at the Tweed Pentecostal Church took place as planned on Sunday afternoon, at 3 p.m., Nov. 12.

Friends and former members gathered with the congregation for the event. Former pastors who live nearby also attended. First the Veteran sisters, who ministered here before there was a church, then Rev. G. Ewald under whose guidance the church was erected, spoke of the trials and victories. Rev. Lloyd Faulkener also referred to his days spent in Tweed. Rev. Keith Sprackett spoke and our District Presbyter Rev. R. Buschert of Napanee spoke of another milestone completed. Mrs. R. Thompson had collposed a reading of the history of the church from the beginning. District Superintendent Rev. R. Bunbay of Belleville ministered the word of God.

Home and School Council Defunct

Hastings county's Home and School Associations have lost their lobbying arm and direct pipeline into Queen's Park.

The county's Home and School Council has folded as result of the resignation of president Barbara Sirrill and secretary Nancy Deschane. This means the group will hold no more meetings, but other members of the executive will continue to perform their duties until their terms expire next June.

The council is the senior Home and School group in this county, through which resolutions of local Home and School Associations are funneled through the provincial government. Local Home and School Associations will continue to function and to be affiliated with the provincial body, but they will lose their capacity to bring pressure to bear on the provincial government.

Apathy, the result of the public's lack of understanding of the council's role, was one factor in its demise, a member of the executive indicated.

Hastings County's board of education's representative too council, Mrs. Jean Hutchison of Trenton, announced the organization's dissolution.

The Fundamental Purpose of the Funeral —
The Most Significant Function of the Funeral Director . . .

SERVING the LIVING

PART II

- The Traditional Canadian Funeral is basically a religious service, supported by the practices and customs of the community and the personal desires of the bereaved. The clergyman relates the experience of death and bereavement "To a dimension beyond the human — to proclaim a strength greater than human strength, to offer comfort more sensitive than human comfort, to present an understanding more profound than human understanding".
- The Funeral Director is responsible for all other aspects of the Funeral and together with the clergyman, provides a united service for those who suffer the loss of a loved one.
- Modern funeral service today performs by design, many of the functions that primitive man performed by instinct.
- The funeral with the body present impresses the reality of the situation upon the minds and emotions of the bereaved. Constant and continuing experience indicates that the vast majority of people want and need this confirmation.

200 Boaters Here For Weekend Meet

Canada's competitive boating circuit will be the prime concern of the Canadian Boating Federation this weekend when its members gather in Belleville for their annual convention.

Confining their interests to motor boating only, the 200 delegates to the meet will fly in parts of the country, will be responsible for all phases of CBF-canctioned events in the coming year, usually numbering between 45 and 50.

In a telephone interview, vice-commodore Donald MacDonald declined to say if any major developments or changes would be announced during the three - day meet.

He did say discussions will include feasibility of new races to be added to the motorized competitions schedule.

Delegates will spend a major part of the weekend travelling about Hastings and Prince Edward Counties and to Kingston.

Mr. MacDonald said his group was not travelling to Kingston in connection with upcoming, international competitions.

No local federation committee exists, making the convention site a peculiarity.

No reason was offered for the CBF decision to meet in Belleville or for their planned tours of the area.

Delegates will begin arriving Friday morning with the Directors' Dinner at 3 p.m. opening convention activity at the Four Seasons Hotel.

New Subdivision OK in Principle

WALLBRIDGE (Staff) — An exclusive 30-home subdivision to be built on the foot of the Oak Hills received approval in principle from Sidney township council here Monday.

Ross Swan, representing Fraser and O'Neil Real Estate Ltd., in outlining the development said each building lot would have an area of at least one acre and have a maximum of 150 feet of frontage on a new crescent being built north from the eighth concession of Sidney toward Gallivan's Road.

He said the possibility of installing a community reservoir to serve the new homesite is being considered. Holding a 63,000 - gal. tank would probably be the key to the operation of a water system if these plans materialize.

Council objected strenuously to the suggestion by Swan that the township consider taking ownership in lieu of a grant of parkland. Said reeve Jack Bush, "What area would be an ideal place for a park."

The new housing area would feature both street lighting and underground wiring.

Notice of township council's preliminary approval of the scheme will be forwarded to Quinte Planning Board.

Denturist Service 'Need Desperate'

A Belleville - area farmer has launched his own campaign to convince Health Minister Richard Potter that Ontario citizens need the services of denturists.

Ray McLellan, RR 1 Corbyville, expressed some chagrin at the way his one - man venture was initiated Wednesday — at a public meeting in Belleville.

For one thing, he felt the meeting he called at his own expense in the auditorium of the city's Corby public library, got sidetracked.

Nonetheless, copies of a petition for circulation in the city and district were taken from the meeting by people whose support he aroused.

The petition, addressed to Dr. Potter, says the now controversial denturist services should be continued.

The support implied in such a document would be welcomed as public support by the health minister, who seems to be simply to recommendate some form of denturist service in the province, Mr. McLennan believes.

(Last week the provincial health ministry was reported drafting qualifications that would let some denturists fit and sell false teeth directly to the public. But Dr. Potter said many denturists, including some now dealing directly with the public in contravention of the law, will not meet government standards of training and expertise).

Apparently, Mr. McLellan friended the meeting to discuss the petition he proposed seeking the health minister.

But the discussion broadened when chairman Curly Hotrike — briefly associated with local federal politics as a New Democratic Party candidate in Hastings South in 1963 — called on one of several dental technicians in the small audience for his views.

Gerald Anderson, dental technician at Canadian Forces Base Trenton, warned that teeth factors, as well as cost, should be considered. Oral medical symptoms should be first defined before fittings are made in the mouth.

"If we are going to give them (the public) cut-rate dentures without worrying about their health we've doing them a disservice," he said.

Denturists at their equivalent now are licensed in Alberta and British Columbia — but qualifications are strictly tied to university courses and apprenticeships. Similar qualifying processes to upgrade might be an answer, although the difficulty was how to obtain teaching from dental professionals, he said.

Supervision of clinics by dentists or a dentist's approval of a client's oral health before denturist fittings might be alternatives.

Mr. Hoskins felt Dr. Potter would "take every means possible" of having denturists in Ontario "providing they conform to certain standards."

Mr. McLennan said the health minister has "a lot of pressure on him . . . and the more expressions he gets from the public the more help he has."

But, he reminded the assembly he had set out to organize, "this meeting is for our own purposes. We are not here fighting for the denturists. We need their services. We need them desperately."

He said there were "hundreds of people" who can't afford dentures unless "denturists are allowed to practise" in Ontario.

Stewart Heads Scout Council

At the annual meeting of the council held at the River Valley Women's Institute Centre, the incoming president indicated the work of his organization would be given over to building up communications between the council and its various branches.

The election of the new executive was conducted by Dick Gerardine, provincial field executive.

Fireman Les MacDonald . . . Ready for Run

New Yellow Fire Engine Is Pride of Volunteers

WELLINGTON (Staff) — A new lemon yellow fire engine, the first in the Quinte area, has rolled into Wellington, where volunteer firefighters waited to test the hoses.

Purchased by Hillier township, the engine will become part of the Wellington-Hillier fire department newly formed this year. Wellington fire department has one engine, a water truck and auxiliary truck with Scott air packs and other equipment.

Hillier township council together with Wellington village council, will organize a fire commission, including the reeves of both municipalities and a councillor from each. Plans then will be made to integrate Hillier township firefighters with the 17 volunteer firemen serving Wellington.

Grayson Champeau, sales representative for King Seagrave Ltd., the Woodstock firm that manufactured the new engine, explained the little red fire truck is becoming a thing of the past. Hillier township's chrome yellow engine is possibly the only one of its color between Ottawa and Toronto.

Mr. Champeau said the new color is favored because of its visibility, especially at night, and eventually all fire trucks will conform to this shade.

On hand to learn the mechanics of the new engine from delivery engineer Robert Bender were Wellington fire chief Otto Bowerman, deputy-chief Douglas McFaul and firefighters Les MacDonald and Claude Marshall.

The fire engine is a 625 imperial-gallons - per - minute pumper mounted on a GMC conventional chassis with a 427 cubic inch engine. It carries 600 gallons of water and has a hose bed capable of carrying 1,200 feet of 2.5-inch hose and 600 feet of 1.5-inch hose. The engine features two reels of 300- foot hose.

ANAF News

The weather looked very threatening on Remembrance Day and a looked for awhile that the service would have to be held in the Armory. However the drizzle slackened off somewhat so the parade moved off as usual. . . It was quite a good turnout and it was good to see the scouts and cubs on parade and this offset the disappointment of having an Unit pipe band on parade for which Unit 291 apologizes and hopes that it will not occur again.

There were about 400 at the banquet who enjoyed a delightful dinner and the guest speaker sure lived up to his reputation of being one of the wittiest and entertaining of after dinner speakers.

Sunday although cool, was certainly a more pleasant day and the St. Mary Anglicton Church was quite crowded with the 30 seats reserved for the veterans could have been filled twice over if room had been available. It was grand to listen once again to the delightful brogue of one of the most popular padres that Belleviliians have known, Major The Venerable A. S. McConnell, OBE, CD received a very warm welcome from all as he came out of retirement to take this special Remembrance Service.

The members are happy to join the Ladies Auxiliary in wishing one of their members a very pleasant 85th birthday so to Mrs. J. Fisher everybody sing Happy Birthday, Florrie. Happy birthday to you, Saturday, Nov. 18.

Man Killed Near Flinton

TWEED (Special) — An Oshawa man died early Wednesday in a single car accident on the Flinton Road, west of Highway 41.

Dead is Fred Shier, 27, a Flinton native.

The car he was driving went out of control on a curve about 1:15 last night and hit an embankment. He was alone in the vehicle.

Coroner Dr. A. G. Allen of Tweed pronounced Mr. Shier dead.

All Acclaimed In Murray

TRENTON (Staff) — There is to be no contest in Murray township for the upcoming Dec. 4 municipal elections. All members have been acclaimed.

Township clerk Kenneth Rose reports no other nominations were received.

excavate five lagoons on a 3.4 acre site on Highway 41, 19 miles north of Cloyne, near the west bank of Mazinaw Lake. Among those at Denbigh community hall yesterday to hear Nuclarus' presentation were delegates from the Belleville-based anti-pollution group, PACE.

With, the government moving toward requiring cottagers to install holding tanks instead of septic tank disposal system, a need is expected to arise for sewage lagoons. Nuclarus proposes to build two lagoons holding about 800,000 gallons and three with a total capacity of more than a million gallons. The sewage would remain in the lagoons for three years, until broken down, then would be sprayed out. Nuclarus plans to service 29 townships.

The people at the public meeting agreed that a need exists for this type of sewage disposal. PACE concurs with this attitude, said William Hockley of Belleville, who attended the meeting.

But three fears were expressed.

Area residents and cottagers questioned the site, on a waterway draining into Mazinaw Lake.

The company spokesman, T. M. Murphy of Toronto said a clay layer four feet below the soil surface would prevent leaching.

The audience also sought assurance that Nuclarus had a previous successful experience in operations of this type. The company spokesman said this would be the first sewage lagoon operation the company has undertaken.

"Finally, doubts were expressed that the $28,000 company funds would be sufficient for a project as large as Nuclarus plans. The spokesman said his company has applied for and expected to receive a provincial grant for an unspecified amount.

Rocky Road to 1984

So it is life in 1984 that has been on the line, under discussion at Loyalist College, as if anyone (save perhaps author George Orwell) knows for sure what little more than a decade hence will bring.

Could it be we are all too psyched out . . . too stoned on dialogue (to be swiftly forgotten, overcome by time and events) . . . too much talk, talk, talk? Too much concern with the sacred cows of our day: pollution and other latter-day goodies such as ecology, environment ,sensory awareness (touch therapy), communication (understanding oneself and ones fellow beings), concern also with such fancy modernisms as dialogue (as mentioned above) and "value judgments."

Asked about the absence of younger delegates and conversely the greater numbers of middle-aged, and did this detract from the seminar's value, a participant said no, he saw it as providing a "therapeutic catharsis." So back to the books and dictionaries on that one . . . it is all pointing ahead on the rocky road to 1984. Actually it is a good descriptive, having to do with expression, "letting it out" as the psychiatrists would have us do.

And Big Brother? Well, as far as we can tell he did not get a mention, for his author Orwell would have us take care, for he will be watching.

But let's not become too cynical, although in this quest for an improved "quality of life," which of course is the seminar's all aim, it does seem to miss a great deal of life's experiences — like the intangibles that the late President Eisenhower spoke of as "the real treasures of men." Or the flowers, books and the music which spelled happiness for Oscar Wilde (leaving aside his more worldly pleasures).

Yes, notwithstanding, there were many facets of this conference which were of value, not least of which was the probing and very practical idealism of Roy Bonisteel. — conflicting as it did with the views of some industrial spokesmen present. Here was some very valuable discussion.

No doubt with an eye to Orwell's image of life in 1984, Bonisteel said "a future wholly dominated by technology can easily be an inhuman future. . ."

He sees no changes taking place in education — controlled by educators who, "like the vestal virgins of Rome's temple . . . alone know the holy word, the secret rites."

The system, he suggests, turns out adolescents, "via a production line, to fit into our economic system with standardized ideas, standardized tastes, even standardized prejudices" on their backs like a trademark, to be good consumers for evermore — it is expedient," he said, "that the child becomes a means to an end."

And doesn't that just about sum up our time — the big $ thing, the car and other possessions that are extensions of ourselves and without which we feel naked, lost; and the approaching frantic round of the stores as all the while time bears its sons away.

The church in 1984, in Mr. Bonisteel's view, will be the "same old denominationally locked, four-wall structure." He would like to see large church gatherings replaced by small gatherings which would be sharing of mind and heart and the church itself becoming involved in social and political issues on a humanitarian basis. Well the church, we suggest, is involved in this manner, but certainly not to the extent of congregations participating fully. Perhaps Sunday afternoons should be devoted to the kind of discussion and action groups that Mr. Bonisteel seems to have in mind. But it must be pointed out too that church groups are active on a day-to-day basis in many spheres.

In the field of health, the CBC broadcaster (host on the Man Alive series) sees a need also, for "caring units," especially for health-handicapped persons with no family and as a means of easing the strain on nurses. Here again is a valuable facet of practical Christianity.

There was more to this conference of course, but this gives some idea of how we should be tackling the future. Such discussions are invaluable, but only to the extent that the views expressed lead to practical application and as a means of moving our society toward a genuinely better future.

Stanfield Comes on Strong and Surprises His Critics

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It would have been difficult not to have noticed it, but have you stopped to think, for a moment, of the sudden change in Conservative Leader Stanfield?

It has been so nearly instant that one of his MPs spoke of it as "miraculous".

And this crack not from one of the rapidly diminishing number of Western MPs still indifferent to Stanfield in their lingering loyalty to Diefenbaker but from a Tory who is the chief trying out a touch of sarcasm.

But from a member of the "maritime Mafia," that solid bloc of Atlantic Provinces MPs, all of them, naturally, ardent supporters of RLS.

What has all eyes on Parliament Hill — including Liberal and New Democratic — popping in surprise has been the sudden positive, even aggressive public posture of this man.

Overnight almost he is displaying a new confident drive.

It surfaced in the last week or 10 days of the campaign, and was plain for all to see immediately after the election and the resurge of Conservative strength.

Gone was the hesitation, the often seeming uncertainty.

Gone was the painfully slow stumbling search for words, the agonized ah-ah-ahing.

Gone was the sometimes almost apologetic approach to confrontation and political confrontation.

All of a sudden, he came on strong, a leader reborn.

It was more than words, more than high palmbiy

Scriptures Circulated In Communist Nations

ADDIS ABABA (CP) — A breakthrough in Bible distribution by Europe by way of official channels was reported to the first world assembly of the United Bible Societies which met in this capital city of Ethiopia in late September.

Scriptures are being circulated without hindrance in all Communist countries except Albania, the assembly was told by Rev. D. Senadolisi, secretary of the societies for Europe. He said Bible work in Eastern Europe has trebled in the last five years.

Parts of the Bible are being translated into modern speech in Hungary, Poland, East Germany and Czechoslovakia. In Poland the production of a complete Bible will start this year. There are four translations in process in the Soviet Union.

While distribution of Scriptures is mainly through churches, there are 5 bookstores selling them in Iron Curtain countries, the European secretary reported.

The 176 delegates from 70 countries formed 14 working groups to discuss the theme, Let the Word Speak. Presentations made by the groups on the final day dealt with the need to break down the barriers between those who have the Bible and those who lack it.

New and better translations were called for, bound in colorful illustrated volumes rather than as drab black-covered books. The use of cassette tape recordings, radio reading and audio-visual presentations was stressed, especially in areas where the literacy rate is low.

Rev. Warner A. Hutchinson of New York, world service editor of the United Bible Societies, called for a drastic increase in Scripture distribution. The rate now is 4.7 per cent of the population of the world, and unless it is increased to keep pace with population growth will be only 3.9 per cent in 1980. Dr. Hutchinson said. He urged a massive drive to provide Scriptures for new readers, especially those under 30 years of age.

In Denmark the Bible Society has been supplying gospels in attractive paperback formats to secular bookstalls in Copenhagen to combat the flood of pornographic literature on sale there.

Emperor Haile Selassie opened the world assembly and received all the delegates at the imperial palace. The Emperor spoke of the place of the Bible in personal and national life.

The Archbishop of York, president of the UBS, presented Haile Selassie with the first copy of the new second edition of the Book of a Thousand Tongues, a historical catalogue of the 1,200 languages into which at least one book of the Bible has been published.

The United Bible Societies, one of the earliest forms of ecumenism, was founded in 1946 to co-ordinate the programs of 50 Bible societies at work in more than 150 countries. Last year 181 million copies of the Bible or portions of it were distributed throughout the world.

The Canadian Bible Society was represented in Addis Ababa by its general secretary, Rev. Kenneth G. McMillan of Toronto, and Rev. DeCourcy H. Rayner of Montreal, who took part in the national board.

Other Canadians on the UBS staff who attended were Rev. Russell Self of Toronto, now based in Singapore, Rev. Edward Cline from Hamilton, personal secretary in Singapore, and Dr. J. A. Loewen of Edmonton, who is UBS translation consultant in Central East Africa.

Monks, Nuns and Computer Help Compile Bible Index

BRUSSELS (AP) — With the help of three Benedictine nuns, two monks and a computer, a Belgian priest is completing what he hopes will be the most useful index to the Bible yet produced.

Rev. Georges Passalecq is himself a monk from the Mont-Benedictine Abbey at Maredsous, known for its mild cheese and strong but as well as its deep learning. A bustling little man of 60, French, Dutch, Italian, Latin, Greek and Hebrew—but he says this jokingly to put off the bands of anyone who can work in his own mother tongue.

"The Bible," he explains, "is the word of God and is used by religious Jews and Christians as a source of prayer and meditation. It is also a reference work used by every writer and reader who deals with history, philosophy, literature, science, ancient literature or even sociology."

He wanted to help these writers, students and readers with an easy to use reference tool that will help them find any word.

Many indexes to the Bible, called "concordances," already exist. They list every passage in which a word is used.

Look up "crime" in Father Passalecq's index and you will get references not only to the word itself, but also to passages that account specific crimes even though the word "crime" itself does not happen to appear in them—the murder of Abel, the rape of Tamar, King David's adultery and his plot against poor Uriah the Hittite.

Father Georges began his index in 1958 and after 10 years found he had collected 80,000 index cards. At this point he enlisted the help of the nuns and monks and arranged to share their nights on holidays and in other free time—an IBM 370 computer of a Brussels bank.

Tug of History To Righteousness

By REV. GORDON C. SMYTH

The story of a general who lost out to the stars is found in chapters four and five of the book of Joshua. It takes us back to around 1125 B.C. when Joshua had led Israel into the Promised Land of Canaan. Sisera led a native Canaanite army against it in a final attempt to expel the newcomers.

The situation was critical. Travellers had to take to byways to avoid being robbed. Farmers refused to take a penny to the field. Deborah appeared on the scene, like a latter-day Joan of Arc. The miserable encounter would settle and make history. The life-or-death struggle took place by the waters of Megiddo, near the Plain of Esdraelon — a battlefield of nations for centuries.

The odds favored the Canaanites. Any reference to chariots of "iron" they had indicates their superiority in the art of war. However, the record indicates that the heavens, the stars, the Kishon — the forces of nature — rallied to the Israelite side. Canaanite warriors became victims of a rage ing torrent. Their vaunted superiority became a liability. Their chariots were bogged down. Later they disappeared in a swirling flood.

The battle ended in a total route for Sisera and his panic-stricken men. Deborah sang a song of victory over the turn of events. She exulted "From heaven fought the stars, from their courses they fought against Sisera."

During the French Revolution Jean Jos. St. Andre, the Vendean revolutionist, said to God: "I presume you have all your steeples pulled down, that you may no longer have any object by which you can be remanded of your old superstitions."

"But," replied the peasant, "you can't pull down the stars."

Robert G. Ingersoll was a militant American atheist. He was delivering a lecture. He paused dramatically. He declared, "They talk about the Omnipotent God who punishes evil. I will give you the Omnipotent God three minutes to strike me down here on this platform for the things I have just been saying. I dare him to do it."

Colonel Ingersoll drew out his watch and held it up in silence for the next three minutes. Seconds were ticked off. When the time was up, he returned the watch to his pocket and announced, "You see, there is Nobody there. Nobody heard me. Somebody in the audience commented to his neighbor, "Did the fool think he could exhaust the patience of the eternal God in three minutes?"

I have read a number of articles by Sir Bernard Lovell, one of the greatest astronomers. I have read about him too. He is going to church each Sunday. If he were asked to take part in a university chapel service, Sir Bernard would probably quote Isaiah 40 as his Lesson, "To whom then will you compare me, that I should be like him? says the Holy One. Lift up your eyes on high and see: who created these? . . . Have you not known? Have you not heard? The Lord is the everlasting God. . . He does not faint or grow weary, His understanding is unsearchable. He gives power to the faint, and to him who has no might He increases strength."

We are fast approaching the season of a very special Star in the heavens. The true light that enlightens every man was coming into the world on that first Christmas Eve. The succeeding struggles in history make more and more clear that Jesus was eternally right in His preaching of a nation that would He made parables and in His reading of human nature need lessly blind to reality.

Who was in Vietnam? Who gains by a Hydro strike? For generations our timber lands have been raped and the top soil is gone. For generations, commercial refuse has been poured into lakes and rivers. These calamities are blasphemies. How dare we even heedlessly describe any of them as "acts of God"?

Jesus Christ does not speak to our politicians, industrialists, and trade union leaders like a flip Van Winkle, old-fashioned in speech and thought. They would do well to take a prayer break, for their own sakes and for mankind's sake. Sundays, instead of making weekends the big time for post event conferences or taking to some country retreat to plot strategy.

There are wonders in earth and sky. The tug of history is towards righteousness. Why mimic a toy general? Why be a spiritual midget when you can be the loser? If you jump over a cliff you do not break the law of gravitation; you only prove it.

Finds Planets

VICTORIA (CP) — A University of British Columbia team of scientists believes there is a solar system of Jupiter-sized planets in earth's neighborhood. Five planets are believed to be circling Barnard's Star, said Olivier Jensen, a post - doctoral fellow in the astronomy and geophysics department, at the University of B.C.

CANADIAN HELPS

The international system of standare tiro was adopted in 1884, largely through the efforts of Sir Sandfired Fleming, a Canadian civil engineer.

ARCHBISHOP POCOCK

Bishops' Promises Radical

TORONTO (CP) — Most Rev. Philip Pocock, Roman Catholic archbishop of Toronto, thinks last April's national meeting of bishops may have been too radical in promising to "set the pace" in simplifying Canada's lifestyles.

"I foresee, rather, a gradual re-education," he said in a weekend interview.

Bishop Pocock said much of the ceremonial already has gone, "and so have chauffeured limousines." Bishops also have been travelling tourist class instead of first class as before the April statement.

"We are victims of a past era," said Archbishop Joseph Flourde of Ottawa.

"The mentality has changed, but the structures of the Church are left over—big houses for bishops.

"Half the house of the bishop is for public service, but everyone will not understand. It is challenge anyone to live a simpler solution."

Bishop Emmett Carter of London, Ont., said he does not feel the lifestyle of bishops is out of line with their spring statement.

Bishop Carter, who said he is "used to poor lifestyles from my other jobs," described his episcopal robes, ring, cross and skullcap as "second-and-downs from the days when the bishop was prince."

"If I were starting out now, I'd do it differently. But why abandon them? Their symbolism is valid should remain."

Bishop Joseph Ryan of Hamilton said his life is "completely patterned on what I must do, the service I must give."

Asked what the bishops were doing to change their personal lives, he said:

"We have streamlined but we have still retained service. People say, 'We like the mitre and crozier.' Hippies like it too, they tell me."

Bishop Jacques Landriault of Timmins said bishops of today are saddled with large buildings from the past and are uncomfortable in them.

"The people want the priest to have a better house than they do. Too often, the people are forcing the priests to be what they are. But it is changing."

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Webster will reside at Ottawa.

Ladies' Auxiliary president, Mrs. Marion Lloyd, welcomed the 21 mothers and 30 sons present. Each cub or scout then presented his mother to the gathering.

Scout Line Ossanna thanked everyone present.

Games and a sing song followed the supper.

Future 'Superstores' Will Provide More

Shopping in 1982 will be at a "superstore" where the customer can not only buy groceries but also complete a host of other routine chores, such as banking and getting gas for the family car.

While buyers will find beer stores when the superstores take hold, they'll find more aside, the researchers said. Most supermarkets now provide food, laundry and household products

Added to these lines by the superstore, the report said, will be already-prepared "fast foods;" personal care products; alcoholic beverages; some apparel; hobby and craft goods; lawn and garden products; gasoline and automotive supplies; stationery and sewing goods laundry and dry cleaning services; and cheque-cashing and bill-paying facilities operated as bank branches within the stores by consumer-oriented banks.

The superstore will stay open later, probably until midnight, but 24-hour operation is unlikely because of the danger of holdups, said the marketing experts.

Over 40

LONDON (AP) — Secretaries over 40 often are dedicated, highly skilled and willing to work long hours without carping about money, yet "bosses in the majority of offices out don't want to know the over-40s," a private employment agency said.

'Planned Parenthood' Has New Campaign

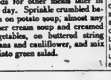
TORONTO (CP) — There's a comic book that says sex is a crag when you "don't care about, much less love, your partner."

The book is part of the material distributed by Toronto's anned Parenthood and aimed at people who may not have thought about contraceptives.

The literature is being sent to schools, social agencies and universities as part of a seven-month publicity campaign that has received $50,000 in support from the federal government.

It has also received some rection.

One mother complained about a radio advertisement saying there are eight methods of conception.



She told Patrice Merrin, executive secretary of Planned Parenthood, that her 13-year-old son heard the advertisement and she didn't want him to think about sex: the mother said she didn't know eight methods of contraception, and there was no spiritual quality in the message.

One billboard appearing in buses, street cars and subway stations has a picture of a long-haired girl underneath the message "If you are not old enough to get pregnant, you're old enough to know now not to."

The group said it is getting an increasing number of calls from women wanting the name of doctors sympathetic about prescribing birth control methods.

"Many of them are teenagers," said Miss Merrin, "they feel they cannot go to their family doctor because he might tell their parents or because they might feel embarrassed with someone who has known them since they were three."

But she also said many teenagers are wrong. Family doctors might feel adolescents look on them with trust, as a source of help.

But not all doctors. The group has a black book of 11 doctors —three of them women—who have been moralistic about birth control.

The group has not complained about the doctors because "we have to be careful . . . we are hearing only one side of the case," said Miss Merrin.

But she added: "It is a pity that people don't realize that doctors are fallible."

Some doctors are so irresponsible that they do not recommend another birth control method after they take a patient off the pill, she said.

Anemia High In Adolescents

CHICAGO (CP) — A study reported by the American Medical Association indicates that nutritional anemia—major deficiency disease of childhood—may reappear in early adolescence.

Although the usual peak age for anemia is the second year of life, the study conducted by doctors in New Haven, Conn., revealed an increase in cases of anemia in children 10 to 14 years of age, and a significant increase in girls aged 14 to 21, whose bodies are not sufficiently well-nourished to cope with the added stress of menstruation.

The incidence of anemia among Negro girls was higher than that for white or Spanish-speaking girls—21 per cent in the 14 to 21 age group. This rate is higher than that for teen-age girls in an all-black community in Gainesville, Fla., reported in an earlier study.

Of the 1,789 children and young adults studied, 12.5 per cent of the one- to three-year-olds, 4.4 per cent of those three to 10 years of age, 2.4 per cent of the 10- to 14-year-olds, and 1.1 per cent of the boys who were 14 to 21 years old had iron deficiency anemia.

The gradual disappearance of anemia after the third year is attributed to a decreased growth rate and the assumption of a more varied diet later in childhood. This "marginal correction" is not sufficient for girls at the beginning of puberty, however, and the anemia reappears.

The authors suggest that there is need for continuing concern regarding the nutritional status of children and young adults in lower socio-economic communities. They recommend that nutrition counselling and iron supplementation be continued into adolescence where necessary.

GIFTS OF THE PAST

"The chief mission of the past is to bring us to the moment at which we are . . . " — Materlinck.

Have you ever considered the service the various historical plaques in town and countryside convey to those of us who are passers-by?

These plaques, often installed by local Historical Societies, are excellent means of animating the countryside and communities with its past history in a capsule amount of time at the disposal of a stranger or traveller passing by.

Consider the plaque mounted in Corby Park, one side of which reads:

"History — Henry Corby the founder of H. Corby Distillery Limited came to Belleville from England in 1832.

Throughout his life he actively promoted this growing municipality and was in the confederation year, 1867, the mayor of Belleville.

The following year he was member of the first Ontario legislature to sit following Confederation.

His son Henry (Harry) Corby, expanded the family business and participated in numerous activities benefiting Belleville and the community at large.

These included:

— Donation of Corby Public Library.

— Donation of Bathhouse and Pavilion at Victoria Park.

— Development of pleasure park at Massassaga Point.

— Establishment of Corby charitable fund for the poor and needy — still administered by the Women's Christian Association.

— Promotion of the original bridge across the Bay of Quinte.

— Donation of Corby Park.

Henry Corby, Jr., was appointed a senator in 1885 in recognition of his role in Canadian life, typified by this Centennial Park.

Let's pursue the truth of this fact — next week.

Upon finishing today's column, we noted with pleasure and thank it of interest to mention Zena Cherry in her column "After A Fashion" appearing Nov. 10 in the Globe and Mail writes: "While he was premier of Ontario Leslie Frost proposed that the province use plaques to commemorate historical events, places and people.

The first was put in 1956 at Niagara - on - the - Lake. Today, the 70th. . . will honor one of Canada's outstanding novelists, Mazo de la Roche."

MISSIONARY SOCIETY

MADOC — Mrs. Russell Lewis hosted, the November meeting of St. Peter's Women's Missionary Society. President, Mrs. Jack Bailey welcomed 21 women and read the call to worship.

The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Tom Deline. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Bailey.

Serenity of the soul was the chosen topic discussed in a panel form.

Mrs. R. Hawkes gave the devotional on serenity also.

Prayer was offered by Mrs. Hawken followed by lunch. — God Bless.

Dear God Bless: The Prophecies are on their way.

What may seem ridiculous to you is dead serious to somebody else. If a reader is concerned enough about his private dilemma to put pen to paper, I feel he has the right to my best thoughts on his subject. I am glad you think they are worth reading.

Dear Doris: My problem is trying to wear a shirt without a bra. All the girls around here don't wear bras and look good. I seem to be too pointed at the end.

I tried wearing heavy clothing but it still shows. Is there some kind of tape or material one doesn't outline your nipples when not wearing bra's — Worried.

Dear Worried: the idea of going bra-less is to feel liberated and unafraid of showing off your body. If you don't like the appearance, go show through your clothes (and you are not alone in this), go back to wearing a bra.

No need to have a hang-up about it, and in the long run, you'll have a better figure. Medical men tell us that girls who go without bra's now are going to have troubles and droopy breasts when they get older.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Must couples see eye-to-eye on money?

BASICALLY, yes; otherwise a man and wife will battle constantly over how to handle the budget. It is easy to see how much tension there will be in a house with two different philosophies on money matters. A wife who has been brought up to wait until she saves for something before she buys it is going to undergo a series of nervous strain if her husband is of the easy-to-low, y-for-it-later school of finance-handling.

Does all kindness have strings?

NO; if a person can be helpful without any conscious or unconscious thought of satisfaction, he can be kind for kindness' sake period. If he gives up his seat everyday on a train, say, to a handicapped individual, he can tell whether he is doing it out of the goodness of his heart. All he needs is to conjecture himself that he sincerely hopes to meet the handicapped traveler each day for no reason other than that the passenger won't have to stand.

Can a child be cured of conceit?

EASILY; the trick, if the child needs to be "cured," is to do it so that the youngster does not suffer lasting effects that can dam age his emotional well-being. It's a child being looking in the mirror and telling himself he's the greatest, a parent needs diplomacy to direct the youngster's self-esteem into useful channels. A mother, say, could tell him he is the greatest in her eyes, but he should know she is speaking only as his mother.

Open Your Home To a Foreign Student

By DORIS CLARK

Have you ever thought how lonely it might be for a university student from a foreign land

In Edmonton, the Zonta Club (women's service club) makes a project of hosting foreign students on the University of Alberta. They welcome them to Canada, arrange trips to various parts of the country, and show in many ways that they are interested in them.

Some of the most precious memories that such hosts carry back with them are their invitations into Canadian homes. A girl in residence may seldom see the inside of a home. Not only does this apply to foreign students; it also happens to students in university away from their own home town.

If you live in a university town, think about it. Call up the dean of women — or men — and find out who would most like to experience Canadian hospitality and the warmth of your home. The homes to you is a broader horizon.

Dear Doris: Your advice is excellent. Some people write to ask you the most ridiculous questions! I wonder sometimes if how you have the patience to answer them. I don't think I would. But then, I'm an old woman (73) and I feel some of them should know right from wrong.

My mother often talked to Mother Shipton's prophecies. I would like to know more of them. Enclosed is 20 cents. Will you please send me the pamphlets on this subject — God Bless.

Ann Landers

Wedding Motto Given

Dear Ann Landers: Several women teachers at our school have been doing a slow burn over the letter from the lady who doesn't mind picking up her husband's socks.

What get us is this: He's the same guy who drops his underwear, shirts and ties on the floor, leaves the cheese and crackers on the counter, doesn't take his dishes back to the kitchen after a snack, and thinks it's beneath his dignity to rinse out the bath tub or pick up a towel.

A good marriage is based on mutual respect and consideration. Under this system, everybody picks up his own socks and underwear. You sure missed the boat, Ann. We are disappointed. —Disgruntled Teachers

Dear D.T.'s: I'm a happily married woman and for 20 years I've been picking up socks and underwear—and I don't mind in the least. I firmly believe that the wife who reserves doing such a simple thing for her husband is really mad at him for something else. I learned early that my husband was a sock-dropper, and he wasn't too careful about where he left his snack dishes, either, but I opted not to retreat into rage and nag about it. No real marriage is without differences, and I consider "complaint and criticism time" for things that are more important.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I married for the second time. Together this wonderful guy and I have been married 13 15, 16 and 20. Our daughter is 11.

One of the young teachers at school has been taking Bill, my 13-year-old stepson, to a gun club where they spend several hours a week. This teacher has been allowing the boy to keep his (the teacher's) gun at our house. The biggest thing in Bill's life right now is being able to hang that gun on the wall of his bedroom.

Ann, there are boys in and out of this house constantly. Bill's 19-year-old brother is seeing a psychiatrist. In the past month he has set off dynamite in the back yard and rigged up a gasoline bomb which, thank God, did not go off. Bill and his 15-year-old brother fight a great deal. They both have quick tempers.

My husband is afraid not to let his son have his way because he threatens to live with his mother whenever there's a disagreement. I am uneasy about the gun and don't know what to do. How far should I go? —Worry Wart

Dear W.W.: You need a third party to mediate this hassle. I recommend the clergyman who married you. There is no source of children having guns as toys, much less the real thing. Guns are for killing and toy guns are for make-believe killing. The steady diet of violence has had a marked influence on young people according to many experts.

With approximately 20 million hand guns loose in our country, out a way to get guns out of the hands of people who have no business having them. Most people who kill were law abiding citizens—until they shot someone.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an 18-year-old girl and I spend half my time washing my hair. It's long and thick and beautiful, but to keep it that way I have to shampoo it at least once a day. If I wash my hair in the morning it's dirty by dinner time. If I wash in the evening it's dirty by morning. I've tried every shampoo, rinse and soap on the market but nothing helps. Any suggestions?—Greasy

Dear G.: I checked with beauticians and skin specialists and they seem to think the problem isn't your hair but your head. You have a strong preoccupation with your crowning glory. It doesn't really need all that shampooing but you have a compulsion to wash it, regardless. I'm sure you won't care for my answer, but here it is.

Jeffrey: Step Up Citizen Contact

Alderman Robin Jeffrey yesterday formally launched her bid for the mayor's office on pledges of stepped-up contact with Belleville citizens as a key feature of her administration.

If elected, the woman councillor challenging Mayor Russell Scott's bid for a third term, promises:

Personal tours of the city to anticipate problems; an office schedule facilitating daytime workers, the handicapped and elderly; regular use of the media to increase personal communication with the citizenry.

"No more secrets. You're going to know what's going on." Ald. Jeffrey told supporters as she marked the start of her campaign push with a symbolic ribbon - cutting at the door of her Front St. headquarters.

She described her campaign as one to be "cleanly and fairly fought" to elect an administration with compassion, with concern . . . and with honest purpose."

Ald. Jeffrey said her mayoralty bid will not be run as a crusade to "exterminate the opposition, as my opponent seems to prefer," but as a "great opportunity to give the people of this city a choice when they go to the polls to vote for mayor."

Her candidacy represented "not labor, not business, nor any other special group . . . I represent everyone," she said.

"Never will I win my ends by condemning another. But I will not hesitate to use the facts that I know in my campaign ahead."

The Jeffrey campaign assembly came as city elections head for a livelier phase. From today, candidates have just two weeks' campaigning before voters go to the polls Dec. 4.

Candidate's Proposals

These are proposals advanced yesterday by mayoralty candidate Alderman Robin Jeffrey to increase contact with Bellevillians:

— A weekly tour, along with a top civic official to seek out problems before they develop a need for "crisis solution."

— A city hall office schedule that will see a nine-to-five daily timetable; at her desk one night twice a month for workers who cannot make personal daytime contact; moving office sessions downstairs once weekly to city hall's ground floor to facilitate the handicapped and senior citizens.

— A weekly newspaper column — if necessary at her own expense — and a monthly radio program to increase dialogue with the public.

Deer Killed On Highway

TRENTON (Staff) — A buck deer was killed when it darted in front of a car driven by Charles Craddock, 354 Sidney Crescent, Belleville, early today on Highway 33 north of here.

Ontario Provincial Police at Brighton said the deer apparently had been down to the Trent River to drink and was returning to cover in the Murray Hills.

The incident happened about 8 a.m. just north of Highway 401.

Manjuris Outlines Election Platform

Preparation for metropolitan - style government and new priorities on civic projects are among aims of city council candidate Alex Manjuris.

They are given in an outline of his platform for the Dec. 4 election.

"Consideration must "also be given to such things as an official side plan for the city," he says.

An "in-depth analysis" on how and where tax dollars are spent to produce a budget finding specific requirements without "undue hardship" on the taxpayer" is also a priority.

"We must set new priorities as to sewers, parks, utilities, maintenance, building and other projects as well as taking a good hard look at our contribution to the ecology of our area," says Mr. Manjuris.

He claims there is a feeling that communication with city hall is "non-existent" and calls for an "open-door" policy to provide "direct connection into city hall."

Pensions Are Major Issue For Ontario Firefighters

Improved retirement pensions and long - term disability benefits will be two of the major demands in contract requests made by firefighters in Ontario for 1973, says George Ireland, president of the Ontario Firefighters' Association.

The Hamilton firefighters said in an interview Friday Ontario firemen favor a pension that ultimately yields 70 percent of an average of the fireman's best five years of wages.

The comments came during a regional session with firefighters in Belleville. A Belleville firefighters' spokesman indicated the city's department will make its 1973 contract bid next month.

Al Jenkins, vice president of OPFA district two (extending from Trenton to the Quebec border) says there will also be a movement in some centres to achieve full pension benefits after 60 years, instead of 65. He said efforts will also be made to bring the full Canada Pension into effect at 60 years.

On the subject of long - term disability, Jenkins from Nepat, like other Ontario locals, that one member of the association in district two suffered

Tweed Students To Visit CHSS

TWEED (Special) — In preparation for next September, the grade eight classes of Tweed Senior Public School will be participating in an orientation visitation to Centre Hastings Secondary School, Madoc.

To better acquaint each student with the various courses offered at the grade nine level, the two, four and five year program. A group of eight students will spend one day, following a grade nine student's timetable.

Visitations will commence Monday, November 20, and will continue until everyone has had the opportunity to benefit from this experience.

Dan Bateman has been in charge of making the necessary arrangement through W. Beevor, principal of CHSS.

Board Recommends Ditch Be Fenced

Members of the Belleville Parks Board of Management have recommended to city council that an open ditch running along a new housing development project on West Tracey Street be fenced as a safety measure.

The ditch in question is part of Jones Creek and, in the opinion of board members, could present a hazard for small children in the housing development.

The watercourse is carried from a corvuary attack this year after 36 years service. This man has inadequate benefits, Jenkins indicated.

Ireland said that the association considers improvements to pensions so important that in many multi-year contracts, details on these benefits are not dealt with but negotiated on an annual basis.

He said that in 1971, there were 14 two-year contracts signed by locals in Ontario but this total has increased to 31 this year. There are 75 locals in the province.

"On pensions, we like to leave the door open," he said.

For firefighters in district two, it was the 23rd semiannual meeting and the initial purpose of the daylong closed - door session was to help the 15 district two locals in the preparation of contract bids.

Paul Stevenson president of the Belleville firefighters, said firefighters in Belleville will make their contract bid for 1973 before Dec. 1. He added the, like other Ontario locals, Belleville will be considering pension and disability provisions of great importance.

Seek Pretraining Scott tells Firemen

In an address to a district meeting of the Ontario Professional Firefighters' Association at Belleville Friday, Mayor J. Russell Scott called on firemen to press for higher pre-employment qualifications for firefighters.

"Our fire departments and police are the only professional groups that do not demand pre-training," he said.

"You should demand this." He advised the OPFA to work with community colleges in the development of courses for fire departments.

"Educators are not qualified to decide what you should know . . . there should be something in your association to develop these courses."

The mayor also advocated an extension of pending police arbitration legislation to firefighters. By new provincial legislation, police locals and municipalities must begin negotiations for new contracts two months prior to expiry. If talks break down, arbitration decisions must be made by the end of January.

"This will speed things up," the mayor predicted.

Decision Deferred On Park Feature

The Belleville Parks Board will be in no hurry to develop a feature area for its new west Bell Blvd. park in the city's north end.

Last spring the firm of Johnson, Sommerfelt, Weinstein and Associates Ltd. was retained by the board to prepare a conceptual plan with cost estimates for the overall park development including a family-oriented active hub area.

The Belleville Kiwanni Club offered to pay the cost of the plan up to $3,000 and has also indicated it will assist in some feature area park development costs.

The consultants have now asked for comment on the general intent, scale of development, and the basic design theme before attempting more detailed design and costing.

Preliminary park development such as road construction, parking area and development of a swimming area is now under way and a changeroom and canteen building has been erected.

The suggestion was that a special family-oriented theme area with emphasis on children's rides and possibly a new west bank park be built at this time, it would be better to wait until the park was open and from actual experience get the public's view on what feature attraction might be favored.

It was noted that the west riverbank park was in an isolated area and suggested that possibly not two per cent of Belleville residents even know where it is.

Board members approved his recommendation further deferment of a feature area planning until the park is opened.

In the meantime the deferment will be discussed with the Kiwanis Club.

Belleville Councillor Concerned

Where Will Metro's Garbage Go?

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The search is on for a landfill site where 400,000 untreated tons of Toronto's annual garbage pile-up can be railroaded up to 125 miles out of Metro.

That radius could mean north, west or east of the provincial capital. But it also includes the Belleville area.

The hunt has narrowed to about four likely sites. But neither CP Rail — selected as the hauler this week by Metro council — or provincial government environmental officials for now are revealing any locations being visited.

Main reasons given The Intelligencer for secrecy are:

— Announcing the locations before a final choice is made would push up land prices.

— The railroad wants to have its case ready to explain away any local opposition which could be vociferous.

Already concern is being voiced from one source.

Belleville alderman Jean Smith, chairman of the city's Solid Waste Disposal Committee, says he is "greatly interested" in the final site choice.

"Because the Belleville area is on a CP rail line and is within the 125-mile radius, I am deeply concerned over the possibilities for the people in the Belleville area."

She said she has telephoned Metro chairman Allan Lamport at Queen's Park but is not "completely satisfied" with the response.

Wednesday, Metro Council received a CP offer to haul a quarter of Toronto's yearly garbage — in an unspecified number of unidentified size containers — to a "suitable site" outside Metro.

The railroad newspaper quoted Environment Ministers James Auld as saying "all hell will break loose" when the spot is finally named.

Mr. Auld was not available for comment Friday. But Wes Williamson, acting director of the ministry's Waste Management Branch said he didn't think he could add to comment referred to any particular area.

"No matter where it is, all hell will break loose from the people in the vicinity. I always does," he said.

Mr. Williamson said his department was aware of the locations of sites under review, since it had assisted in the road with necessary information — including geology — in the search for a location.

But divulging such information was a matter for CP Rail or Metro.

He believed the choices had been narrowed to four sites, and final selection would depend on a lot of things, including availability of land".

The report said a municipality can pass a bylaw forbidding disposal of waste within its boundaries. But whether such a measure could be passed retroactively — and be legal — might be a question for the courts.

However, final approval for any such site must come from the Ministry. The railroad would have to apply for such approval.

"And before we even consider that there'd have to be a public hearing in the area of the site . . . at which everyone would have an opportunity to say their piece. There's no question about that at all," said Mr. Williamson.

Any municipality could also raise its objections at such a meeting — before the Environmental Hearing Board — which would then make its recommendations to the ministry.

Gil Mackie, CP Rail market development manager in Toronto, said the company had looked at more than 200 possible locations, is viewing a "prime site" and has more than four more alternatives. But he could not pinpoint any areas under consideration.

"We have to go through a lot of negotiations which, could be jeopardized if this information came out prematurely," he said. Negotiations included obtaining options on land.

Local protests also are anticipated this week.

"What we'd like is to be prepared . . . to show to these people, prior to them getting all up in arms, just exactly what this operation is," said the railroad official.

"There are many — I received notice of a garbage dump — which really is not what we're doing at all. It's a sanitary landfill site. A sanitary landfill site as opposed to the garbage dumps of old."

Final agreement on the operation with Metro may come early next January or February, and the actual haulage would begin about 18 months later — in mid-1974.

Ald. Smith says she is doubly concerned since her committee — which also has been joined by the towns of Picton and Trenton, and Hinchinbrook Township — is seeking local government approval to request a provincial grant for a waste disposal survey.

Such a study might prove a waste of money, however if a site for Metro Toronto garbage was confirmed in the Belleville area, she says.

The city councillor says she can't understand "why any municipality in the radius" hasn't begun raising questions about the project.

"I'm concerned about our own garbage without the possibility of Toronto's," she said.

Only Deputy Reeve Set in Brighton

BRIGHTON (Staff) — The village of Brighton's municipal election has already been partially completed with the acclamation of deputy reeve Mrs. Dorothy Brainerd as reeve of this village of 3,650.

She succeeds former reeve Mrs. Roberts, who stepped down to seek a seat on the public utilities commission.

There are two candidates for deputy reeve, five for the three council seats and three for the PUC's two seats.

The most controversial issue for this election is the wholesale ban on sale of liquor in dining rooms in the village.

The question of wet or dry has been defeated at the polls in previous years. However, with the influx of younger people into Brighton, many are optimistic for a positive vote.

Running for council are being sought by four-year veteran James Simpson; Brighton public school principal William Pettingill, Peter Lyon, a marketing research analyst and antique dealer, Gerald Fryberg, an officer at CFB Trenton and Gerald Simpson, president of Royal Canadian Legion branch 190, Brighton.

This year, there are more Canadian designs than in the past with native cultures again being emphasized. The cards come in two sizes and 18 cultural themes are illustrated.

Mrs. Ralph — whose door will be open every day until Christmas — notes that the cards can be imprinted, making them ideal for businesses.

Grading Eggs At Belleville

Better Eggs On Market

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The egg you'll eat tomorrow morning may have a "runny white," but it is a better egg than your parents ever ate.

A side effect from this 1972 egg is that it has put some Quinte egg producers out of business.

Eggs, a staple in many morning diets, have become big business lately in many area farmers looking at empty chicken coops.

"Through the need to keep egg prices low and competitive, and demands being cuts of feed and care, small operations everywhere had to be abandoned," said Allyn Finkle, owner of Finkle's Egg Grading Station, Pinnacle Street.

The small 100-to 150 hen operation of a few years ago has been replaced by chicken farmers holding 4,000 to 50,000 egg-laying hens.

"Business-wise, this is good because eggs can be kept down through bulk-buying, but I miss the times when lots of small producers would come into the station and talk about the time," said Mr. Finkle.

Virtually any egg bought now, never was capable of hatching, no matter how long a hen sat on it.

Muriel Finkle, while "candling" eggs at a rate of 360 dozen an hour using a conveyor belt operation said "hens aren't allowed to run around, and the chicken coop is off limits for the rooster".

The reason for isolation, said the hon is fed a selected diet and clean water resulting in a higher quality egg.

A chicken will "produce one egg" in an egg factory, having her eggs drop away from her nest as they are laid and land. She will "break down" physically by retirement, then become a meat product.

Chickens nearing the end of productivity will lay larger eggs which will also be more liquid. Eggs are no longer individual quality but are not as firm as the smaller eggs.

By the dozen, grade A large eggs cost only 10 cents more than 1945.

Quality of eggs has risen much faster and higher than price increases, said Mr. Finkle.

Postal Workers Quiet

The Belleville local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers has been instructed by the national executive to remain silent about negotiations now under way in Ottawa.

Local president Don Matthews says he recently received a letter from the union office in Ottawa asking members to remain quiet until a decision has been reached.

Officials from the CUPW and the Letter Carriers of Canada are currently in joint negotiations with the federal government. The unions' last contract expired March 28 but conciliation talks have been extended in an attempt to reach a settlement before the Christmas mail rush.

Mr. Matthews also said the 43 members of his local have not received strike ballots.

The inside workers do, however, have ballots on which they'll signify their acceptance or rejection of terms agreed upon by their negotiators.

"That doesn't say we're going to strike, though," said Mr. Matthews. The ballots also contain no reference to a possible strike date.

Chris Lavoie, president of the Letter Carriers of Canada, Belleville local, said last week the 30 members of his group would not stage wildcat strikers despite the fact they have already received strike ballots.

Union members cannot legally walk out until seven days after a conciliation report is handed in.

Author Honored

A frequent visitor to the Bay of Quinte area, Mrs. Eula Carscallen Lapp of Toronto, will receive a certificate of commendation from the American Association for State and Local History.

The award to Mrs. Lapp is one of 35 awards and 42 certificates being awarded this year by the Association in recognition of state and local history projects. Mrs. Lapp's award is for her authorship of "To Their Heirs Forever" a group biography of 11 United Empire Loyalist Methodist families who emigrated to Canada. While doing research for the book Mrs. Lapp was a frequent visitor to Hastings County and to the Napanee and Picton areas.

California Can Blame WHA for Hockey Woes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

California Golden Seals have had little to cheer about so far this season in the National Hockey League and they can blame it on the World Hockey Association.

The Seals, in last place in the NHL's West Division, got two-goal performances Friday night from Joey Johnston and Reggie Leach to defeat Buffalo Sabres 5-3, but it was only their third victory this season in 18 games.

One of the most promising clubs in the NHL last year, the Seals had hopes of being a top contender this season in their division but the rival WHA lured away about seven of their promising players.

It was a crushing blow to the young Seals and they showed it by their early-season performances.

In one other game Friday night, Bobby Schmautz scored three goals to lead Vancouver Canucks to an 8-4 victory over Los Angeles Kings.

The Seals, whose players averaged about 22 years last season, were knocked into an exciting hockey team but the WHA enticed top scorers like Bobby Sheehan, Tom Webster and Gerry Pinder to join its ranks. The Seals also lost promising players like defenceman Paul Shmyr, goalie Gary Kurt Smith and forwards Wayne Carleton and Ken Baird.

Then earlier this month, owner Charles O. Finley announced that coach Garry Young was resigning for health reasons. Young had undergone lung surgery before the season started.

Fred Glover, a former coach, replaced Young, but it now is his job to whip the Seals into a contender.

If they can get the scoring punch and spectacular goaltending exhibited against the Sabres Friday night, they still might reach the playoffs.

Marv Edwards in goal was particulary brilliant in the first period when the Sabres outshot the Seals 15-8. And he got support from Johnston and Leach. Gerry Meehan spoiled Edwards' shutout bid in the third period when he scored at 16:13 mark on a 30-foot slap shot.

While the Seals played before 4,272 fans in Oakland, a sell-out crowd of 13,370 at Vancouver watched the Canucks score three goals in each of the first two periods to rout the Kings.

Schmautz's goals for Van-

BOBBY ORR

couver were his seventh, eighth and ninth of the year while Andre Boudrias got two goals. The Kings got goals from Mike Corrigan, Don Kozak, Corrig and Dick Vesasky.

In weekend action starting tonight, Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs will have Eastern players returning to their lineups following injuries.

The Bruins, who have been without star defenceman Bobby Orr for most of the season, have announced he is fit to play and will likely see action against New York Islanders.

Orr underwent knee surgery last June and after trying the knee in three games in October, agreed on the advice of his physician to take a rest from games to give the knee time to strengthen.

Friday, after the doctors watched him in practice, his left knee was pronounced sufficiently recovered to allow him to return.

Returning to the Leafs in their game against Minnesota North Stars will be centre Norm Ullman and left winger Denis Dupere. Ullman was out a month with a knee injury and Dupere three weeks with a shoulder injury.

With the return of the two, coach John McLellan has decided to break up the Leafs' most successful line of Dave Keon, Paul Henderson and Ron Ellis.

McLellan will keep Ellis and Keon together and will reunite Henderson with Ullman, who has been his centre mate since Pierre Pilote was traded to Chicago Black Hawks.

Dupere moves to his left wing position with Darryl Sittler and Rick Kehoe, leaving the Quebec Nordiques' Pierre Jarry and Errol Thompson line intact, giving Leafs four lines.

The Bruins will be with Orr out Doug Mohns, Fred Barrett and Fred Harvey, out respectively with a pulled groin, twisted ankle and shoulder separation.

In other games tonight, Chicago Black Hawks meet the Canadiens in Montreal, New York Rangers are at St. Louis against Blues, Detroit is at Los Angeles against the Kings and Atlanta Flames take on the Penguins in Pittsburgh.

Win Eight Straight
Terriers Prove Terrors

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Orillia Terriers, who got off to a mediocre start, won their eighth straight game in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League Friday with a 7-2 shellacking of they Brantford Foresters.

Gail Hornets kept pace with Terriers atop the eight - team league by edging Kingston Aces 5-3 and Barrie Flyers hammered Belleville Quintes 11-4 while Owen Sound Downtowners walloped Oakville Oaks 6-1 in other league action.

At Brantford, in a game marred by 12 major penalties, Jim Koon and Mike Draper led the Orillia attack with two goals each as Terriers brought their record to 10 wins and two losses.

Jim O'Brien, Clare Alexander and Charlie Cippolla added a goal each for the winners and Al Rochon and Jim Reid replied for Foresters.

In Kingston, Ron Smith's power-play goal in the third period proved the Hornets' winning marker. Howie Dietrich, Pete Stoutenburg, John Nickerson and Vance Millar also scored for Gail while Charlie Convery, John Meyer and Wilf Flanigan fashioned the Kingston goals.

Owen Sound moved past Oakville into fourth place by beating the Oaks. Rod Bloomfield scored twice for Downtowners and Terry Keeling, Mike Cain, Bob Monteith and Mayo Pasquette lit the red light once apiece.

Oakville's Wayne Weller spoiled Owen Sound netminder Ron Patterson's bid for a shutout with less than four minutes remaining in the game.

In games tonight, Owen Sound visits Galt, Orillia hosts Kingston, and Belleville is at Barrie. Brantford is at Oakville on Sunday.

Marlies Unleash Scoring Power

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros unleashed a devastating offence and flawless defence Friday as they romped to a 12-0 whitewash of last-place Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game.

Toronto took period leads of 5-0 and 8-0 in a game which saw brawls in the second and third periods. Five players received game misconducts.

In other league play, Kitchener Rangers moved out of the cellar with a 7-4 win over Peterborough Petes, Hawks, Peterborough Petes downed Hamilton Red Wings 5-2, Oshawa Generals nipped Sudbury Wolves 5-4 and Ottawa 67's defeated London Knights 3-2.

Paulin Bordeleau led Toronto with three third period goals while Brad Winton and Wayne Dillon each scored twice. Kevin Devine, Ron Dahlen and Paul Cassidy, Peter Marrin and Mark Howe picked up single goals.

Mike Palmateer earned the shutout.

Cheerers Coasts To Third WHA Shutout

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Even in the hectic days of his National Hockey League career with Boston Bruins, shutout goaltending was not unusual for Gerry Cheevers.

But few of his shutouts have come as easily as the one he gained Friday night when he made only 16 saves as Cleveland Crusaders beat New England Whalers 3-0 in a World Hockey Association game.

The shutout was the third for Cheevers since he quit the Bruins to play this season in the WHA and the win increased Cleveland's lead in the WHA's Eastern Division to four points over Quebec Les Nordiques, who were idle Friday night.

In other scheduled games, Alberta Oilers scored three third-period goals to defeat Chicago Cougars 3-1 and Winnipeg Jets beat Los Angeles Sharks 5-1.

The Whalers managed only four shots on goal in each of the first two periods, but the Crusaders hardly showed any greater flaring power. They also got four shots on goal in the first period and nine and eight in the second and third respectively.

But they scored three last-period goals, the first at 3:33 when Jim Shaw deflected a slapshot by defenceman Jim McMasters into the net past goalie Al Smith. Bob Dillabough received 52 seconds later after a scramble Ray Clearwater got the other goal at the 12:42 mark when Smith was screened on the play.

Attendance at the game was 5,085.

At Edmonton, Chicago goalie John McLeod was brilliant in the first two periods but third-period goals by Jim Harrison, Ed Joyal and Ron Ward killed the Cougars after Bob Sicinski had given them the lead early in the second period.

The win, before 2,200 fans, kept the Oilers in a first-place tie in the West with Winnipeg.

Chris Bordeleau scored one goal and assisted on two others as the Jets downed the Sharks, the third victory this season for the Winnipeg team over Los Angeles.

Bordeleau's goal was his 15th of the season, tops in the WHA. The Sharks scored first when J. L. LeBlanc beat goalie Ernie Wakely on a pass from Bart Crashley but Garth Rizzuto tied the score two minutes later after picking up a Bordeleau pass to score.

It was Bobby Hull's first game in the Los Angeles area since joining the WHA and 8,314 were there to see not but it was Bordeleau, a former Chicago Black Hawk player like Hull, who stole the show.

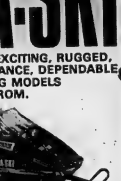
American Powers Tie

Nova Scotia Voyageurs, by virtue of hard work that earned them a 1-1 tie with Boston Braves and an assist from Cincinnati Swords, emerged from Friday night's American Hockey League activity with a three-point lead in the Eastern Division.

While the Voyageurs were the Swords trimmed Rochester Americans 6-3 to take over top spot in the west. As a result of their defeat, the Americans remained in the runner - up position in the east, lagging behind the Voyageurs by three points.

In other games, Cleveland Barons edged Richmond Robins 4-3, Hershey Bears helped the Swords by holding Tidewater Wings to a 2-2 tie and Springfield Kings defeated Providence Reds 5-3.

The Nova Scotians needed a power-play goal by Larry Fullan in the third period to overtake Boston, which had taken the lead early in the first period on a shot by Steve Sterling.



Cincinnati's victory was the seventh in the last eight games for the Swords. Doug Rombough led the way with two goals. Ron Busniuk, Steve Richardson, Jim Nichols and Rick Dudley got the others. Scoring for Rochester were Gene Sobchuk, Herman Karp and Wayne Morgan.

All but one of the goals scored at Cleveland came off the power plays. Gary Campbell put Cleveland ahead with his 15th goal of the season while both teams were at full strength.

Quintes' Defence Plays Dead In 14-4 Drubbing By Flyers

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Editor

Ralph Plane received one small consolation for the keen nose that he picked up in the final period Friday night's OHA Senior hockey game — he wasn't around to watch the last two periods.

Karl Bagnell was.

Bagnell, a University of Michigan graduate, is slated to start in goal for Belleville when they travel to Barrie for a Saturday night meeting. The Orangeville native has to be more than a little apprehensive about his starting assignment after watching the Barrie Flyers pump 57 shots on Pete Matejis and Ron Jary en route to a 14-4 victory over the Quintes.

Matejis, who played last season with the University of Windsor, worked the first and a third periods, allowing 10 goals. While he appeared shaky on a few of the Flyers' tallies, the work of his teammates did little to help ease his first Senior 'A' start.

Defensive mistakes were the order of the night for Belleville; mistakes that led to breakaways, tip-ins, rebounds, shots from the slot and just about every other kind of net-minder's nightmare. Jary, who worked the second period, made 17 saves in that space of time but was still burned four times as the visitors dominated play.

The Barrie attack was a work of art as the Flyers threw the puck back and forth to set up easy scoring chances. Their art work was made easy by the Quintes' failure to lay on the body.

"We just weren't 'checking,'" ronocoded Quintes' coach, Wayne Brown. "Instead of taking the man out after he made a pass we were turning to see where it went and he was picking up a return pass.

"We used to be a good checking club because we did not put the puck in the net that often, now . . ." he let his voice trail off. "It's getting on my nerves" admitted the usually buoyant Belleville coach.

The defensive work of the Quintes latter has been enough to upset any self respecting coach. The team has given up 40 goals in their last four appearances.

The game started well enough for Belleville, as they outshot the Flyers 14-10 in the first period, but missed scoring chances forced them into a 3-1 deficit.

Pete Panagabko opened the scoring after only 54 seconds of play, scoring on a screened shot. He added two more tallies later in the game, while linemates Corby Adams and Connie Menadale gave the unit a total of six goals for the contest.

Paul Grills scored Belleville's first goal when his 30-foot slapshot went between the pads of goalie Bill Woodyatt. George Godson later added a pair scoring on a two-on-one break in the second and a pretty passing play with Bob Taylor in the third.

The Quintes were hit with injuries as well as on the scoreboard. Top pointgetter Lorne O'Connell was felled by a stiff jolt from Steve Sly in the third period but returned to action. Plane suffered a broken nose when he attempted to check Rick McCutcheon in the first and right winger Al Ferguson sat out most of the final frame with a groin injury.

Hardest hit among the Quintes' defencemen were Greg Marchen, who was on the ice for 10 Barrie tallies and Bob Edmonds who was on for eight.

The Quintes, who were outshot 37-30 in the contest, now sport a 4-8 season record.

Sly Maneuver

Defenceman Steve Sly of the Barrie Flyers applies an elbow to the side of Belleville centre George Godson's head in attempt to prevent the speedy forward from picking up a rebound in front of goalie Bill Woodyatt. The Flyers defence played a hard-nosed game throughout Senior OHA action while their offence clicked to the tune of 14-4. The loss was the fourth straight for the home town Quintes.

Riders Outjinx Ti-Cats

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — There was a time in the 1960s when Ottawa Rough Riders would pre-test Hamilton Tiger-Cats to pre football playoffs and get beaten by oddball plays.

It happened several years with Russ Jackson as Ottawa's quarterback and Ottawa newspapers talked about the jinx Hamilton had over Riders.

Then coach Frank Clair and Jackson even had special classes in how coaches could devise bonuses for beating the TiCats.

Rider coach Jack Gotta says there is no thought of any jinx as Ottawa's Hamilton hoodoo day in the opening game of the 1972 Eastern Football Conference finals.

"That old Hamilton jinx stuff doesn't apply to these guys," says Gotta. "Some of them think Hamilton is in Ohio."

Riders will have to worry about stopping Hamilton quarterback Chuck Ealey and want to get their own offense on the scoreboard.

In three regular season games this year, Hamilton took them all. They were the only losses of the season for Ottawa.

Patriots Get Tough

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New England Patriots are getting tough—not against the rest of the National Football League, just with their own players.

Phil Bengtson, who makes his debut Sunday against Buffalo Bills as head coach of the once-promising Patriots, will be doing it without the Pats' No. 1 running back. Carl Garrett suspended by the club for the remainder of the season because he missed a workout.

And speaking of workouts, Miami Dolphins may get one of their toughest of the season Sunday when they face New York Jets.

The Dolphins are aiming for their 9th straight victory of the season, and, if they pick it up, they'll tie Cincinnati Bengals for American Conference East championship—the first playoff berth to be locked up—but will take a giant step toward the first perfect record attained by an NFL team in 30 years.

But the Jets in general and quarterback Joe Namath in particular have a few scores to settle. They lost 27-17 to Miami last month when Bob Griese was quarterbacking the Dolphins. Now that he's injured, Earl Morrall is calling the signals. And earlier this week, Morrall made a few calls which could have Namath aching for more than mere sore toe.

Sunday's other games have Pittsburgh Steelers at Cleveland in an AFC Central showdown, Minnesota at Los Angeles, Oakland at Denver, San Diego at Kansas City, Dallas at Philadelphia, Green Bay at Houston, New Orleans at Detroit, San Francisco at Chicago, New York Giants at St. Louis and Baltimore at Cincinnati. On Monday night Atlanta is in Washington.

The Patriots began this season with high hopes. Jim Plunkett, with a fine rookie year under his belt, was expected to pass the Pats into contention, ably assisted by Garrett, runner Josh Ashton and others. And it started out just fine. After a season-opening loss, New England upset Atlanta Falcons and Washington Redskins on successive Sundays.

Then the roof caved in on coach John Mazur and his team. Buffalo bombed them 38-14 for the first of what has now reached six straight defeats. Mazur resigned earlier this week and Bengtson was named interim coach.

Keys to Argo Success

REGINA (CP) — The CBC says a well-financed group in Toronto wants to buy the Canadian Football League franchise held by John Bassett and install Eagle Keys, now coach of British Columbia Lions, as coach of Toronto Argonauts.

The report quoted an unnamed football official saying the Toronto group—"which has enough to buy out the Bank of Montreal"—all fed up with Bassett" and wants to provide Toronto with the calibre of football it deserves.

The statement came after a league meeting earlier this week in Winnipeg at which the Toronto club presented notice of a $200,000 asking for approval in principle to expand into the

Celtic Fans Relax

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Forgive the fans at Boston Garden if they relaxed at halftime. The Celtics' National Basketball Association game against Milwaukee Bucks Friday night.

Here were the Celtics, winners of 14 straight, and the Bucks, 1-5 in their last six starts, leading the Bucks by 15 points. It was obviously, a time to relax. The only problem was that Milwaukee didn't take it easy.

The Bucks, led by Kareem Abdul Jabbar, rallied in the second half and defeated off Boston 95-88, only the second loss all season for the Celtics. Jabbar scored 34 of his 35 points in the second half.

Elsewhere in the NBA Friday night, Detroit Pistons whipped Chicago Bulls 109-96, Kansas City-Omaha Kings downed Suns 117-96, Seattle SuperSonics beat Philadelphia 76ers 105-97, Portland Trailblazers trounced Golden State Warriors 105-97

Legal Bets Beat Bookies

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph Salerno, a law-enforcement footballer, said Friday of track betting has effectively reduced illegal bookmaking operations in New York, in some cases driving "bookmakers out of business."

Salerno, who served with the New York City police department for 20 years, said the Off-Track Betting Corp. has shown that "government can effectively operate" the betting business.

"Organized crime syndicates are getting out of gambling," Salerno said before a public hearing held by a special state commission.

Skrien Worried By Bomber Attack

WINNIPEG (CP) — Dave Skrien, head coach of Saskatchewan Roughriders, hinted Friday that the biggest chore this club faces in Sunday's Western Football Conference sudden-death final could be keeping up to the Winnipeg Blue Bombers offence.

"You just know they'll score," he said. "Three-out-of-four predicted. "They have too good an offence to stop cold."

But Skrien is confident his club will be on the scoreboard as well. He said his team, which has been to the Grey Cup three times in the last six years, will come up with an offensive effort to match that of Winnipeg.

Skrien has a healthy George Reed, the bruising fullback who ran for 1,099 yards this season, to add to his offensive punch.

Reed is "close to 100 per cent." His's healthier than he has been

"If you'd seen me back the line to get that bad day, coach, I'd bet you'd put me on all fullback!"

all year long, Skrien said, "They'll be recovered from any bruises or minor injuries. They'll have the steam. I found if you have a layoff your legs get rested and when you come back you're full of steam."

Commenting about the weather, he said, it "won't bother us as much as it will bother them."

Winnipeg, which won two of three regular-season games between the clubs, is unbeaten at home in its last 13 games.

The game will be telecast nationally on CBC beginning at 3:30 p.m. EST.

Getty Against US Entry into CFL

EDMONTON (CP) — The possibility that the Canadian Football League might be expanded to include four United States teams should be "killed as quickly as possible," Alberta's minister of federal and intergovernmental affairs said Friday.

Don Getty, a 10-year veteran of Edmonton Eskimos until his retirement in 1965, made reference to a question in the legislature.

"A dissatisfied Canadian has been brought to the attention of the government by the football organizations in Alberta," said Mr. Getty. "They have been faced by an ultimatum from the board of the Canadian Football League to agree to expanding into the United States.

He said the four cities considered for expansion are New York, Jersey City, Birmingham, Ala., and Tampa, Fla.

"The concept of the Western teams is how could they fight this. Would the government support them and must they be faced, for instance, with the prospect of the Grey Cup being played in Florida?"

Mr. Getty said such a move "probably would become the experience of the end of the Canadian Football League as we know it."

He said expansion would make it difficult for Calgary Stampeders, the Eskimos and the Regina-based Saskatchewan Roughriders to remain in the CFL.

He said he had discussed the problem with Premier Peter Lougheed, a safety with the Eskimos in 1949 and 1950, and with Horst Schmid, minister of culture, youth and recreation.

Only the federal government and the provinces which have CFL teams have been asked to discuss the proposed expansion because "we think the CFL is one of the tremendous successes in our country."

"There are people with considerable money dollars and time for leisure activities; there are new stadiums being built; therefore we think the league could expand into such places as Halifax and Quebec City.

Steinkraus Jumps Out

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Steinkraus of the United States will go out a winner when he retires from international show jumping today.

Steinkraus, 45, from Norcom, Conn., and in the twilight of two decades of international competition, won the International championship event Friday night at the Royal Winter Fair horse show.

Steinkraus, riding Maiesnging, and team-mate Neal Shapiro of Glen Head, N.Y., aboard Trick Track, were the only riders of 13 competitors to complete two rounds of the grand prix course without knocking down a fence.

In the subsequent jump-off, Shapiro hit a fence and had to settle for second.

Ireniclaly, Maiesnging is a Canadian-born horse—but his luck didn't rub off on the members of Canada's team.

"I blew it," said disconsolate newcomer Lis Ashton, nicknamed the "daredevil kid" by increasing numbers of fans.

The 23-year-old Toronto girl, whose strong showing in her first appearance with the Canadian team has placed her second in the show, was the only Canadian rider to have a fault less first round.

Canada's fortune chances tumbled when the young equestrian was thrown over the head of her horse, incurring an 8th fault penalty in addition to eight more faults for fences down. Miss Ashton was unhurt.

"Scotch Valley was off stride," she explained, "and I couldn't get him in right for the fence."

In the see-saw battle for team points, the United States with the top four qualifiers in Friday's event, won 24 points to overtake Canada by 14. Standings are: U.S. 112, Canada 98 and Mexico 44.

Kathy Kusner of Monkton, Md., on Triple Crown and Frank Chapot of Neshanic Station, N.J., riding Good Twist, led for third with 4 faults each to complete the American sweep. In fifth position was Jesus Portugal of Mexico City aboard Mexicano. He had 8 faults.

Herron Wins

WINNIPEG (CP) — Mack Herron, the 5-foot-9, sized running back of Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Friday was presented with Jeff Nicklin Memorial Award as the most valuable player in the Western Football Conference.

Herron, who rushed for 1,527 yards this season—the highest total since George Reed's 1,780 in 1965—was also awarded the Eddie James Memorial Award as the leading rusher in the West this year.

Service Stations Sue Oil Companies

TORONTO (CP) — An association representing 1,500 of Ontario's 8,500 service station operators filed a writ of summons in Supreme Court Friday charging seven major oil companies with misrepresentation, breach of contract and promotion of price wars.

The writ, filed by the Ontario Retail Gasoline and Automotive Service Association is against Imperial Oil, Sun Oil, Petrofina Canada, Texaco Canada, Gulf Oil Canada, Shell Canada and BP Oil.

George Coates, manager of the association, said the organization is seeking a confirmation with all companies in an effort to obtain lower gas prices. He said 70 per cent of the motoring public use brand-name gas stations while the other 30 per cent prefer less service and cheaper prices at the less-advertised brand stations.

He said most of the association's members lease stations and commodities which then become both supplier and landlord.

The writ alleges misrepresentation of "exclusive" franchise agreements and asks for damages and an injunction.

Breach of contract is alleged where oil companies open "off-brand" stations near franchise service stations. The association charges that the off-brand stations sell at prices lower than the wholesale prices charged to the franchise dealers.

Millhaven Fugitive Jailed in Yugoslavia

TORONTO (CP) — Sreto Diambras, the last of 14 prisoners who escaped from Millhaven penitentiary near Kingston, Ont., last July, has been arrested in Belgrade and may serve his first term for car-theft in a Yugoslavian jail.

Staff Superintendent Stuart Loree of the provincial police criminal investigation branch said Friday Interpol officials told him of the likelihood of Diambras serving his term in Yugoslavia.

Interpol, the Paris-based international police organization, informed Canadian police that Diambras, 25, is in custody on a charge of assaulting his father.

Staff Superintendent Loree said Yugoslavia prefers not to return Yugoslav nationals who commit crimes in other countries but will apply foreign sentences if the offences are documented. Diambras came to Canada in 1966 and holds only landed-immigrant status here.

Came to Visit, Stays 90 Years

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — When a young Irish colleen came to Canada in 1882 to visit relatives, it was supposed to be a short holiday.

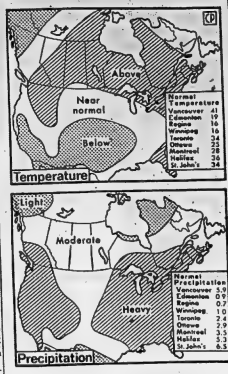
However, she stayed to marry and raise a family in the Peterborough area. Sunday, Mary Jane Thompson will celebrate her 104th birthday. Two of her six children are still living.

She will spend her birthday in Peel Memorial Hospital, where she has been for the last three weeks.

Mrs. Thompson gave up travelling only last year.

To Try Again

TORONTO (CP) — Eddie Sargent, Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for Grey-Bruce, said Friday he will try again to stop a $15-million payment to Fidinam (Ontario) Ltd. to build a Toronto headquarters for the Workmen's Compensation Board.



Mr. Sargent said he has found legal grounds for seeking an injunction restraining the board from paying Fidinam and will start proceedings Wednesday.

Chess Novice

EDINBURGH (CP) — When it comes to playing chess, the computer is no better than a modest amateur, says a university expert. Prof. Donald Michie of Edinburgh University suggests that "the task of producing a good computer chess player is far more difficult than some early optimists supposed." Writing in New Scientist magazine, Michie said that big changes are needed in machine intelligence before computers achieve the status of chess grand masters.

Space Shortage

VANCOUVER (CP) — A shortage of office space in Vancouver by 1974 has been predicted unless planning starts soon. "It takes a couple of years to build an office tower and most of them are in the planning stage for two years prior to that, so the amount of space available for about five years ahead is predictable," said Vaughan Bruneau, Vancouver manager of Knowlton Realty Ltd. He foresaw a shortage of about 700,000 square feet in 1974 and more to a million square feet in 1975.

Not So Cold

Temperatures will be above normal for most of Canada over the next 30 days according to the United States Weather Bureau. Coastal regions will experience normal temperatures. Precipitation will be moderate over most of the country, with heavy precipitation expected in parts of British Columbia, Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes. This is not a specific forecast and changes may occur. (CP Newsmap)

Metro Mail Service Virtually Cut Off

TORONTO (CP) — The city's postal service was virtually cut off Friday as 281 drivers, members of the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada, continued their wildcat strike against the post office.

Air mail service from Toronto has been cut off and city deliveries thinned to a trickle.

The strike of mail couriers, men who move mail by truck between the main terminal and the airport, escalated as pickets turned back mail trucks from outlying stations.

Earlier, post office supervisors used taxis to move mail around the city and empty street boxes and seal them.

A post office official said all part-time employees have been instructed not to report to the city delivery section and the normal skeleton Saturday and Sunday day shifts of full-time employees were told not to come to work.

The drivers walked off their jobs Thursday in protest over an eight-month delay in obtaining a new contract.

Flood Water Deepens

WINDSOR (CP) — The water that has covered more than half of Pelee Island since Tuesday's wind and rain storm is getting deeper, Reeve William Barkla of Pelee Township said Friday.

The tiny Lake Erie island is normally protected from high lake levels by a series of man-made dikes, but the clay barricades are leaking.

Ontario Premier William Davis was to make a personal inspection today of the flooded communities on Lake Erie, Lake St. Clair and the Detroit River.

Mr. Barkla said the island urgently needed help from the mainland in the form of bulldozers, cranes and front-end loaders to help re-build the battered dikes.

If the water is not off island farmland before the winter freeze-up, farmers will be unable to get their crops in next year, he said.

He said a conservative estimate of costs for dikes and other protection would be $200,000.

Recall Cars

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. announced Friday it is recalling more than 60,000 cars and trucks which may need braking or fuel-leakage corrections.

CBC Called Maddening Wonderful

TORONTO (CP) — Norman Campbell, the producer who has filmed everything from America's favorite hippo to Russia's most famous ballet dancer, was discussing his career with Canada's publicity - owned broadcasting network.

"The CBC is the most marvellous place to work for—and the most maddening," he said in an interview.

the most maddening," he said thing happening there, there's something so frustrating. We're saddled with out-of-date studios, it's like crystal-set technology, you see old Scotch tape holding things together. Every show you do is performing some sort of miracle just to get on.

"I guess you could call it a love-hate relationship."

Mr. Campbell, a one-time weatherman who left the duties of a meteorologist on barren Sable Island for a career in radio and television, doesn't think he'll give up Canada in favor of living and working abroad.

"I've considered moving at different times. But I think it's Canada—there's something unique about Canada as home-base."

However, he says, "The irony is that I've done more variety overseas in England and the U.S. than on the CBC."

Irony and contradiction seem to crop up in almost every aspect of the 48-year-old producer's work.

He's just finished taping the National Ballet spectacle of Russian Rudolf Nureyev's Sleeping Beauty at the O'Keefe Centre in Toronto, the second ballet production he has handled.

"I'd never seen a ballet before I did Swan Lake in 1969," he said.

When he was approached to do Swan Lake, Mr. Campbell recalled, "I probably said, 'What's Swan Lake?'"

And the producer - whose friend and collaborator, Donald Harron, describes him as "your favorite YMCA counselor," also has produced two episodes of All in the Family, the TV program about Archie Bunker, a bigot who scatters racial slurs and insults as freely as the ash on his ballered cigar.

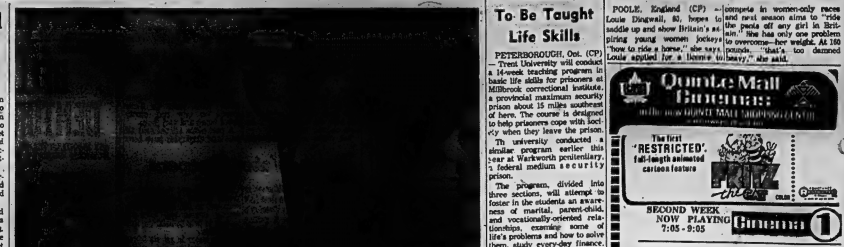
Mr. Harron, a comedian who works with Mr. Campbell on many productions, said his partner is so innocent "I'd never embarrass him by swearing in front of him."

Mr. Campbell, graduated from the University of British Columbia with a mathematics and physics degree and a desire to be a meteorologist.

He was put off meteorology, and enamored on show business, when he got his first weather station, a year's posting on Sable Island, a barren spot off the coast of Nova Scotia.

His first break with the CBC came when he persuaded a producer to accept a song he'd written—about CBC TV, as it happens.

It became a theme song for a summer radio show in Vancouver and he was asked to write a song a week for the show.



After four years in radio, he came to Toronto in 1952, and produced the first program ever seen on CBC TV, a 15 minute mish-mash called Let's See, with the former Toronto mayor Allen Lamport, Percy Saltzman and a puppet called Chichiman.

Since then, his projects have included a production of Romeo and Juliet which won a prize at the Monte Carlo International Festival Cinderella, which won an Emmy in 1976, and the musical Anne of Green Gables, which he and partner Harron co - authored as a TV production in 1956.

He's also done a Walt Disney movie in Copenhagen and Bertin called Ballerina, and a variety series with Gold-diggers in England, as well as a summer series with Liberace.

May Use Fire To Stop Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's forest fire experts are considering "using fire to fight fire," says Dal Hall, executive secretary of the Canadian Forestry Association.

It's awfully complex and it's difficult to make statements about where fire can be used," he said in an interview.

It is a tool for controlling forest fire hazards. But it's a tool only for experts."

Mr. Hall said use of "prescribed fires" to prevent fire outbreaks was discussed by the Canadian committee on forest fire control, which met in the fall at Petawawa, Ont., bringing together representatives from governments and agencies across the country.

"Fire can be used to reduce fuel hazards over wide areas to minimize the danger of large-scale fires occurring," he said.

"Prescribed fire also can be used for silvicultural purposes —to prepare seedbeds, kill undesirable growth or thin overstocked stands."

Mr. Hall said prescribed fires must be used extremely carefully and a number of factors weighted and considered. It is only one weapon in a whole arsenal that includes public education, prevention, management, control and firefighting.

In his view, public education still is the most important factor, but "education about the uses of fire is part of that, I guess."

About three-quarters of the nearly 9,000 fires each year are caused by man or his machines, Mr. Hall said. About $60 million is spent fighting forest fires by the provincial, federal government and industry.

"But it's to protect the most important resource in Canada."

The total annual value of forest products in 1967 was about $3.1 billion, he said. About $1.7 billion was paid out in salaries and wages alone, without considering the other services, such as gas stations or grocery stores, that are dependent on forestry salaries.

Canada has one of the largest forested land masses in the world. About 814 million acres are in productive forest compared with about 162 million acres in agriculture production.

As well, forest represents one of the most valued recreational areas.

So protecting the forests is everybody's business and the forestry association believe that the public should know something about how it's done, he said.

Most of the 9,000 fires each year occur in the highly populated "nearby" wilderness areas, such as the national or provincial parks or forestry preserves near big cities.

These socially important areas need constant protection. But the control of fires there is easier than in some of the more remote areas.

For example, 38 per cent of the area burned in 1968 was from the man-caused fires and 62 per cent from lightning or natural fires.

In both these areas, use of prescribed fire may play an effective role.

In some remote areas of British Columbia and the Northwest Territories there are "old forests" with large amounts of dead and windfallen trees. The fuel hazard is great and a fire would burn rapidly, dangerously and be hard to control.

However, under controlled conditions in wet areas, firefighting teams might burn up some of this forest fuel and prevent out-of-control fires during hot, dry summer months.

In using prescribed fires, forestry officials consider wildlife, species of trees and their reactions to fire, geography of the area, current weather and climatic conditions, management of smoke and so on.

Wildlife stands a better chance of escaping from controlled fires than from wild fires. And sometimes a small burned-over area can provide a necessary cleared habitat for some species.

In Alabama, quail were brought back to areas where they had been almost extinct when prescribed fires were used for clearing, Mr. Hall said.

Deaf Justice

BIRMINGHAM (CP) — In the course of his trial on a burglary charge, William Ferguson persuaded the magistrate that he was not a professional criminal and therefore should be granted a suspended sentence. "You see, m'lord," Ferguson said, "I'm deaf as a post and cannot hear burglar alarms." He was fined £50 (about $120) and put on probation for a year.

Friend in Need

Store manager Ed Strickland of Vincennes, Indiana, found the tiny hummingbird, here, perched on his hose, in a parking lot several weeks ago. The bird was lost and exhausted and unable to fly. Strickland fed it sugared water and tropical fish food and now it flies around his office. He would like to release the bird to continue its winter migration but can get no firm advice on whether it would survive the late trip.

Bermuda Tourist Industry Slumps

By ALAN HARMAN
CP Correspondent

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — The tourist industry here has run into a sudden slump.

For two months in a row the number of tourists coming to this tiny British colony has dropped in comparison with the equivalent months in 1971.

The decrease for September was 10.02 per cent and hotel occupancy was only 57.5 per cent compared with 78.8 per cent in the same month last year.

Tourism officials offer a variety of excuses for the slump. They blame recession in the United States, the U.S. presidential election, economic problems, an oscillating stock market, the Olympic Games and the crippling blow last June of Hurricane Agnes.

But The Royal Gazette, the colony's daily paper, has cited another reason.

Saying Bermuda's heyday has ended, the paper gave this reason: "We are not pricing ourselves out of the market, as is repeatedly suggested. We have, in fact, already priced ourselves out of it."

Until the end of September, 329,545 people had visited Bermuda in 1972. This is an increase of 3,636 or 1.11 per cent.

Canadian visitors showed a slight increase for September, but are down on the year thus far. In September 2,073 Canadians took holidays here, compared with 2,018 in the same month last year.

But in the first nine months of this year only 25,003 Canadians came to Bermuda on vacation compared with 25,146 in the same period of 1971.

Said The Royal Gazette: "How can we hope to hold our North American markets when the attractions of Europe are available at far less expense, when Mexico calls and offers prices which make those of Bermuda look silly."

And the outlook for the future isn't bright either.

At the beginning of October confirmed bookings stood at 63.3 per cent of hotel capacity as opposed to last year's 71.7 per cent for October. Bookings for November stood at 35.9 per cent and do not compare favorably with the 43.6 per cent in November, 1971.

One reason given for the low occupancy figures is that two new hotels have only recently opened and are still building up their business.

But while people talk of the high cost of a Bermuda holiday, residents are complaining about the high cost of living in Bermuda.

The new governor, Sir Richard Sharples, had been in Bermuda for less than a week when he received a petition from a consumer group asking that he do whatever is possible to stop the price of some relief from "unjust and excessively high prices."

The cost of living has gone up in the last couple of years and visitors, looking at supermarket prices, have expressed amazement.

To add fuel to the fire a steward aboard the cruise ship the Canard Adventurer, which visited Bermuda each week during the summer, said hundreds of tourists told him they would never visit Bermuda again because of the high prices.

These visitors were people who lived aboard the ship and had all their meals on board included in their fare.

For people who fly here on their honeymoons the hotels are quoting a "special" rate. At the new Southampton Princess the minimum for eight days and seven nights is $507. The maximum is $617.

Prisoners To Be Taught Life Skills

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Trent University will conduct a 14-week teaching program in basic life skills for prisoners at Millbrook correctional institute, a provincial maximum security prison about 15 miles southeast of here. The course is designed to help prisoners cope with society when they leave the prison.

Th university conducted a similar program earlier this year at Warkworth penitentiary, a federal medium security prison.

The program, divided into three sections, will attempt to foster in the students an awareness of marital, parent-child, and vocationally-oriented relationships, examine some of life's problems and how to solve them, study every-day finance, and demonstrate the benefits of working with society rather than against it.

Volunteers from the university and elsewhere in the community will assist in the course.

G. A. Irvine, assistant deputy warden at Warkworth penitentiary, said the program was "very effective," adding that the prisoners showed considerable interest and commented favorably on it.

Galloping Grannie

POOLE, England (CP) — Louie Dingwall, 80, hopes to saddle up and show Britain's aspiring young women jockeys "how to ride a horse," she says. Louie applied for a licence to compete in women-only races and next season aims to "ride the pants off any girl in Britain." She has only one problem to overcome—her weight. At 160 pounds, "that's too damned heavy," she said.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Make your appearance bright and early for your share in communal expressions of faith. Then do all that's reasonable for family life.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Reflection in the calm of this Sunday will set you onto a productive track to follow on long-range plans, legal matters.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): There's more than you can do conveniently; people to see, correspondence to catch up, all sorts of objects to stow-away.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Rest and relaxation for a leisurely, pleasant Sunday. Social movement should not be pressured—let people find their own paths.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Not so much to do should mean a chance to think, organize schedules and budgets, receive news in perspective.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The quality of your daily living rises —leave old habits behind, find better customs and practices them well.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Relax and let others be themselves. Much that you've planned now comes to its conclusion with little more influence from you.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Plenty of advice is flocking about, none of it near enough to the situation for ready application.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Circumstances combine to force decisions you aren't ready to make. Aside from personal inconvenience, you have little to worry about.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your capacity for everything gets you into a squeeze—situations with generous margins for error and revisions are desired.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Issues you thought were settled flare up or crop up again. Avoid disagreement with people and institutions.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Choose early which of several claims on your time and attention you will honor. Make definite appointments as the others.

Milk Consumption Varies for Adults

By G. C. THOSTESON, Md

Dear Dr. Thosteson: There is disagreement in our family as to the minimum amount of milk an adult should have, and also how much he can have without detrimental effects.

I read somewhere that adults need no milk at all and should not have more than a glass a day. My father says this is not so, and that no amount of skim milk can be detrimental.

Well, I'll tell you. These "all-or-nothing" arguments are usually a big fat waste of time, but they do give us a fairly sensible notion of what the facts are. Trying to establish some exact amount of milk an adult is about like asking, "How much water should a motor vehicle use per day?"

What are we talking about? A family can get by comfortably on double - bottom truck rig going across country.

People are at least as variable as motor vehicles. In fact, more so. There's the occasional person who is hypersensitive to milk, and there are those rare, if little (But he must take pains to see that he gets his calcium and other nutrients from other sources).

At the other extreme, there's the nut who insists that "milk is bad for adults," and won't drink any. Maybe he's just abnormal. Science does not like a natural intolerance of milk, yet he insists on putting cream in his coffee, ice cream and other dairy products, and won't give up dairy products because it "need somewhere" that "everybody needs milk."

For the great majority of us, like you or me or your adversary in the argument, about a glass a day will fill the basic requirements. If we miss a day, now and then, no harm. Or if somebody happens to like milk and wants to drink a quart or so a day, still no harm.

If he's fat, he ought to drink skim milk, not regular. If he's skinny, he can pick up some extra calories by using whole milk and cream.

If we don't drink milk, but we get the same nutrients in ice cream, cheese, baked goods, cream in coffee, or in other dairy products, what's the difference?

The great difference of opinion with the food faddists is that I don't agree that you "must" eat or drink any one "must eat" eat so and thus.

Source for milk. It's a good, useful, nutritious drink, and in my experience there are more people harmed by avoiding milk than are helped by avoiding it.

The whole violent argument makes about as much sense as the drunk who, just before he takes his ninth shot of booze for the day, pauses and says, "Wait. Gotta take my vitamin pill now."

What I mean is, let's be sensible about this.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can a spinal anesthetic—and only that —be taken for removal of the uterus?

Yes.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♣	Dble	Pass	3♥
Pass	4♥

Opening lead — queen of spades.

Let's assume you're West and South gets to four hearts after the bidding shown. You lead the queen of spades, which wins. East plays the four and South the three.

The missing spades are the A-10 and you realize there is no chance of beating the contract unless declarer has the ace, in which case, if you play another spade, your partner will be forced to play the ace even though dummy follows low.

It is also clear that, even if declarer started with the Ace of spades, the chances of upsetting the contract are far from bright, since South for his bidding probably has every other high card and good points missing. You are therefore unlikely to score more than two spades and a club.

However, despite the dim outlook, there is a chance of scoring the setting trick, if partner has an ace in the six or ten of trumps. Since that is your only real hope, you plan the defense accordingly and play the deuce of spades at trick two.

Partner wins dummy's eight with the ace and returns a club, just as you expected him to do when you played your seemingly low card to ask for a low suit return.

You win the club with the ace and lead the jack of spades, hoping partner will appreciate from this peculiar sequence of spade plays that you are trying to get him to ruff the lead of spades with his highest trump.

You continue with all right when he ruffs with the six, hesitates and now declarer cannot stop you from winning a trump trick.

So while your side scores only a measly 50 points on the deal, you are nonetheless entitled to pat yourself on the back for having found the only way to stop the contract.

Kissinger, Tho Seek Quick Pact

PARIS (CP) — Henry Kissinger resumed his secret peace negotiations with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho in Paris today amid indications that their government-level discussions are determined to seek a quick settlement.

The U.S. presidential envoy who flew here Sunday night said on arrival that if the North Vietnamese negotiators showed the same spirit of understanding and flexibility which resulted in last month's nine-point draft agreement, "a rapid set-tlement of the war is probable."

U.S. officials hope that North Vietnam will agree to modify Vietnam peace terms to make them more acceptable to the Saigon government which so far has hinted that it would not be bound by any agreement signed without its consent.

Tho's negotiating team, however, is expected to insist that there be no major modification of the nine-point agreement announced by Hanoi on Oct. 26.

Kissinger, on his 21st trip to Paris for talks with Tho since the two men first met in August, 1969, is expected to be seeking modifications in the draft peace agreement, dealing with a three-segment administrative body which will make provisions for South Vietnam's political future.

Kissinger will insist that the agreement make clear that the administrative body, of which the Viet Cong will form part, cannot be viewed as a coalition government pending elections, well-informed sources said.

Under the terms of the tentative peace agreement reached last month, North Vietnamese forces would remain in South Vietnam to preserve the territory now controlled by the Viet Cong.

But Saigon wants these troops to b wiehdrawn gradually once a ceasefire takes effect.

Kissinger also will seek North Vietnam's agreement that an international peace force be sent to South Vietnam once a ceasefire begins. Canada, Hungary, Poland and Indonesia have been approached to send troops to the proposed peace-keeping force.

U.S. sources are confident that a ceasefire can be achieved within the next few weeks, possibly by Christmas.

Kissinger said that Nixon had sent him to Paris for what the president hoped would be the final stage of the negotiations to end the war in Indochina.

His instructions are to stay in Paris for as long as is useful to conduct negotiations in a spirit of conciliation, moderation and goodwill, Kissinger said.

Bourassa Not Bound by Motion

Quebec's Liberals Demand New Canadians Learn French

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Liberal party called for French-language education in Quebec for all immigrant children from non-English-speaking countries at its 17th annual convention here during the weekend.

But Premier Robert Bourassa, in his closing speech, said a new fiscal-sharing arrangement to increase provincially tax revenues is the priority issue facing his government.

He also promised his government will lead the other provinces in increasing provincial authority over communications.

The controversial language resolution, to send failure non-English-speaking immigrants to the French school system, was passed at a stormy workshop session Saturday.

Mr. Bourassa told reporters that his government is not bound by the party's resolution which will be treated as only one element in an over-all language policy.

He pledged in his closing speech that his government will respect minority rights.

The Liberal resolution includes proposals that religion cease to have any bearing on the school system to which a student is enrolled and that prospective immigrants be informed they must achieve a perfect working knowledge of French.

The government in 1968 legislation guaranteed parents the right to choose English or French as the language of instruction for their children.

During Saturday's debate Liberal party officials ordered television journalists to stop taping the debate. The party also demanded, and received, the tapes made since Friday night but assurned them after reporters covering the convention signed a motion censuring the party.

Tension-easing Policies Approved

Brandt Has Solid Majority

BONN (AP) — Willy Brandt, bolstered by his greatest personal election triumph, had an overwhelming mandate today to pursue the tension-easing policies that won him the Nobel Peace Prize.

A record number of West German voters gave his Social-ist-Liberal coalition 54.3 per-cent of the 37.4 million ballots cast Sunday against 44.8 per cent for the conservative Christian Democrats. This means a 272 seats for Brandt in the 496-member Bundestag, the lower house of parliament, a solid majority of 48.

Brandt immediately served notice he plans an unprecedented journey to East Berlin before Christmas to sign his government's friendship treaty with the Communist East Ger-man regime.

"I recognize the results of the vote as a mandate to carry forth . . . the work we started with success in the last three years," Brandt said in a victory statement. "The majority confirmed we are on the right course."

His Social Democratic party alone received 45.8 per cent of the vote and replaced the Christian Democrats party as the largest party in the Bundestag for the first time since the West German republic was formed in 1949. The Social Democrats wound up with 230 Bundestag seats, a gain of six over the 1969 election.

Foreign Minister Walter Scheel's small but pivotal Free Democratic party gained in stature from its alliance with Brandt's Socialists, receiving a surprising 8.4 per cent of the vote and 42 seats. Three years ago, the liberals barely cleared the five-per-cent hurdle needed to remain in the Bundestag. Before defections from its ranks, the Free Democrats had 30 seats in the previous Bundestag.

For the Christian Democrats, who had ruled West Germany for 20 years from 1949 to 1969, it was their worst election setback. They won 224 seats in the new Bundestag, compared with 242 three years ago.

Ottawa Ready For Tri-level Consultations

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government offered Sunday, at the start of the first tri-level conference of federal, provincial and municipal officials from across Canada, to enter into a continuing consultation process involving all three groups.

Municipalities, constitutionally, are wards of the provinces and beyond the jurisdiction of the federal government but "no one level of government" can any longer respond to the challenges posed by modern-day Canadian cities, Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford said in a news release.

"We will establish new ways of attacking the urban challenge together, or our problems will drift from being manageable, as they are now, to being unmanageable almost overnight."

Mr. Basford said it is urgent that the three levels of government set up "some means of continuing consultation" to come to grips with the problems facing cities in the country.

The main problems, from the federal viewpoint, were listed as housing, poverty, transportation, environment public finance, social instability and urban form, or the appearance of cities.

The news releases said Ottawa recognizes "the primary role of the provinces in municipal institutions and in shaping urban form," but noted that federal legislative and budgetary powers are used in the pursuit of national objectives and could also be used to further comprehensive planning "in which provinces have the lead role."

As well as establishing a continuing consultation process, Mr. Basford said, the three levels of government should attempt to consolidate their respective policies and "take coherent action together."

The release said federal activities already have a heavy impact on cities which it estimated will become the home of 94.4 per cent of all Canadians by 2001.

"A polluted environment must have developed a genetic defect!"

Same Problems Face Big and Small - - Scott

By ROBERT WHITELAW
Toronto Bureau
The Intelligencer

TORONTO (Special)The problems of urbanization are equally a problem of rural areas in Canada said Belleville Mayor J. Scott.

Dr. Scott, speaking to the opening day session of a tri-level conference of municipal, provincial and federal delegates said that rural areas must plan and zone to retain their way of life.

Dr. Scott was outlining his thoughts on the municipal submission by the Canadian Federation of Municipalities presented today by Whitby Mayor D. G. Newman. Dr. Scott was one of five mayors who made statements on the 47-page brief.

Dr. Scott said the problem of urban municipalities of Ontario, particularly those of more than 10,000 people are similar throughout Canada.

He said in a special interview with the Toronto Bureau of The Intelligencer he stressed that smaller urban centres such as Belleville had the same problems comparatively as large metropolitan centres.

The Belleville physician said that he used statistics of the city in making his comments on the report. He said that in the last five years Belleville has had 4,000 new jobs and an increase in population of 7,000 people. The balance, he said, of the population growth spilled over to the rural communities in a 25-mile radius.

The Belleville mayor in his statement mentioned the problem areas of Belleville such as core growth, transportation and the difficulties in communicating with the federal and provincial agencies.

He said municipalities in Canada have to provide day-in and day-out recreation while federal and provincial governments only have to cater to the holiday season.

Unhealthiest Beaver Live in Algonquin Slum

TORONTO (CP) — Some of the unhealthiest beaver in Ontario live "in slum conditions" in Algonquin Park, wildlife biologist Milan Novak told a conference on humane trapping Sunday.

He said that this is because of overpopulation—a beaver problem that exists throughout North America—and a ban on trapping in the park.

"The beaver first ate up all the aspen, then the birch and the red maple," he said. "Now there is nothing for them to eat."

He said the rodents have switched to eating shrubs and grubbing for root bark of the conifers, not normal beaver food.

"Colonies are small in numbers and unproductive because of the lack of food. The beaver are also continuously on the move and this is unusual for the species."

Mr. Novak said social stress is an important factor in the health of beaver populations.

When they are congested, populations tend to shrink, fighting drives year-old kits out of the colonies and many of the beaver appear to lose interest in living.

Dublin Holds IRA's Leader

DUBLIN (CP) — The Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army is calling for "a wave of protest" in the United States, Britain and Ireland against the arrest by the Irish government of Sean MacStiofain, chief of staff, Sean MacStiofain.

The Provisionals' political arm, Sinn Fein, said MacStiofain's arrest Saturday was an "act of collaboration" with the British Army, "calculated to give aid and comfort to the forces of British imperialism in Ireland."

MacStiofain is believed to be the mastermind of the IRA's campaign of violence in Northern Ireland, which is aimed at uniting the province with the Irish republic.

The Dublin government has been reluctant to crack down on IRA leaders because of their grass-roots support in the republic. But in recent months the government pushed a Special Powers Act through Parliament giving IRA men to trial without jury and several other terrorist leaders have been arrested.

British officials in Northern Ireland welcomed the arrest. But one source said the republic has arrested IRA leaders in the past and then released them after a short stay in jail.

MacStiofain, 40, was one of the most wanted men in Britain and Ireland. He caused a sensation three weeks ago by walking through police lines to show up at a Sinn Fein meeting.

He escaped assassination earlier this year when a letter bomb blew up and wounded him in the face.

Silver Weddings Celebrated

Queen and Philip Are Joined By Other 1947 Bridal Pairs

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip were deluged with congratulatory mail today, their 25th wedding anniversary, then prayed at a Westminster Abbey thanksgiving ceremony that brought London its biggest display of royal pageantry in almost 20 years.

The 45-minute service were 100 couples married on the same day in 1947. Fourteen members of Europe's royal families were also there.

A fanfare of trumpets greeted the royal party at the abbey. Prince Philip, 51, strode beside his wife down the aisle of the abbey.

They were followed by heir to the throne, Prince Charles, who sported a giant red carnation in the lapel of his morning suit.

Princess Anne, in a bright fuschia-printed coat and dress and wearing a large pill-box hat of plain silk with a cascade of feathers, walked beside her brother.

BIRTHS

DOUGLAS — Mr. and Mrs. G. Douglas (nee Wilkinson) wish to announce the birth of their daughter Jennifer Lee, on Nov. 16, 1972, at the Belleville General Hospital. A special thanks to Dr. Allore and Dr. Miles.

Mass — a presentation by talented musicians that blended modern and classic music idioms based on the Catholic Mass.

The result, in a church seating 700, was a standing-room only event — the biggest attendance the work has yet drawn, says Peter Lavender, manager of the youthful Toronto non - professionals who have been presenting the work in southern Ontario since its premiere six months ago.

Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan, St. Michael's pastor, said most of the reactions to the work were favorable — and came from all age groups.

But, then, the event was not necessarily a question of age," said Msgr. Sullivan.

"It was a different experience of the (Catholic) liturgy, and that was the purpose of it."

Mr. Lavender said the group was "thrilled" by the Belleville response.

The Toronto Mass, formally described as a celebration, scored for electric, brass and percussion instruments, is the brainchild of Toronto musician Tim Ellis.

Mr. Lavender said organist by his teens, Mr. Ellis spent six years working with various rock groups. It was during this time he conceived the blending of blues, rock jazz and classical forms that resulted in the Mass, composed in less than two months.

The work has been recorded and sold 41 concerts and Mass celebrations while it also is distributed to universities and religious orders in Canada and the U.S.

Shovels for Everyone!

TWEED (Special) — Sunday night's snowfall which dumped more than two inches of the fluffy white stuff over the immediate Belleville area was general over the district.

The two to three inches of snow was general all the way from north Prince Edward county throughout the entire Tweed forest area. The exception was at the Quaker where only a trace of snow was recorded.

In the rural areas, roads were reported slippery though sanded, but only one school bus was reported cancelled as a result of slippery road conditions.

In the city sander trucks were out early Monday as a result that snow on traveled arteries was mostly melted by the time of the morning rush hour.

'Fooling' Fire Cause

TRENTON — Shortly before 5:30 p.m. Sunday, Trenton firemen were called to a double apartment frame dwelling on Front St., to extinguish a small basement fire Chief Cecil Ellis believes was started by "kids fooling around."

According to Chief Ellis, Mrs. D. Barry of 129 Front St. was watching television when she smelled smoke and called firemen. Contained in the basement, the small blaze was extinguished approximately 15 minutes after the alarm was sounded.

Firemen cut through a portion of the building's outer wall to ensure all flames were out. They discovered the origin of the fire on a basement beam.

Damage estimates range between $100 and $200.

Bloomfield Pupils Schooled by Sabre

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

BLOOMFIELD — A Sabre jet retired from the Canadian Armed Forces has become an unusual instructor for the students of Pinecrest Memorial elementary school in Bloomfield.

The aircraft was purchased by the pupils of Pinecrest Mountain View airport with funds raised in work - a - thons and class projects. Although the students paid $800 for the plane it has now increased in value to approximately $5,000.

Vice - principal of Pinecrest Clarence Brooks explained the Pakistan war has rocketed the price of the aircraft and if the school were to bargain eventually it could bring as high as $9000 if sold.

The teacher added, however, that it is highly unlikely the Pakistan war has rocketed the price of the aircraft and if the school were to bargain eventually it could bring as high as $9000 if sold.

The aircraft, an F86 Sabre jet is similar to the one at Belleville's Zwicks Island park and was used in action over Europe in the last war.

Used as a teaching aid the plane has demonstrated lessons in banking, mathematics and history.

Money was obtained from the bank to buy the plane and pupils learned the principles of borrowing.

A history lesson was provided when the school obtained the aircraft's log containing the story of its use.

Armed Forces pilots visited Pinecrest and taught pupils about their plane. On several occasions they flew over the school at low altitudes and performed air manoeuvres for students to observe.

Mr. Brooks said students have spent thousands of hours studying and using the plane.

All controls remain intact and each youngster has had a turn sitting in the cockpit. Pupils have also crawled into the interior of the jet to examine her mechanisms.

In addition to being a valued teaching aid the plane is also considered a memorial to servicemen, although vandals have tampered with the jet on several occasions and recently a seat was stolen from it.

Thurlow Sports Get Together

CANNIFTON (Staff) — A meeting will be held in the township hall here Tuesday in an attempt to establish a minor sports organization for Thurlow township.

While there is a township recreation committee headed by Jerry Masterson, officials here hope that a separate minor sports structure will promote sport in Thurlow.

A group of executives will be chosen during Tuesday's meeting to head the new body that will direct its efforts to organizing softball, baseball, soccer and hockey leagues for the township.

Mr. Masterson says a committee for minor sports is needed to handle registration throughout the township and cope with problems that may arise.

"We particularly need people from Plainfield and Point Anne," he contends. "Point Anne should have at least a couple of organized baseball teams."

The minor sports committee meeting will be open to all interested parties. It gets under way at 8 p.m. in the council chambers here.

Ameliasburg Talks About New Truck

AMELIASBURGH (Staff)— Much of the final regular meeting of township council was devoted to discussion concerning the expenditure of $20,000 for a new garbage packer truck to replace the unit in operation at the present time.

Council was told that the volume of refuse growing continually since the township started its own collection operation was creating problems for the smaller sized second hand packer purchased two years ago. A new larger model has been recommended and the capital needed to pay for it would come from the fund householders contribute for the year-round service.

Council withheld a decision in favor of the new council taking over duties following the Dec. 4 election.

BUSINESS MEETINGS IN THE OFFICE?

Meetings are a time consuming necessity of our business life, but if properly organized, the investment will pay large dividends.

To organize a successful meeting takes flair, initiative and practice but certain ground rules can be followed:

(1) Hold your meeting in a quiet, private room away from the distractions of the office.

(2) Be sure the room is large enough and all the equipment necessary is at hand.

(3) Break for coffee at least once a session — It's impossible to concentrate for hours on end.

(4) Organize simple, light lunches in a relaxed atmosphere away from the meeting room.

(5) Ensure your table set up is informal and allows group discussion.

(6) Accommodate and feed everybody in one building.

Help for Handicapped

Jack Lundberg of the Army, Navy and Airforce veterans Association here spoke recently of the need for architectural standards in public buildings that would meet the needs of the crippled.

The problem is very real, Mr. Lundberg mentioning for example that the federal building here does not meet such standards.

Meanwhile, Information Canada, in that fine presentation regarding the tasks accomplished under the Local Initiatives Program, mentions the benefits that accrued after LIP had provided funds to 14 young men who wanted to supply a free transportation service to the handicapped in a large city.

One man who benefited from the service wrote, in part: "I just want to say thanks for your support of the car service project. . ." He notes it is free to all and adds: "They (the 14 young men) have demonstrated that they really care about others — something that means so much in today's selfish world where people don't want to get involved. As long as our society has young fellows like these, I honestly feel there is hope for this world of ours. . ."

It is a pleasure to cite this instance — and there are many others — of aid to the handicapped by the younger generation Another, incidentally, that is mentioned in the brochure is help for shut-ins.

There is always a need for such assistance to the handicapped and elderly, even when the day comes when those architectural standards of which Mr. Lundberg spoke are more the norm than they are today. It will be a combined effort and one we commend to all.

Not in Competition

Despite the fact that Israel, India and Ceylon (or Sri Lanka as it is now called) have women prime ministers, Jeanne Martin Cisse — mother of six and the first woman president of the UN Security Council — is quoted as saying "we don't want to be in competition with men."

"We are different psychologically," says Mrs. Cisse who is the ambassador to the UN from the West African state of Guinea.

In a statement with which many of her sex would disagree, Mrs. Cisse said: "We don't want to be engineers, astronauts and prime ministers."

She went on to say women did not want to be in competition with men, that they were different psychologically and "each one has a role to play in society."

Mrs. Cisse is a distinguished looking woman who also matches the image of a motherly person. But as a diplomat and an international figure she undoubtedly recognizes the role of many young women today for roles that go beyond motherhood and involve a place in the work world and in professional life.

We recall that three years ago, 39 young women, the largest number in the institution's history, were enrolled in law courses at Osgoode Hall in Toronto. And not only were they keeping pace with the more than 500 male students scholastically but in some cases they were doing better. One Ottawa girl topped the first-year class of 230 students.

Today the number of women students undoubtedly has grown and if this is for the benefit of the girls individually, the profession and women's status generally, as well as providing a whole new dimension in the evolution of the legal profession, then who is to deny that these young people, trained in their chosen work, are the country's gain.

A Past Era

Mention of the travels of Anthony Eden (now Lord Avon) when as British foreign secretary 37 years ago he flew to Paris, Berlin and Moscow recalls a flight we made in one of Sir Alan Cobham's old passenger planes. It was around that era and during Cobham's "flying circus" tours of Britain. Looking back to those days makes us realize what a rugged flight it would have been for any diplomat making an extensive journey such as Eden did back in 1935.

East-West Co-operation in New Economic Thrust

Western Oil and Other Interests Establish Soviet Ties

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst

East-West trade between the U.S.S.R., Eastern Europe and the U.S. and the European Common Market countries is now a major element in international trade.

While the arms build-up continues as a traditional part of the old cold war and relationship and ideological differences persist, American and Russians in particular are deeply involved in some of the largest industrial deals in the world.

The biggest of these currently under negotiation is the $200-million Soviet truck-making complex at the Kama River east of Moscow. To obtain American assistance, P. Maksimov, president of VO Metalurgimport, one of Russia's 50 state foreign trade organizations, is in Pittsburgh, heart of the U.S. steel industry to do business.

Even more incredible are the talks negotiations for U.S. oil and gas multinational corporations to participate in the development of the Soviet Siberian gas industry. The system is galloping American industrial and consumer needs for natural gas. The negotiations could lead to what one U.S. energy consultant has called the largest single business transaction in history, $45 billion in future gas sales.

Gulf Oil Corp. has made public that it is involved and would participate in building facilities and offering expertise on Siberian pipeline construction.

Joining these are earlier pimport, one of Russia's 50 state foreign trade organizations, is in Pittsburgh, heart of the U.S. steel industry to do business.

Gulf Oil Corp. has made public that it is involved and would participate in building facilities and offering expertise on Siberian pipeline construction.

Joining these are earlier Western European commitments in the U.S.S.R. and eastern European satellite nations such as Fiat's car plant on the Volga which is turning out 700,000 Russian-built Fiats a year, or Krupp's steelmaking consortium with the Communist Polish government to modernize its state steel industry.

This latter arrangement is all the more incredible when we remember Krupp was not only Hitler's chief armament maker, but one of the major users of wartime captive labor, including thousands of Polish prisoners-of-war and civilians forced to work in the Ruhland armament mills.

Fritz Sauckel, Hitler's ruthless "specialist" in mobilizing wartime slave labor, was executed after the Nuremberg trials for his brutality.

But then Werner von Braun who largely developed the wartime V-1 and V-2 weapons which killed so many civilians in London and southern Britain in the last stages of the war, is now the respected innovator-emeritus of the U.S. space program.

The world's new revolutionaries will soon find out what the old ones accept, their systems cannot flourish on independent theories of relying on their own technological and production skills. If the capitalist countries can share them for mutual profit, they should be persuaded to do so.

Nor is the flow all one way. Several American processes, called "Za si-West Marco Polos" by Time magazine, are selling Soviet-bloc products in the United States. These include Romanian jeeps and farm machinery, Soviet special drills and petroleum equipment, even a unique Czech method for preserving ancient books and manuscripts.

Nor are all the tough negotiating skills found on one side. The Russians have been near stylish, using delaying tactics, wearing down the capitalist prospect, making the deal at the last minute, which confound the U.S. and European businessman used to straightforward methods.

It's a phenomenon which can only lead to higher relations — one which will be hopefully extended to Communist China to a greater degree than at present.

Religion and the Theory of Evolution

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Rev. Gordon C. Smyth's remark in The Intelligencer (Nov. 4) about "systems of public education that will endeavor to keep religion out" reminds me of a recent article in a church periodical dealing with the same problem.

A group of American scientists, members of the Bible Science Association published a manifesto presenting 15 facts to disprove evolution and to reaffirm creation by God.

In the scope of this writing one can touch only on one or two points.

It has been stated that modern scientific discoveries are showing that the theory of evolution is false and that modern dating methods give only thousands not millions of years for fossils of men, animals, plants, coal, etc. A recent geology tour to Mt. Ararat, Eastern Turkey and to other places led by W. Long, executive director of the association, revealed that nothing is older than 7,000 years. These men observed that the real formations of the mideastern area could have developed during the great flood in Noah's time. Animals of the cretaceous period perished suddenly long before that.

These scientists claim that scientific laws such as the second law of thermodynamics refute evolution.

To quote other scientists, Prof. J. Le Conte of the University of California writes: "The evidence of geology today is that species come into existence suddenly and in full perfection." Prof. L. S. Beale one of England's greatest scientists says: in support of all nationalistic conjectures concerning man's origin there is not a shadow of scientific evidence." — Prof. W. Bateson head of the biology department of Cambridge University says this: "It is impossible for scientists any longer to agree with Darwin's origin of the species. . . if Darwin had known the truth revealed by the Mendel's law, he would never have written his books."

Members of the Association do not attempt to argue the merits or demerits of the Darwinian theory, but to stop the government from excluding the theory of creation from schools as held by many credible scientists. They feel that one should not be coerced to pay taxes to support anti-religious or atheistic philosophy against his belief that man was created by God. They demand that all books teaching evolution as a fact, rather than as a theory, be removed and replaced in schools and colleges. They demand fair treatment and water textbooks that teach evolution as a theory be changed to give space to the creationist views.

Immigrants Seek Student Grants

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Native born Canadian students may be pardoned if they raise their eyebrows at the request of the newly - arrived Ugandan Asian students.

One would have thought that Canadian generosity in opening the immigration doors to the unfortunates of Pakistan, Uganda is going sufficient as an act of compassion.

It appears our newcomers in the foregoing category are not wasting any time in getting into the "something for nothing" routine. Having hardly had time to unpack their bags in their new-found home, the students are now pressuring the Prime Minister and Premier Bill Davis for student grants. What cheek.

Our young men and women have a hard enough time in getting their applications for grants approved. If there are no Canadian Indians, Eskimos, or plain, common or garden "other Canadians" who are not in need of grants, fair enough. As it is, I expect there are many of our youngsters in need of financial assistance to complete their courses, so let us not get carried away into acquiescingly doling out taxpayers money in response to such an outrageous demand.

These newcomers may have been couched in their application for subsidized student grants who intimated to them that we are an easy touch. Charity begins at home, so let these newcomers help us as we have to, sweat it out for a year or so when the cash is not on hand.

Thoughts on Hallowe'en

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

A Belleville school principal considers that the Hallowe'en UNICEF collecting is like begging.

As a newcomer to this country, Mrs. Green's first Hallowe'en came as quite a shock to me and although I now realize that for the little children it is a very exciting evening, for the older ones and the teenagers it is nothing less than blatant begging, with nasty results if they are refused.

By taking the trouble to carry a UNICEF box, the youngsters are at least 'earning' their treats.

'Conflict' Issue in Election

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I'm writing concerning the conflict of interest charges that were made in our council by Alderman Soulen and seconded by Alderman Robin Jeffers concerning Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott.

These charges were made in Council Chambers and should have been answered in the council chambers. I cannot accept the Mayor's explanation for the long delay in answering, and I do not accept the backdoor method he adopted in trying to present an excuse for his conduct.

If it had been me, falsely accused of something I did not do, I would have immediately repudiated the charges. I certainly expected the mayor of our city to do the same.

As it is we have two choices for mayor. I am voting for Robin Jeffrey.

Women for U.S. Navy Has Wives Up in Arms

Hamilton Spectator

Admiral Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., United States Navy chief of operations, has forced wives to stay by lifting the ban on women serving aboard warships at sea. They don't like the idea of lady sailors.

For one thing some of the mothers are horrified at the thought that their daughters could be sent into battle. Others are downright indignant at the prospect of husbands being months at sea with other women.

The angry wives' views are not unanimous. Some Navy ladies think women should be entitled to do any shipboard job they're qualified to do. And they have faith in their husbands and the Navy.

The old sailors used to say women aboard ships meant bad luck and they may be right. Admiral Zumwalt struck a veto on bad luck amongst Navy wives before his first female sailor set foot on a going ship.

The wives scurrying around gathering petitions ought to keep in mind that the front-line military woman is neither new nor naughty. During World War II, Russian women performed nobly with rifles, machine guns, tanks and artillery against a most proficient foe and without bringing moral ruin to the Red Army.

However, if a Western power is going to try something different, the U.S. Navy is the place for it. That distinguished institution already has won lasting renown for innovation by selling its men through the decades without a daily rum ration.

Snowmobiles of Little Advantage Over Huskies

Ottawa Journal

Snowmobiles lighten the burden of the Eskimo trappers of Banks Island, but often not by much more than a good dog team. That is the finding of a section of a study made by the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development. The results appear in Arctic, journal of the Arctic Institute of North America. Moreover, the study says, snowmobiles raise a transportation problem that will substantially increase his productivity. The machines are faster than dogs, but only by about one-third (15.6 miles against 20.3 miles per day). But because snowmobiles are unreliable in the most severe weather of January and February it is most common for them to be used in conjunction with dog teams thus adding more to a trapper's overhead. The study says the encroachment of government administration and private development will have a far more profound effect on the traditional social system than will snowmobiles.

Immigrants' Dilemma

Language Issue for Newcomers

Montreal Le Devoir: If the Bourassa government wants to reorganize the whole system on Montreal Island to make it answer current problems, it must attack, at the same time, the thorny question concerning language of instruction of immigrant children.

When Bill 63 (legislation permitting parents to choose their child's language of instruction) was adopted in 1969, Union Nationale Leader Jean-Jacques Bertrand, who received support from the Liberal opposition, inaugurated no right to remain indifferent. Evidence points to action. . . .

Up to now the government has made use of the delays by the Gendron commission to support its stand that the time for action has not yet come. The status quo appears too strongly for new delays to be tolerated for long. We know that the immigrant problem is at the heart of the school problem in Montreal. We know the results of Bill 63. It now wants to reorganize the school structures on Montreal Island, since there is no longer fear imposing a humane and effective solution to the problem of scholastic orientation of immigrant children.

Open Letter

Union Questions Taylor on Sandbanks

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Intelligencer Picton Bureau

PICTON — An open letter to James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward - Lennox on the Sandbanks controversy, was issued today by Local 387, United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International here.

Signed by Stewart Norval, union local president, the letter stated: "Having found in recent weeks a rather evasive group of political servants, we on the union wish to pose these following questions in the form of an "open letter" to MLA James Taylor, one of the closest representatives of government and a self - proclaimed guardian of our best interests."

The first question asked why Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier informed Mr. Taylor the reason Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. here has not received its quarrying licence is because of a "disagreement" involving the rehabilitation plan but has somehow failed to inform the company.

Replying to this today, Mr. Taylor said he has spoken with Mr. Bateman, president of the company, and assumes Mr. Norval is using a "certain set of facts" he is not in a position to assume.

Mr. Taylor said he could not understand how the union apparently and through divine intuition" received information from the company.

He said there has been a "conspiracy of silence" between the company and the government.

The second question asked: "If the government is truly interested in a settlement, why have they cancelled meetings with the company repeatedly over the last month?"

The MPP said he was not aware of any scheduled meetings and wondered: "does the government assume one picture with the union and another with the company?"

A third question asked why Mr. Taylor has not contacted local, to learn their side of the story and become aware of all the facts.

"I think I'm quite aware," replied Mr. Taylor.

He said he felt the people of Prince Edward County recognize the issues fully at this time and said the controversy is a matter of action not talk.

He said the company has made its position known to the government and he has also made it known to the cabinet with talks with Mr. Bernier.

Another question observed that Mr. Taylor has stated a licence to quarry will be issued to LOCL when an acceptable rehabilitation plan is found.

However, Power Concrete and McFarland Construction have been allowed to resume quarrying in their pits in Halloweil township for some time now although they have still not received their licences.

Mr. Taylor said he assumed the other two companies do have their licences although he has not verified the dates of issue.

He said McFarland Construction applied for its licence "properly" and has already submitted rehabilitation plans. Their licence was issued in due course. The MPP said Power Concrete employed technical people to make application for them.

Mr. Taylor said if companies require assistance he is available. "I cannot knock on everybody's door."

He suggested if LOCL felt he could have assisted them likely he would have been contacted.

The company is dealing directly through its president with Mr. Bernier.

A fifth question posed by the union asked: "How can you believe Mr. Bernier's statements of equal treatment of LOCL when, on one hand, his quarrying inspector Mr. Wood, has the power to negotiate quarry licensing until we come to LOCL. Then suddenly it becomes a matter for dealing with Mr. Bernier"

Mr. Taylor said this was a "provocative statement" which did not deal in facts. He said it was speculative, and assumed a "posture."

He added the union proceeds to answer their own question through innuendo.

The letter also stated that Mr. Taylor still has not contacted the union as he promised after meetings with its executive several weeks ago. He had stated at that time that he would talk further with Mr. Bernier and report to the union, as soon as possible at another meeting.

Mr. Taylor said he has not contacted the union you but did bring a letter with him from Toronto this past weekend, explaining why the company has not received the licence. The letter had not been delivered to Mr. Norval during the weekend.

Mr. Taylor said he did not think he would be forced to receive the union's letter through a newspaper and suggested if Mr. Norval is "honest in his purpose, he would speak directly to him instead of to the news media.

"In he acting in the best interests of the people he pretends to represent," said the MPP.

The final point in the union letter stated: "Finally, instead of asking Mr. Bernier so much, why don't you start telling him that we of Prince Edward County don't want to be turned into a 'glorified garden' for Toronto — we want to be able to earn a living here and provide a future for our young people."

Mr. Tylor said this statement paraphrases a position he has taken in the past.

"It sounds like he's on the bandwagon there," said Mr. Taylor.

He said he did not want to be "pugilistic" and is not seeking a confrontation. Mr. Taylor said he had "complete faith" in negotiations underway between the government and company and has been assured there will be no jobs loss at the cement plant.

He suggested Mr. Norval is attempting a "years campaign" and is stirring a "mythical matter" in the press.

He said he would not be "pressured or blackmailed in to something. Mr. Norval is mistaken if he thinks so."

Sent Packing

Retiring Prince Edward County warden Ross Benway (left) was presented with a set of luggage Saturday evening by Lewis Wight, deputy reeve of Hillier township. The presentation was made to Mr. Benway, who is also reeve of Hillier, during a banquet attended by 250 in Wellington Consolidated School.

He Helped Balance Books

PICTON (Staff) — The office of county warden demands honor and dignity and Hillier reeve Ross Benway was credited with those attributes at a retirement banquet Saturday.

Picton reeve Albert Pitoh commended warden Benway during a Saturday banquet at Wellington Consolidated school.

Reeve Pitoh observed the Prince Edward County warden introduced skill, patience, and humor to his job and placed county business before personal concerns at all times.

He added Prince Edward County council will close its 1972 term with a road system second to none in Ontario, a balanced budget and a new county home for the aged well on the way to reality.

Hillier deputy reeve Lewis Wight, who presented warden Benway with a gift on behalf of his township council, also praised his efforts.

Norris Whitney, retired MLA for Prince Edward-Lennox, remarked warden Benway's efforts were "a part of that mosaic that is a part of the county of Prince Edward."

He commended the warden for his interest, concern and ability to give public service.

Retiring Ross Benway Gets Banquet Send-off

WELLINGTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County warden and reeve of Hillier Ross Benway entertained approximately 250 persons at a banquet in Wellington C o n s o l i d a t e d school Saturday evening. Toastmaster was retired Prince Edward - Lenox MLA Norris Whitney.

Mr. Benway, who will retire from municipal politics this year, thanked members of county council for their support in past months and stressed that ratepayers with grievances should air them in council or to their riding member.

He said council often was faced with unjust criticism because the taxpayer sometimes fails to realize the source of his problems. The warden stressed county council is "a very fair body" and he is in better co-operation between elected municipal officials and the public. Money is needed a ro many projects and underta kings but often is unavailable — making county council's job difficult.

Warden Benway said a county waste disposal system remains under review and he referred to progress in p a s t months toward a new county home for the aged.

At the close of the wardens banquet, Mr. Benway was presented with a luggage set by members of Hillier township council. A bouquet of flowers was presented to his mother. Mrs. Charles Benway of Wellington who was seated with him at head table.

The warden e x p r e s s e d thanks to his council, and noted that although he served as a councillor for six years and as township reeve for two years not once was he required to run for office. Each year he won his seat by acclamation.

100F Officers Are Installed

Installation was by Wrexford Hicks, Picton.

New lodge officers are: Jr. past chief patriarch, Frank Wiley; chief patriarch, John Carlisle: senior warden, Clayton Burkitt; high priest, Clifford Heagle; recording scribe, George Carlisle; financial scribe, Charles Carter; treasurer, Roy Tucker, Jr. warden, Ray Sine; guide, Farley Parnell; 1st watch, Glen Bush; 2nd watch, Earl Fox; 3rd watch John Morgan; 4th watch, Ross Jeffs.

Taylor Optimistic About Sandbanks Issue

WELLINGTON (Staff) — A "conspiracy of silence" is surrounded the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. and its negotiations with natural resources minister Leo Bernier concerning quarrying at the Sandbanks but a satisfactory solution is imminent in the opinion of James Taylor, MLA Prince Edward-Lennox.

Mr. Taylor, guest speaker at a warden's banquet honoring retiring Ross Benway in Wellington Saturday night said the Sandbanks controversy has become "a perennial problem".

He said despite silence on the part of the cement company and Mr. Bernier he is convinced the two parties are working together towards a solution which will satisfy county residents.

He predicted that "no one will be hurt" and expressed concern for outsiders who come into the county "as antagonists looking for a confrontation and promoting causes."

The MLA said such individuals have no rooks or interests here but seem to think they have a better plan for development than local residents.

Labourers in Prince Edward have been placed in "a bind" recently and have not been informed of possible new developments in the Sandbanks controversy.

Mr. Taylor confessed he is similarly uninformed officially but added he is sure the situation will be resolved "to the betterment of all" from what he has heard.

He said he has a concern for development in Prince Edward county and a concern for the amount of public land acquired and being acquired for the service of the whole province.

Dunes Replenished By Tides: Hees

WELLINGTON (Staff) — George Hees, MP Prince Edward - Hastings, said Saturday night he is convinced that dunes at the Sandbanks are replenished annually by the tides and winds and suggested there is enough for recreation and industry.

He still he feels the "prickly situation" is being handled well and employment will not be affected by the controversy.

Mr. Hees empasized the problems of quarrying at the Sandbanks by the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. has been "well handled at the provincial and local levels."

After brief remarks concerning the Sandbanks, Mr. Hees entertained guests at the warden's banquet with several anecdotes reflecting the lighter side of political life.

Expansion Expected

PICTON — An announcement was expected today from the office of Prince Edward County councillor commissioner William Duggan concerning an expansion of facilities at the Frontec Lewyt Division of SCM (Canada) Ltd. here.

The Picton branch of this industrial is reported about to undergo a staff increase of approximately 20 per cent.

Also it has been reported that a new industry has located at the former Camp Picton on a parcel of land adjacent to the provincial government's health complex for the mentally retarded.

Accountants Hear National President

Canada must d< more research in the innovative ideas of new technology and also must develop better business managers through intensive management education.

This is the feeling of Herb Pakrul, RIA, national president of the Society of Industrial Accountants, who spoke to local chapter members on Economic Survival.

The speaker sa'd this was necessary if Canada was to maintain the present standard of living and provide employment for a growing labor force in a changing world.

Mr. Pakrul said it was generally recognizedthat the managerial process is the heart of a country's economicment and claimed that putting money, advanced technology and management together in a flexible fashion makes for a fast moving organization that can transcend national boundaries.

Ron Scott, provincial president outlined efforts being put forward by the society to develop members as managerment accountants.

The December meeting of the Society will take the form of a ladies' night with George Hillier of Brooke Bond Foods to talk on spices and their uses.

MR. AND MRS. HAROLD ENRIGHT

Enright — Phillips

Father Philip Horrigan performed the recent wedding ceremony in St. Charles Borromeo Church, Read, when Rosemary Margaret Phillips exchanged vows with Harold Richard Enright. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Phillips, RR1, Shannonville and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. John Enright, RR1, Shannonville, and the late Mr. John Enright. Mrs. Adrian Callaghan rendered organ music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Neil Pfeiffer.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a full length white embroidered peau de soie bridal gown with an empire waistline, standup collar and long sleeves. A full length nylon tulle veil fell from a peau de soie headpiece. The bride carried a bouquet of red roses, entwined with ivy and fern.

Maid of honor, Miss Bernadette Philips was attired in a mauve and white crimp empire waisted dress. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow and mauve commercial mums while baby mums adorned her hair.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Desmond Kidd and Mrs. Jerry Campbell were dressed identically to the maid of honor.

For the reception held at Read Parish Hall, the bride's mother received guests wearing a mink stole, green coat and dress ensemble completed by brown accessories and a corsage of pink and white mums.

Picking Broccoli

When picking broccoli make sure it has dark green leaves and stalks, as well as tightly closed and fresh-looking buds which may be a dark, purplish or sage green depending on the variety.

For the wedding trip to points north the bride donned a brown and white knit dress and brown tweed coat enhanced by a corsage of yellow carnations.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Enright will reside at RR1, Shannonville.

Jersey and Flannel Popular

By MARGARET NESS

NEW YORK (CP) — Although jersey is the top fabric interest for fall clothes, several other fabrics are crowding it for recognition. Flannel, for example, is extremely popular, especially in classic grey, appearing in everything from casual pants with sweater to Pat Sandler's ankle dinner suit with cropped jacket.

Oscar de la Renta in particular is partial to grey flannel. One costume was a sloped-pants complete with grey-and-white ribbed sweater and white shirt for the popular layered look. Donald Brooks used grey flannel for a prophetic chemise-dress return.

The greys ran the color spectrum right up to Cuddle-coat's charcoal flannel duo of wide pants and knee-length coat. In fact grey and flannel were almost synonymous in the American Designer Showing, except for navy.

Navy flannel has a tradition and was popular years ago for men's jackets. Coco Chanel took inspiration from the men's jackets for one of her own that became almost a Chanel signature, lined in red and with the red showing on the turned-back cuffs. It was among the models shown when she revived her salon in 1954. This fall Anne Klein used navy flannel for one of the few knickers seen in the collections.

Grey flannel was most important in the European fall scene, sparking the revival from haute couture down to the boutiques. Hoit Renfrew opened its Montreal and Toronto fashion presentations of Paris and Rome exclusives with two grey flannel suits by Dior and grey flannel was combined with chocolate brown accessories in a Patou walking suit.

Flannel originated in Wales. It was a loosely woven woollen or worsted cloth a soft, lightweight fabric with a slightly nappes surface. Today it can be made of wool, cotton or rayon. Flannel is a corruption of the Welsh word for the fabric.

Grey has always been a popular color in fashion. Christian Dior once wrote: "Grey is the most convenient, useful and elegant neutral color. Lovely in flannel, lovely in tweeds, lovely in suit. And if it suits your complexion, there is nothing more elegant than a wonderful grey satin evening dress."

But grey hadn't been the leading seasonal color since the 1890s until 1951 and 1952 when both grey and flannel dominated the fashion picture.

This fall the other important fabrics include tweed, chinchilla cloth, Melton, mohair and camel's hair. The whole feeling is one of accent fur-like textures," said fashion expert Eleanor Lambert at the fall press showings in New York.

4-H Achievement Day Held in Belleville

Eighty participants in 4-H club programs for across the western part of Hastings converged on Quinte Secondary School Saturday for an Achievement Day program.

Highlight of the year's activities for girls in the nine West Hastings clubs, themed for the day was The Club Girl Entertains.

Each participant submitted for display a record book of club lessons on entertaining and a reference file of indexed material on the topic. All clubs attending also presented group displays or skits on various subjects related to entertaining.

Some of the displays were of such calibre that one of the judges, Mrs. Mary Lou Norton, expressed the hope that youngsters and not adults were responsible for them.

Concentrating on specified topics, the 4-H programs try to assist members in developing their homemaking skills, Elaine Struthers, home economist of the Ministry of Agriculture and Food for Hastings, explained, "working on this most recent topic has taught the clubs a lot about preparing for parties, teas, and banquets.

"Achievement Day is good for me too," she said. "It gives me feedback as to how our programs are going."

However, Mrs. Struthers who co-ordinated the one-day event, is getting out of the home economist field after two-and-a-half years service in Hastings. She told the packed auditorium of 4-Hers and their parents and friends, she is retiring as of December 15.

The day's program was the work of club members themselves, with each presentation bringing out a different aspect of the theme.

Clubs taking part were from Harold, Wallbridge, Mount Pleasant, Uniondale, Trent Valley and various points elsewhere in Sidney township.

County honor awards were presented at the conclusion of the program to Judy Fleming, Margaret Hoard, Lorie Hosking, Kathy Gow and Charlotte Weaver. Others received certificates of achievement and 4-H pins.

Move in for Closer Look

Members of nine local 4-H clubs and their families gathered at Quinte Secondary School Saturday for an Achievement Day at which club members presented a series of displays on different types of entertaining. Receiving considerable attention was a display on outdoor meals that won high praise from judges for its colorful and novel arrangement.

Social And Personnal

Prior to her recent marriage, Mrs. Harold Enright (nee Rosemary Phillips) was honored at a shower held at Read Parish Hall with Mrs. Desmond Kidd, Mrs. Francis Enright and Mrs. Pat McCormick as hostesses. Mrs. Jerry Campbell gave a shower in her home with Miss Gail Ferguson assisting. A rehearsal party was held at the home of the bridegroom's mother.

Engagement Notice

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Banville, Belleville, are pleased to announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Nancy Mae to Mr. Don Edward Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Johnson, Belleville. The marriage will take place Saturday, December 9, at 2:30 p.m. in Bridge Street United Church.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Is the customer ever right any more?

If certainly doesn't seem so, despite the merchants who are trying to curb the tendency of some salespeople who ignore the customer or—in some cases—are downright nasty to him. Perhaps the answer is not to revive "the customer is always right" motto. If the offending salespeople are taught to regard the customer as a fellow human being, the entire complex might learn to like him —and everybody will profit by that.

Are pre-marital mental tests next?

THAT wouldn't be a bad idea; although tests would be more useful if they determine emotional maturity rather than mental ability. Even so, no tests would really be necessary if a man and a woman evaluated their feelings toward each other before they marry. For instance, a man's habits that seem so endearing before marriage may turn out to be the signs of a neurosis that reaches its most distressful stage after he settles down with his bride.

Do parents cause teenaged conflict?

THEY may—although they don't realize it. Many parents of adolescents wonder why they seem more "old-fogy" than their fathers were when they were teenagers. The parents, of course, do it themselves. They chauffeur their children on dates, to jobs, etc. They will go for their children to come home. Parents complain about this, and the teenagers are torn between wanting their parents to wait on them and wanting to be independent.

Successful Living

Sincere Lawyer Saves Student Shoplifter

Dear Dorie-When I was accused of shoplifting and about to be put on trial, you wrote me a wonderfully helpful letter.

My case never actually went to court. Suddenly one evening when I had a terrific headache, I found a letter waiting for me from my lawyer. Just when I really knew I couldn't stand the pressure of exams, an upcoming court case and a bad cold, it all ended.

The lawyer kindly told me that the store had decided to drop the charges, after "a persuasive talk". Personally I think he did it with some piece of evidence they did not want made public.

His fee was reasonable and we hewave made a reliable friend. He will be handling any of our legal business in the future, so something good did come out of it all.

Whatever career I finally settle on I will always give people the benefit of the doubt. — No Longer Depressed

Dear No Longer: What a relief! It was distressing for you to have to face trial for something you didn't do, when so many of our young and unscrupulous Canadians go uncaught.

Your letter is a nice boost for all the good lawyers who care about people and bend over backwards to see that justice is done.

Dear Doris: My daughter was married three years ago, is now divorced and planning to marry again.

She had a big wedding, her father walked her down the aisle and everything. He is a very shy man and it was really hard for him to do this. Now she wants him to do it again and also wants us to pay half of the wedding costs. We would have to borrow to do this.

Most of our relations were at the first wedding so I don't feel she should have another just because her new man is being married for the first time.

What is your opinion? — Doubtful

Dear Doubtful: It is the status of the bride, not the groom, which determines how big a splash is appropriate. Good taste would indicate a small wedding for the second time around. The father of the bride may decline the honor of escorting his daughter down the aisle, if this is his decision.

If you could see your way clear to paying for some special thing, like the wedding cake, or wedding flowers, this might be a kindly gesture, but the couple provides their own wedding this time.

Coffidential to Budding Peteess—At Seventy: Your little poems, with their whimsical philosophy, show a gift for using words in a way that can conciliable differences exist, dissolution is simply pro forma.

A woman who said her husband deserted her after 26 days of marriage recently filed her first steps toward dissolution:

"I picked up legal papers from the county clerk for 56 cents, and they recommended I read what to do next in the law library."

Some law librarians report that the most thumbed book in the house is How to Do Your Own Divorce in California, by Berkeley lawyer Charles Sherman. He advises: "This book is not written to replace an attorney but to help you decide whether you need one."

Vicky Williams, Los Angeles area housewife who is divorcing her husband after more than 20 years, says:

Ann Landers

Deviant Defends Small Groups Under Criticism

Dear Ann Landers: I am a homosexual, a lesbian, a closet queen, a fairy princess, a bush dumber and a fruit. I am your brother, your sister, your son, your daughter, your nephew, your niece, husband, wife, friend and neighbor.

I am black, white, Protestant, Catholic, Mormon, Mohammedan, Jew and atheist. I am a ditch diggery, truck driver, metal worker, policeman, doctor, lawyer, clergyman, Olympic champion, teacher, cashier, artist, musician, actress, business executive, bartender, interior decorator, last driver, hairdresser, journalist and politician.

I live in fear of being found out. I might lose my job, my family, my friends, and in some states, my freedom.

I am not a child molester, a rapist or sex maniac. I am a person who is different and, therefore, in some states, I am considered a criminal. I don't ask the world to embrace me, but I hope the day comes when I and others like me will no longer be persecuted for being a member of a minority group. Do you, Ann Landers, have the courage to print this?—One In Madison

Dear O.I.M.: of course.

Dear Ann Landers: I hate to be scientific about a matter so esthetic — I refer to Green Thumb Thelma who insists that speaking tenderly to her plants made them flourish. Your response hinted that you didn't believe it. Well, you're both wrong. Whether one speaks nicely or not is irrelevant, but SPEAKING does help.

Humans breathe out carbon dioxide, a chemical which plants breathe in. So, by speaking to the plants we supply them, with one of their basic needs. In other words, the plant would do just as well whether you recite a poem by Yeats or one of Hitler's speeches.

I'm not discouraging speaking nicely to plants, I'm just telling loved ones know that it doesn't matter WHAT you say—so long as you say something.—Pamela Clark

Dear Pet: Your theory makes sense. Thanks for the clue-in.

Dear Ann Landers: We have a three-year-old son who is healthy and active but I am teaching him not to run wild my living room and to keep his hands off other people's nice things. The problem is the children of my friends and relatives. What can I do about THEM?

I've stopped inviting certain folks for Sunday suppers because I don't know what else to do. a hostess supposed to sit in silence with a pained look on her face and pray nothing gets smashed? Or should she discipline the child even though the mother is right there: What's the answer? I'm—Lost

Dear Lost: Some mothers become suddenly hard-of-hearing when they take their children to the homes of friends and relatives. If you have such mothers in your home and their kids are tearing up the place, I see no reason to "sit in silence with a pained look on your face." Tell the little darlings that you don't allow rough play in your house and if they aren't interested in the games, coloring books and crayons you've supplied for little visitors, you will ask their mommies to take them home. Then do it.

'Do-It-Yourself' Divorces Becoming More Popular

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California apparently are turning in increasing numbers to a new do-it-yourself project: divorce.

While statistical figures are not available, San Diego County officials estimate that 15 per cent of the approximately 1,000 divorce filings each month are made without a lawyer.

In Los Angeles County, about 18 per cent of the filings this year have been "pro per"—without a lawyer. Four years ago only four persons in a thousand filed without legal representation.

The attraction apparently is money. Lawyers may charge $350 or more for handling a simple divorce. Without a lawyer, the cost is just filed fees—$47 in Los Angeles, for example.

Do-it-yourselfism was made possible by the Family Law Act of 1970, which changed "divorce" to "dissolution" and eliminated the need to prove fault. If one partner says irre-

"I would recommend do-it-yourself divorces only to couples who have no small children and who can settle community property in a friendly manner," some lawyers and judges are more wary.

"Pro per divorces are like a pain in the side," says William P. Hogoboom, presiding judge of the Los Angeles County family law court. "Only an expert can tell whether it can be treated with an aspirin or by surgery. . . .

"Most of these cases are so simple that they are not economically feasible for an attorney to handle, but you never know if you have a simple case unless an expert looks at it."

Aaron Moss, chairman of the State Bar's Family Law Association, says that without help laymen may make costly errors in property division.

In addition to various books on filing for dissolution, there are complete kits selling for about $15.

Cheers Wrong Side

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—During the recent federal election, one enthusiastic female supporter at the Liberal party headquarters here cheered loudly each time the totals favoring the Progressive Conservative candidate, Tom Hockin, were the score for the Liberal candidate. "Are you supporting the Conservatives?" asked one puzzled Liberal party worker. "No," came the reply from the woman, red-faced.

Abortions Up

LONDON (AP) — Abortions in England and Wales totaled 161,132 during the 12 months ending March 31, 1972, the government said. This is up from the 33,598 during 1968-69, the first full year of the liberalized abortion law.

Insurance Agent Writes

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Johannes K. Hogreb of St. Catharines spent 17 years and $70,000 learning a new career.

Last year, at age 51, he scuttled his 15-year career as an insurance agent to become a full-time writer, and to some extent a diplomat.

In 1954, Mr. Hogreb began travelling the length and breadth of Canada, filling 17-ft. notebooks with the sights and impressions from his travels.

"Without knowing it I was becoming a naturalist, looking deeply into biology, zoology and the environment," he said in an interview.

The struggles of simple people living off the land began to release his interest in selling insurance policies.

He took an extended vacation from his job and spent several months living with a French-speaking Indian trapper in the Abitibi district of Northern Ontario.

His experiences resulted in a first book, The Trapper of Ghost River, published in 1969. In the first six months the book sold 5,000 copies and now is in its third printing.

The success led to a second book the following year, describing the fauna and flora of Ontario and Manitoba.

In 1971 a third book, In The Paradise of Hunters and Fishermen, was published followed by Ameiet Forests On Lonesome Lakes this year.

All his books and 350 magazine articles, published in Germany, Switzerland and Austria, are illustrated by photographs taken with $20,000 worth of equipment. Another $50,000 was spent on travel.

Between trips to James Bay, northern Quebec and Labrador, Mr. Hogreb writes day and night at his home.

He admitted that the financial success was one motivating factor in becomig a full-time author.

Manitoba PCs Shun Coalition

BRANDON (CP) — Manitoba Conservatives wrestled this weekend with the issues of leadership and coalition with the provincial Liberals and put both about matters to rest, at least for the being.

After rancorous debate and a fist-in-the-screen infighting 400 delegates to the party's annual meeting gave Sidney Spivak a vote of confidence in his leadership and set about repairing internal rifts in time for the next election.

In an unofficial way, rank-and-file members also expressed coolness to Conservative-Liberal efforts to form an anti-New Democratic Party alliance.

Mr. Spivak, a 44-year-old Winnipeg lawyer who was elected party leader in 1971, came into the three-day meeting faced with the clear possibility he would be forced into a leadership convention by mid-winter.

He emerged with a clear mandate to lead the party into the provincial election campaign expected some time in 1973.

The leadership issue was fought around a section of the party's constitution which requires a leadership convention every two years when the Conservatives are out of power.

A February convention with at least two challengers from the party's 20-member legislative caucus, appeared certain until a last-minute motion from the floor called for postponement of the convention until after the next election.

Fewer than 50 delegates opposed the resolution, but eight of those opposed were members of the caucus or cabinet.

Mr. Spivak, who ended the meeting by bringing caucus members and prospective candidates onstage with him in a show of solidarity, downplayed the seriousness of the rift to reporters.

"We had our differences, we had an open discussion and now we look forward to a united purpose. . . . We want to see the present New Democratic Party government turfed out of Manitoba."

Billy Graham Plans Nagaland Crusade

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Billy Graham is set to leave today on one of the most unusual missions of his evangelical career—a crusade for Christ in India's remote Nagaland, an area normally forbidden to foreigners.

Indian sources said Prime Minister Indira Gandhi had granted personal approval for Graham and several associates to visit Nagaland, the only Indian state with a Christian majority.

Nagaland's Baptists invited Graham to help celebrate the 100th anniversary of the arrival of Rev. W. A. Clark, the first American Baptist missionary to the region.

The state has been barred to foreigners, with rare exceptions, for the past decade because of its sensitive location on the borders of Burma and China and because of a guerrilla war by dissident Naga tribes who want independence for their state.

According to the 1971 census, Nagaland had a population of 516,449, including 344,789 Christians, mostly Baptists. There are 59,031 Hindus, the majority community of India nationally.

Polly Two Arrives At Home in Yukon

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — Polly Two arrived here Saturday, riding in the passenger compartment of a jetliner and escorted by, among others, Erik Nielsen, Progressive Conservative MP for the Yukon.

Polly Two's cross-country trip ended Sunday when she arrived in Carcross to attend the funeral and assume ownership of the perch of her predecessor Polly, the pioneer parrot who died last week, aged about 125 at the Caribou Hotel.

Polly Two started her journey Saturday in the baggage compartment of a CP Air jet bound for Vancouver from Montreal. The bird, donated by Montreal radio station CFCF, put up quite a squawk in Vancouver that she earned herself a seat in the passenger section for the flight to Whitehorse.

The six-month-old Colombian parrot met Mr. Nielsen in Vancouver in ernational Airport while CBC-TV crews were filming her transfer from one plane to the next.

Feathers were ruffled when a CP Air worker arrived with a cage to replace a cardboard box Polly Two had occupied on the Montreal-Vancouver trip.

She stepped out of the box into the cage and through the bars onto the floor. Obviously upset by the sub-standard cage, Polly Two let loose with a broad side aj everyone present.

To soothe ruffled feelings, CP Air ordered a new cage, bent regulations and granted Polly Two a seat in the passenger section.

Mr. Nielsen and Ted Harrison, a well-known Yukon artist who painted the original Polly, boarded the same flight after witnessing the airport tirade.

On Sunday, Polly Two travelled by rail to Carcross with her new owner, Dorothy Hopkins. She attended funeral rites there for Polly near a pioneer cemetery, and then was taken to her perch in the Caribou Hotel to assume duty as the newest, meanest, orneriest bird in the territory.

Johnny John, a longtime Carcross resident, delivered the eulogy as the original Polly was buried.

He said Polly "has given us a lot of happiness. gave our children a lot of laughs, older people a lot of laughs."

Nude Body of Girl, 16, Discovered in Ditch

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Police were searching today for the killer of a 16-year-old Waterloo girl whose nude body was found Sunday in a snow-filled ditch near a nunnery about six miles west of here.

An autopsy was to be performed today on the body of Suzanne Aldworth who was reported missing by her parents early Saturday.

Provincial police said their criminal investigation branch was investigating the case as a homicide but would not say how the girl was killed.

Police also refused to say who her she was sexually assaulted.

The body was found by two girls who were riding horses.

The girl was last seen at a Waterloo restaurant Friday night with a group of friends. She left to make a telephone call and was not seen again.

Her friends told police they thought she had made a three-block walk-from the restaurant to her home.

Geometric Sculpture

American artist Charles Perry, bottom, is dwarfed by geometric sculpture made of aluminum tubing he has erected outside Rome. Designed for the Embarcadero Centre Hotel in San Francisco, the work is made from more than a mile and half of the tubing and stands 35 feet high. It will be dismantled for air shipment to the U.S. into more than 1,000 pieces, then reassembled and placed in the hotel's 22 story lobby. (AP Photo)

Canada Backs U.S. Bid To Cut UN Budget Levy

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada announced its support Saturday for the current drive by the United States to reduce its share of the UN budget to 25 per cent from 31.5 percent.

Canadian Ambassador Saul Rae told the General Assembly's budgetary committee that the U.S. suggestion to lower its contribution "is both realistic and desirable."

"We believe that there are fortunate merits to the proposal that one member should not contribute more than a quarter of the ordinary costs of an organization numbering 132 members," Rae said.

The Canadian ambassador noted that the U.S. has announced that a cut in the American assessment will not mean an increase for any other member.

"This provision was an important factor in determining our full support for this resolution and we believe that it should evoke the resolution acceptable for the membership," Rae said.

A reduction to 25 per cent would mean a difference of about $22 million in what the U.S. would be assessed. The U.S. says the difference would be partially recovered when East and West Germany become UN members, probably next year.

Several other members, including Japan and Australia, are expected to increase the percentage of their contributions to reflect their improved economic conditions and China has indicated it will begin to pay more.

The U.S. Congress already passed legislation which will limit the American assessment to 25 per cent beginning in 1974. But the U.S. move has run into determined opposition from several UN members, including the Soviet Union, who say the U.S. should pay more, not less, since it is the world's wealthiest country.

Because of the legislation passed by the Congress, the U.S. could be placed in a position of defaulting on its UN obligations if the UN defeats the resolution being debated by the budgetary committee.

This prospect has led some observers to predict that the U.S. might respond by also cutting to 25 per cent its contributions to the UN voluntary programs, which include such organizations as the UN Children's Fund. The U.S. now pays about 40 per cent of the costs of these voluntary programs.

A contribution committee establishes the assessment levels of each of the 132 member countries, largely on the basis of ability to pay. On the basis of the Soviet Union argues, the U.S. assessment should be increased to 38.4 per cent.

Several of the developing countries proposed Friday that their assessments should be lowered. Led by Yemen, these countries said the present minimum assessment of about $81,000 now paid by nearly half of the UN members, should be halved.

Joyceville Prisoners Issue Critical Note

JOYCEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — W. Chitty announced last Tuesday that he was cancelling the experiment, which was to end in mid-December.

Prison officials said the experiment, "generally lessened security" at the institution, although no specific regulations were violated.

The convicts' statement said that just before the experiment was ended, "an effort was made through local news media to convey an erroneous concept" that prisoners were too dangerous "to roam around the institution."

Warden Chitty refused to comment on the statement.

"The men have had their say," he said.

Hot meals at Joyceville have been replaced by sandwiches, coffee and cookies since Friday because prisoners who normally staff the kitchen refuse to work.

Mr. Chitty said a physician is supervising the food to ensure that the prisoners get proper nutrition.

He said another meeting has been scheduled today with a three man committee of convicts to discuss the situation.

Newspaper Newsroom Compared to Brothel

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Media owners in Canada have no feeling of responsibility to their audience because they are in business to make money, says Harry Boyle, vice-chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

Mr. Boyle told a symposium of the weekend that even the publicly owned CBC broadcasting network is too commercial.

He said the newsroom of a newspaper is like a brothel and "the editor is like the madame—rarely obliged to satisfy his clients."

"Media is not communication except for a limited number of people and is a listed number of cases," he said.

Laurier LaPierre, a history professor at McGill University in Montreal, told the symposium he does not believe it is possible that the media are pro-ed against consumers.

Mr. LaPierre, former co-host of the CBC-TV public affairs program, This Hour has Seven Days, said that his experience is that journalists are "much too eager to espouse a side."

He said journalists are unimaginative products of their environment who "require the security of acceptance of their audience."

Lewis Wins In Ottawa

The Ottawa area saw two winners come out of Saturday's Ottawa - Hamilton game at Lansdowne Park — the Rough Riders and David Lewis. Ottawa defeated the Ti-Cats 19-7 while Ottawa's David Lewis took the Eastern Canadian Championship in the Spalding Achievement Awards for Football Canada Fundamentals.

David beat four other boys from the Toronto, Hamilton, Montreal, and Halifax locations in a pass - kick - punt distance and accuracy contest.

The Trenton High School junior quarterback went into half-time in the Ottawa game with a 119 point lead over the other 13 and under years old. He won with a total of 1098 points over three place kicks, three passes, and three punts.

"The punt at half - time at the game was the best I've kicked," said Dave. "It was a beautiful spiral that went for 45 yards. This time I wasn't as nervous as the first time."

David said that the leg he had injured in practice "didn't bother me too much. One guy there had a bad fracture in his left arm, so I was pretty lucky."

David said that "this one was easier than the first, but I hope I had to do better."

The Trenton high school student will be in Hamilton next Saturday to meet the Western Canadian Champion for the National Championship in the pass - kick - punt competition for the Spalding Achievement Award.

Quintes' Goalie Shines in Loss

Karl Bagnell is looking for a job. He may have already found one with the Belleville Quintes.

The University of Michigan graduate, in phys-ed and geography is hoping to get employment in the Belleville area and after his performance Saturday night, the Quintes are hoping that he can find one.

Belleville lost a 4-1 OHA Senior A verdict in Barrie, but showed a marked improvement over Friday night's 14-4 drubbing by the Flyers. Much of that improvement can be credited to Bagnell who turned aside 32 shots in the game.

"He played exceptionally well," said Lionel Boldy who handles the coaching duties with Wayne Brown working. Bagnell was busy on at least three times in the first period, but the 13 chances flawlessly in the second and allowed only one goal over the remainder of the route.

The game was, perhaps a turning point for the Quintes after the 14-4 debacle in Belleville Friday. "Our whole defensive play was different," said Boldy of Saturday's contest. "We were picking up their wingers and our fundamentals in general were better."

Connie Mandala, Doug

KARL BAGNELL

Acomb and Frank Hincks tallied in the opening frame for the Flyers with Bob Cunningham scoring after 44 seconds of play in the third to give Barrie a 4-0 lead.

Greg Marchen ruined a shutout bid by Ernie Miller when he scored at 16.09 of the final frame. The Quintes' defenceman picked up a long rebound and walked in to beat the Barrie netminder.

The only two penalties of the game went to Jack Smith of Barrie and Belleville's Paul Piotrowski for a third period, top-to-toe battle.

"We're beginning to show the right kind of spirit," said Boldy. "Things have got to turn around for us. With the kind of personnel we have, there's no way that we should get beat by 10 goals at home."

In other weekend Senior A action, Orillia Terriers clobbered Kingston Aces 9-1 and Hamilton Hornets edged Owen Sound 2-1.

Lose 6-4 to Oshawa

Home Ice Woes Hit Bobcats

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Editor

Jim Matthews has a rather novel idea for the Belleville Bobcats' next home game.

"We're going to rent a bus. Load these guys on it and then drive around the block. Maybe that way, they'll think they're on the road," quipped the team manager after his Bobcats dropped a 6-4 decision to Oshawa Legion Sunday.

The loss was only the third of the Metro Junior B season for Belleville and ironically, all three have come on Belleville ice. The Cats have managed four wins and two ties in their six road encounters and have an even-all record of 6-3-2.

Oshawa coach Jack Armstrong was pleasantly surprised by his team's performance. "I didn't think that we'd becoming out of Belleville with two points," acknowledged Armstrong. "This is our third game in three nights and I thought by the third period our guys would be skating on their bones."

Strangely enough it was Oshawa who controlled in the final 30 minutes, scoring four times to toe the victory. They had come close to being blown out of the rink in the opening frame as the Bobcats outshot them 17-4.

Only the work of goalie Mark Logan kept the visitors within 1-0 range of Belleville during the first period. "He's been playing good hockey for us all season," said Armstrong of his sophomore netminder. Logan, who played with the Bobcats last year, although still of midget age, has three years of junior hockey remaining.

Rob Foster tucked a rebound into the top of the Oshawa net at 17.39 of the first for the only goal of the period. Logan was flawless on the other 18 chances that he handled. Ken Holmes missed a gilt-edged opportunity for the Bobcats when he shot wide of the open side late in the period.

"We should have put it away in the first period," Moe Hunter. "We missed a lot of good scoring chances." Hunter also felt that "we're still playing too loosely in our own end."

Mike Noonan squared the game at 1-1 when he tucked a rebound over a fallen Bob Moore after the Belleville goalie had made the initial save. The Cats bounced back when Mike Watt scored his fourth goal in two games on a breakaway but Dave McKee scored from the slot to end the period at 2-2.

Logan had made the best save of the game in that second period when he lunged to glove a labelled 25-foot drive from Rick Meagher.

Belleville pulled ahead 3 - 2 on Foster moments into the second goal of the night on a rising shot from the top of the circle, but John Kimble evened the count just over a minute later, scoring on a rebound.

The Bobcats took the lead for the final time at 8.13 of the third when Tim Yohn beat Logan with a power play drive to his glove side. Again it took Oshawa just over a minute to retaliate as Noonan converted a breakaway.

Captain Tom Newton scored the winning goal for the visitors at 12.27 when his sitting 30-foot drive bounced high into the air off Moore's glove, fell behind the goalie who had lost sight of it and trickled into the net.

Noonan completed a hat trick with only seven seconds left to play, scoring from centre after Moore had been lifted for a sixth attacker.

The winning coach was highly pleased with Oshawa's transition to the Metro league. They, along with Peterborough and Belleville, joined the league this year after performing in the Eastern Ontario Junior B loop last season.

"The thing I like about the league is that it's so well balanced," said Armstrong, "if you don't play good hockey, you're not going to win. There are 10 teams in the league and I wouldn't even begin to guess which ones will make the playoffs.

The Legion squad has only four players returning from last season, aside the coach noted that. "I see you have a lot of new faces in Belleville. They've got some real scorers on that team."

"I'd like to apologize to the Belleville fans," Armstrong continued, "for missing that game. Oshawa failed to show up for a scheduled game Sunday, Oct. 29th). It was a misunderstanding. Everybody seemed to know about the game but us. I'm pleased that game's outcome will be made by the OHA executive in December.

The Bobcats were without the services of wing winger Andy Ricketts who pulled a leg muscle in Friday's 14-2 win over Pickering and defenceman Daryl Cole, currently sitting out a six - game suspension for leaving the bench to take part in a fight. Oshawa were minus the services of regulars Joe Greentree and Bill Armstrong, both called up by the Junior "A" Oshawa Generals.

A crowd of 715 attended the game.

The draw far two Grey Cup tickets and $75 spending money was won by Peter Hamilton of Brighton, Ontario.

Dolphins Still Unbeaten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After overtaking the Jets, Miami Dolphins are heading for the National Football League's wild, blue yonder.

It's Super Bowl or bust, says coach Don Shula.

"We've got to get this football team ready to start the playoffs," said Shula after the Dolphins won the American Football Conference's Eastern Division title with a 28-24 comeback-from-behind win over New York Jets Sunday.

Shula said he wouldn't take anything less than a return to the NFL championship game. The Dolphins were humiliated in the Super Bowl last year by Dallas Cowboys.

"Sure, winning a division championship is important," said Shula, "but now we've got the second season to think about."

In winning the division title, the Dolphins took their 10th straight victim this year. With four games to go, they threaten to become only the third team in NFL history to finish a regular season undefeated.

That aspect of the season doesn't particularly excite the Dolphins' field boss.

"Certainly, winning is important, but if anybody's injured we're going to try to get them healthy for the post-season games—even if it means not using our best and losing a few regular-season games."

While Miami won the AFC East, the NFL's remaining division titles were still undecided after Sunday's action.

Cleveland Browns bounced Pittsburgh Steelers 26-24 and threw their AFC Central race into a tie; Oakland crushed Denver 37-20 and moved 1½ games up on Kansas City Chiefs in the AFC West. The Chiefs were beaten 27-17 by San Diego Chargers.

In the National Football Conference, Dallas Cowboys smashed Philadelphia Eagles 28-7 and moved within a half-game of leading Washington in the East. The Redskins play tonight against Atlanta Falcons, who are tied for first in the West.

Los Angeles fell into a tie with Atlanta after dropping a 45-41 decision to Minnesota Vikings. Green Bay held on to first in the Central by one game after beating Houston Oilers 23-20.

In the other games, it was Baltimore 29, Cincinnati 19; Buffalo 27, New England 24; Detroit 27, New Orleans 14; New York 13, St. Louis 7 and San Francisco 34, Chicago 21.

Safety Dick Anderson set up two Miami touchdowns with a pass interception and fumble recovery as the Dolphins beat the Jets in a heart-stopping game decided in the closing quarter.

With the Jets leading 24-21 in the last period, Anderson fell on a fumble by Jets' Cliff McLain at the New York 27.

quarter but battled back to win on the final play of the game. They will meet the winner of the Eastern playoffs for the Grey Cup on December 3.

Ottawa Takes Big Lead Into Hamilton

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders take a 15-point lead into Hamilton Sunday as a result of Saturday's 19-7 win over the Tiger-Cats in the second leg to Rider coach Jack Gotta. It doesn't mean a thing.

"I was hoping for 20 or 22 points but the 12 we have really are nothing," said Gotta after Ottawa won the opening game of the Eastern Football Conference two-game, total-point series.

"If we were going down for a sudden-death game, we'd have to give away 10 or 12 points just to be back in their home park."

This was Ottawa's first win in four games this season over the Tiger-Cats and was due in big part to the way the Riders were able not only to keep Hamilton quarterback Chuck Ealey in his protective pocket most of the day but also to throw him for losses again and again.

If you play Ealey only once a season, "he'll kill you," said Gotta. "But over several games, you get to know a bit about him."

Riders knew enough Saturday to limit Hamilton to a net ground gain of five yards. Ealey completed 12 of 28 passes for another 197 yards.

Ottawa racked up a game offence of 436 yards with Rick Cassata passing for 221 and the ground attack gaining 215.

Rhome Nixon's high leap for a pass in the first quarter and Art Cantrelle's four-yard run in the third were the touchdown plays for Ottawa.

Gerry Organ had a convert and field goals of 10 and 31 yards for the other Ottawa points.

After holding Hamilton off the scoreboard for 58 minutes, Riders then directed its first touchdown drive from Ealey to Garney Henley. Ian Sunter converted.

A crowd of 21,800 gave standing ovations to Ottawa's defensive club as they left the field after frustrating the TiCats offence.

While Riders' fans have become used to handout performances from the defence, they received a rare treat Saturday as the offence directed its first to impressive air and ground gains.

Cantrelle rushed nine times for 39 yards and Al'un Thompson carried 11 times for 38.

Terry Wellesley grabbed three Cassata passes for 91 yards while Nixon got 86 yards on seven receptions.

Henley's four catches' two of them in the dying moments, accounted for 72 yards in the brief caught four passes for 49.

The Hamilton ground attack, the Jets in a heart-stopping game decided in the closing quarter.

With the Jets leading 24-21 in the last period, Anderson fell on a fumble by Jets' Cliff McLain at the New York 27.

Hamilton interceptions.

The Riders also had a touchdown called back. Cassata threw to Hugh Oldham in the end zone but the play was ruled on a holding call.

Reporters wanting to talk to coach Jerry Williams after the game had to wait while he ministered a tongue-lashing to his players.

Later Williams said the Riders just outhit the TiCats. Ealey said "they just outmanned us all the way."

He thought maybe the two-week layoff Tigers had might have had an effect.

Gotta heaped praise on his defence, singling out the front four of Chuck Zapiec, Rudy Sims, Charlie Brandon and Wayne Smith.

But he was unhappy about the eight-day delay between games.

"It really amounts to an eight-day half time," he said.

The winner Sunday goes into the Grey Cup national final against Saskatchewan Roughriders Sunday, Dec. 3 in Hamilton.

Saskatchewan won its berth with a 27-24 sudden-death victory over the Blue Bombers in Winnipeg Sunday.

Edge Winnipeg on Final Play

Riders in Grey Cup

WINNIPEG (CP) — Jim Thorpe of Winnipeg Blue Bombers suggested last week the rule that gives a team a chance to get a single point on a missed field goal should be thrown out.

He's probably more convinced he's right today. Because of that rule, the season is over for Thorpe and the Bombers, while Saskatchewan Roughriders go on to the Grey Cup by virtue of a 27-24 win over Winnipeg Sunday.

Under CFL rules, if a field goal attempt is no good, but the defending team can't get the ball out of the end zone, the kicking team gets a single point.

Sunday, Winnipeg, an odds-on favorite to knock off the Roughriders, forced no return kicks from the end zone with only seconds remaining on the clock.

Following the second kick from the end zone, Winnipeg was called for giving no yards to a punt receiver and Saskatchewan got another chance at a field goal. It was good and Saskatchewan won the Western Football Conference championship.

Place kicker Jack Abendschan missed a 34-yard field goal with six seconds left. Winnipeg fielded it, and, Saskatchewan quarterback Ron Lancaster booted the ball back into the end zone and the Bombers again returned it to the field.

But Winnipeg was assessed the no-yards penalty and, with no time showing on the clock, Abendschan's second try from the 32 was successful. The game ended on a penalty.

A dejected Winnipeg coach Jim Spavital said the no-yards penalty was a good call, but said the same penalty should have been assessed Saskatchewan when Bombers' Mike Law fielded Abendschan's wide field goal attempt.

It was the running of fullback George Reed and costly roughing penalties against Winnipeg that allowed the Roughriders to move into a 24-24 tie with three minutes left.

Winnipeg led 21-7 at halftime and 24-14 going into the final quarter.

But on the final play of the game quarterback Mickey Doyle left the game with a broken leg. That, both clubs, agreed, was the vital turning point.

"When Mickey got hurt that was it — our outside was hurting, they ran all over us," Spavital said afterwards.

Lancaster said "it really hurt them when Doyle got hurt. They had to put (Phil) Minnick in the middle and (Chuck) Robinson on the outside. Robson isn't as strong as Minnick. It was the linebackers who stopped our running game in the first half."

Roughriders, third-place finishers in the West this season, managed only 62 yards rushing in the first half but romped for 138 in the second half, mostly by Reed.

Jonas added one field goal, two converts and a single.

Winnipeg had opportunities to put the game out of reach. The team penetrated inside the Saskatchewan 20-yard line three times in the second quarter and came away with one point.

Interceptions played a major role in the Saskatchewan victory. Larry Highbaugh of Jonas pass early in the fourth quarter and it resulted in the field goal that made the score 24-17.

Then Ted Dushinski returned another one by Winnipeg 40 and Reed, carrying most of the load himself, bulled over for the major that tied the score.

"I was really surprised when Ted (Dushinski) threw the ball," said Dushinski. "I was just waiting for it."

Saskatchewan's first two touchdowns were made possible by two key interceptions against Winnipeg safety Grady Gaynes in the Blue Bombers' end of the field.

The first came in the first quarter when Reed was stopped short of a first down. The penalty gave Saskatchewan new life and Reed climaxed the drive with his first touchdown.

"We knew the only way the club is not "a has-been club, an old team, like a lot of people have written, was defence.

"We aren't that old. There's only three or four of us over 30 and we have 32 good players, not just a few seasoned pros."

But it was the seasoned pros, Reed, Lancaster and Ford, who provided the spark and the drive that sent the Roughriders into the Dec. 3 Grey Cup game against either Hamilton Tiger-Cats or O tawa Rough Riders.

Hawks, Alberta in College Bowl

HALIFAX (CP) — Coach Dave Knight of Waterloo Lutheran Golden Hawks sent his boys to the showers Saturday as the only one on their minds—winning the Canadian intercollegiate football championship.

Knight, a former basketball coach, said matter-of-factly: "A team effort like today and we got the championship."

He was reflecting on his team's 50-17 romp over St. Mary's Huskies in the Atlantic Bowl. The win gives the Hawks a berth in the national championship in Toronto next Saturday against University of Alberta Golden Bears.

The Bears won their berth in the national final Saturday with a 26-6 clobbering of Manitoba College Warriors in the Western Bowl.

In another dressing room at St. Mary's Stadium stood Al Keith, coach of the Huskies who earlier in the week predicted victory for his Bluenose Conference winners.

But Huskies lost the Bluenose Conference title the last three years, but always ended up limping from the field after losing 38-6 win Saturday in the Western College Bowl.

Loyola held Alberta within the third quarter and had several opportunities in the second quarter to take the lead.

Coach Doug Daigneault, who said before the game he liked being rated an underdog because they know all of the pressure, pondered the thumping in the Loyola dressing room—during which he was not subdued after the game. He said: "I'm disappointed but we could have if we had put something across in the second quarter."

That was when Golden Bears seemed intent on blowing their early lead. A series of errors and penalties left the Warriors with good field position throughout the quarter and eventually they came up with a first down on the Alberta one-yard line.

The Golden Bear defence, led by linebacker and defensive captain Andy McLeod—named the game's most valuable player—and tackle Al Shemanchuk, thwarted Loyola on three consecutive thrusts.

All Canadian?

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro said Saturday that the federal government team effort like today and we will do all it can to keep the Canadian Football League an all-Canadian league.

He was commenting at an informal press conference at Half-time during the Saturday playoff game between Ottawa Rough Riders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

CFL team owners talked last week about the possibility of allowing United States teams to join the league. The subject is to be discussed again during meetings Grey Cup week in Hamilton.

Reports are that Western Conference clubs are against the idea while some Eastern clubs favor it.

Ralph Sazio of Hamilton and David Loeb of Ottawa were quoted Saturday as saying they would drop any idea of CFL expansion into the U.S. if they got government assurances that U.S. leagues wouldn't be allowed to use packs partly financed by federal moneys.

Mr. Munro said Saturday he would be glad to talk to CFL officials to see what guarantees the government could make along those lines.

Perhaps, said Mr. Munro, the government might discover it had other powers it could use to prevent expansion of the National Football League here.

Montreal and Toronto are possible new entries in the NFL. But both probably would require federal funds to build parks suitable for NFL franchises.

Mr. Munro said the government was concerned about expansion of American football leagues into Canada and the need to keep the Grey Cup game a force for Canadian unity.

He said he hoped he and CFL officials and owners could get together this week.

'They Outhit Us'--Ti-Cats' Williams

OTTAWA (CP) — "They just outhit us," coach Jerry Williams explained Saturday after his Hamilton Tiger-Cats absorbed a surprise 19-7 beating from Ottawa Rough Riders in the first game of the Eastern Football Conference playoff final.

The second game of the two-game, total-point affair goes next Sunday in Hamilton, starting at 2 p.m. EST.

Williams agreed the Rough Riders had outhandcuffed his line all through the game, chasing quarterback Chuck Ealey throughout and throwing him for several unaccustomed losses.

Ealey agreed, saying, "They put some pretty good pressure on me."

He said most of it came from Rudy Sims, Wayne Smith and Chuck Zapiec—Sims being a middle centre and Smith and Zapiec coming from the outside.

"I had to stay in the pocket a bit. They took away the outside on me.

"I'm sure everybody tried their best. They just outmanned us all the way.

"Maybe it was the two weeks off, but we just weren't sharp at all."

In fact, the pressure was such that the Ticats managed only five net yards on the ground and Ealey completed only 13 of 28 passes for a total of 197.

The only Hamilton points came on a 12-yard touchdown pass to Garney Henley and a convert by Ian Sunter with fewer than two minutes remaining in the game, Ottawa set up the score with a 37-yard pass play.

Ottawa coach Jack Gotta was pleased with the balanced Rough Rider performance, but careful of gloating.

"I just wish we had more points going into Hamilton," he said.

"I was hoping for 20 or 22 points but the 12 we have really are nothing.

"If we were going down for a sudden-death game, we'd have to give away 10 or 12 points just to be back in their home park."

"So it's really even-steven next week.

"I can remember when I was playing for Saskatchewan (Roughriders) we went into Calgary (Stampeders) with a 25-point lead and lost on just the same kind of series.

"You just never can tell."

Nevertheless he was happy with the offence and the fact it had outscored Ottawa 37-7 for the first time this year. Normally rated of the team points-for defensive players.

"The only time I was really concerned about the offence was after our last game."

In the conference semi-final, Ottawa outhacked Montreal Alouettes 16-11.

"But we have a young club and it's improving all the time."

For his defence, Gotta said: "They were great again today."

Canucks Come Alive

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

During the National Hockey League draft meeting in Montreal last June, general manager Bud Poile of Vancouver Canucks let it be known he was one who would listen he was looking for scoring punch.

"We've got to get some forwards who can score," Poile said when he showed up for the draft meetings.

Coach Vic Stasiuk agreed and said: "... Let's shop around for some guys who know where the net is."

The Canucks apparently haven't found those "guys" yet although one might have been on their team all along. He is right winger Bobby Schmautz, who scored four goals Sunday night in leading the Canucks to a 5-3 victory over Buffalo Sabres.

The four goals gave Schmautz a total of seven in his last two games. He scored three for the Canucks Friday night against Los Angeles Kings.

Meanwhile, Bobby Orr is back and the Bruins are beginning to roll. Orr returned to the Boston lineup Saturday night after missing most of the season following knee surgery. He helped in leading the defending Stanley Cup champions to a 7-3 victory over New York Islanders Saturday night and Sunday night the Bruins held on to defeat Toronto Maple Leafs 6-5.

In other games, Pittsburgh Penguins ended New York Rangers' six-game winning streak by downing them 5-3, Atlanta Flames nipped Philadelphia Flyers 3-2 and Minnesota North Stars trimmed Chicago Black Hawks 5-1.

Last night, the Hawks disposed of Montreal Canadiens 3-3, handing the East Division leaders their second defeat in 30 games. Minnesota and Toronto played to a 4-4 tie, Pittsburgh whipped Atlanta 6-1, the Rangers defeated St. Louis Blues 3-1 and Los Angeles trounced Detroit Red Wings 8-3.

Schmautz, a Saskatoon native, played in the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League before having minor league tryouts with teams in the Western and Central hockey leagues. He played in the NHL with Chicago during 1967-1969 before catching on with Vancouver in the 1970-71 season. Last season on 60 games he scored 12 goals but so far this season he has accounted for 13 goals in 13 games, the last seven goals coming in two games.

Schmautz admits his goalies scoring punch is the fact he is hitting the net with his shots.

"That seems to be the difference," he said Sunday after his two goals against Buffalo. "I'm hitting the net now instead of missing it."

Of his three goals in the second period, Schmautz said: "It's rare. . . . It just happened so quick. Tell you the truth, I didn't feel like I was playing too well in the first period, but it goes to show you. I guess you get the chances sometimes. How it can just change when you get a goal!"

Buffalo scored early in the game when Gil Perreault beat goalie Dave Wilson after cruising in from the left side but Bobby Lalonde quickly tied it for the Canucks. Then the Canucks scored three goals on Roger Crozier to give the Canucks a 4-1 lead at the end of the first period.

Hearts held out until the 65th minute when Willie Deans put Celtic on even terms. Then Jimmy Johnstone and Harry Hood netted further goals for the champions.

Canadian Rider Tops Field

TORONTO (CP) — Elizabeth Ashton of Toronto, Canada's youngest international rider, has become top rider of the five-nation show at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair.

Miss Ashton, 22, was tied against Bill Steinkraus of Norton, Conn., and Gerardo Tazzer, 22, of Mexico Saturday.

With the course cut back to six large obstacles, Miss Ashton's single knockdown, added to a time penalty, was the winning round with 4¼ faults. Both Steinkraus and Tazzer clocked faster times, but each had two fences down and finished second and third respectively.

"I just missed second to Steinkraus three times," Miss Ashton said. "Just beating him was an honor."

She was a last-minute replacement on the Canadian team after Barbara Simpson of Calgary withdrew.

The individual victory that Miss Ashton and her horse, Scotch Valley, won for Canada—amassing 36 points with three top placings in the week—took some of the sting out of the Canadian's second-place finish in team standing.

The United States overtook Canada on the second last day when Steinkraus rejoined the squad and the U.S. total of 127 points was 19 points ahead of Canada. Mexico had 47 points.

Second to Miss Ashton in individual performance was Moffat Dunlap of Newtonville, Ont., with 23, followed by Neal Shapiro of Glen Head, N.Y., with 26 and Kathy Kusner of Moncton, Md., with 22, in a tie with Steinkraus.

In the final event, three U.S. riders, Shapiro, Miss Kusner and Frank Chapot of Neshanic Station, N.J., tied at fourth along with Capt. F. Izquierdo of Mexico, all with four faults.

Hull Finding Range

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull is slowly finding his scoring range after missing the first part of the World Hockey Association season because of a court injunction filed by his former employers, Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

Hull, who did not play his first game in the WHA until Nov. 8, scored two goals Sunday night as his Winnipeg Jets defeated Los Angeles Sharks 4-3 in WHA action.

In other games Sunday, Chicago Cougars rallied to defeat Minnesota Fighting Saints 4-3, ending the Saints' five-game winning streak, New York Raiders shut out Philadelphia Blazers 5-0 and Houston Aeros beat Cleveland Crusaders 4-2.

In games Saturday, New York downed Quebec Les Nordiques 7-1, New England Whalers edged Ottawa Nationals 3-2 and Minnesota topped Philadelphia 5-4 in extra time.

Hull, who quit the Black Hawks to join the Jets as player-coach, was prevented from coaching or playing for the Winnipeg team after the Black Hawks obtained an injunction against him in U.S. circuit court in Chicago.

But he was freed to play Nov. 9 by a preliminary injunction in a U.S. federal court in Philadelphia and by the lifting of the temporary injunction in circuit court in Chicago.

Hull started slowly after returning to action but he has been scoring in recent games and his two goals Sunday night were his fourth and fifth of the season.

The Jets held off a third-period rally by the Sharks to win the game. They led 4-1 after two periods but the Sharks scored two third period goals before a threatening white time ran out. Mike Byers and Bart Crashley scored late in the period for Los Angeles.

Chicago came from behind twice to overtake Minnesota. Jan Popiel's goal with just over two minutes left gave the Cougars the victory after Reggie Fleming had tied the score for Chicago.

Mike Laughton ended a nine-game winless streak, scoring two goals to lead the Raiders over Philadelphia. Goalie Pete Donnelly earned the shutout, his second this season against the Blazers.

Keke Morizon, scoreless all season, scored three goals to move Houston past Cleveland. Duke Harris had the other goal for the Aeros, who ended a three-game losing streak at the expense of the WHA's Eastern Division leaders.

Saturday, Bobby Sheehan, Ron Ward and Gene Peacosh each scored two—goals against Les Nordiques while Norm Ferguson was the other New York goal. Alaine Caron got the Quebec goal.

Ontario P.C. Secretaries Ask for Higher Wages

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Progressive Conservative government caucus has been presented with a petition signed by 39 of its 80 secretaries claiming their salaries "have been sadly neglected."

The Conservative caucus secretaries start at $130 a week and make the maximum of $135 a week within a year. They get three weeks paid vacation plus 1¼ days a month accumulative sick leave credits. There are no other fringe benefits.

NDP secretaries, who are members of Local 343 of the Office and Professional Employees International Union, make $145 a week after a 3½ year, get 13 paid statutory holidays, five days paid leave of absence after every election and 20 days a year accumulative sick leave.

Toronto Pilot Is Found Dead on Raft in Atlantic

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto pilot found dead in a rubber raft Saturday after a DC-3 aircraft was ditched in the Atlantic ocean 700 miles southwest of Ireland was identified Monday by his wife and family from Iceland before he began the flight.

Isaac Stefansky's daughter Sandra said in an interview Sunday that her father was supposed to come home the middle of last week.

"But he phoned from Iceland on Thursday and said they'd be landing in Newfoundland ... she said. "They planned to come home Saturday."

Mr. Stefansky's plane ran out of fuel Friday while flying from Ireland and crash-landed in the sea about 100 miles east of St. John's.

Miss Stefansky said two other persons were with her father, Harold Harrison, owner of S and H Aviation of Toronto, and another man named Lothar.

Injunction Ends Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Postal truck drivers returned to work Sunday after the post office in Toronto obtained an Ontario Supreme Court injunction ordering the drivers to end the wildcat strike they began Thursday.

A post office spokesman said all 281 drivers in the city postal truck service came back to work after the injunction was obtained. It remains in effect until Wednesday.

The drivers, who clear boxes and carry mail from the central post office to postal branches in the city and the five surrounding boroughs, walked out Thursday to protest delays in contract negotiations.

Bowl Bids Decided Saturday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Twenty of the teams that will occupy berths in the 11 major United States college football bowl games at year end were decided Saturday.

Top-rated Southern California sailed down the bed. role in the Rose Bowl with a 24-7 triumph over 14th-ranked UCLA. Tip Trojans will meet the winner of next weekend's showdown between third-ranked Michigan, a late 9-8 winner over Purdue, and No. 9 Ohio State, which turned back Northwestern 37-14.

National runner-up Alabama mauled Virginia Tech 52-13 and accepted a bid to the Cotton Bowl against seventh-ranked Texas, which blanked Texas Christian 27-0.

Oklahoma, ranked fourth, trounced Kansas 31-7 to set up this Thursday's decisive battle champion Nebraska. Oklahoma immediately approved a return trip to the Sugar Bowl, this time against No. 6 Penn State, which were down Boston College 45-26.

Nebraska walloped Kansas State 10-7 and will make a third straight trip to the Orange Bowl in Miami. The opponent will be No. 10 Notre Dame, a hard-pressed 20-17 victor over the University of Miami.

Eighth-ranked Louisiana State ing duties were shared by Rick Cook and Al Thomkins.

Kingston Centre 70 defeated the McDonalds 5-4 in Sunday's novice major action. Stu Emerson and Rick Manderville each scored two goals for the Belleville team.

In senior minor action, Belleville Dixie Lee came away with a 3-3 tie with Oshawa 4-4 loss at the hands of Peterborough. Belleville's Kevin Barber, Brad Sniller, and Darrell Coltman scored for the Dixie Lees.

The loss to Peterborough saw Darrell Coltman and Mark Crawford score two goals each.

Jim Skinkle was the "man of the hour" for Belleville Rollins Pee Wees as he took the puck from teammates Andy Plane and David Harris to score Rollins only goal in a 1-0 victory over Kingston Centre 70. Rob Brain, Dale and Drew Stateshury played well in net for the Bellevilians.

Canadian Nine Beat Panama

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (CP, AP) — Canada beat Panama 4-3 here Sunday in a game in the 20th World Amateur Baseball Tournament.

Pitcher Neville Garth kept Panama at bay. He allowed only free singles and a double and struck out five.

Canada scored two runs in the second inning when catcher Larry Gullett doubled, Dick Cruise was safe on an error, and Garth sent both runners home with a base hit.

Canada scored again in the third on a single by John Osborne and a double by Wayne Martin.

Panama scored its lone run in the second inning.

In its third game of the tournament Saturday, Canada edged Guatemala 5-4. Earlier the Canadians beat Japan 9-0 and ta the U.S. 1-0.

The United States now is tied with Nicaragua for the tournament lead after beating Puerto Rico 7-1 on Sunday.

Armstrong Proves Good Gambler

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

George Armstrong's young coaching career has been so successful that he's even making gambling pay off.

The 20-year veteran with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, now coach of Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association, has a record of 15 wins, two losses and a tie in 18 games in the Junior A league.

The tie came Sunday when the Big Chief pulled his goalie in order to put in an extra attacker, with the Marlies trailing Ottawa 6's 5-4 and 38 seconds to play.

At 19:53, Marlie Wayne Dillon put one into the bottom right hand corner of the Ottawa net, much to the delight of 8,000 fans, the largest Marlie crowd this year.

In other games Sunday, Montreal Titanic sunk the Oshawa Generals with an unassisted goal with less than three minutes to play to give Sudbury Wolves a 4-3 win. London Knights dumped St. Catharines Black Hawks 9-6 and the Hamilton Red Wings, in their first league, Kitchener Rangers and Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, played to a 2-2 draw.

"It was the first time I had to pull my goalie this year," Sabo Armstrong. "At first I wasn't too sure it was strictly a gamble and I couldn't do it until seconds before the end of the game."

The Marlies, who lead second place Peterborough Petes by two points, got goals from five different players—Peter Marko, Bruce Boudreau, Tom Edur, Paulin Bordeleau and Dillon.

David Lee scored twice for the third-place 6ts while Tim Turnbull, Bogden Maruschak and Derek Smith added one each.

Titanic got his winning goal by stealing the puck from an Oshawa defenceman and skating in alone on Oshawa goalie Rick St. Croix. He deked over and lifted a forehand shot into the net.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

TUESDAY, NOV. 21

Aries (March 21-April 19): Trivial details slow up as large as major facts in today's ultimate of influences. Errands, produce few good results.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Financial matters fall into confusion, differences of opinion. Check items, give associates time to explore facts and make changes.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Extra work is at hand—do it before any backlog develops. Leaving out essentials is all too easy in the rush.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Personal schemes surge ahead from unusual local encouragement while career development goes in circles rather than forward.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): The well-being of your family or group may concern you. Get technical evaluation on any problem, a second opinion for confirmation.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Distraction from family and social moves complicates all - programs. One thing at a time should become your motto.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Outside financial help carries a steep premium. Nobody wants to take the trouble to see details of your budget.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Almost anything you want to do inspires resistance. Be sure in your own mind about where you're going and how you'll get there.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Relationships of all sorts encounter abrasive contact—you find differences of opinions on every side.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Keep in mind the main line of career action rather than divert energy to criticizing side issue incidents.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You need more information—things are not as simple as anticipated. There's a family mystery of which you have no inkling yet.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Emotional factors play a large part in most of your decisions. Where you can put things off, do so.

To Your Good Health

No Drug Can End Electric Touch

By E. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm a 21-year-old girl and I have this problem of getting shocked in me. Is there any way of getting it out without an operation? Is there some kind of medicine I can take?

It isn't "electricity in you." It's on you. And there is no operation and no medicine that will do anything about it—although there are ways to get rid of it.

I get quite a few letters about this, especially in the fall and winter. It seems to bother, and sometimes frighten, quite a few people.

It's just static electricity, and there's nothing dangerous about it so far as your health is concerned. When I was a boy, we used to have a certain amount of fun with it.

Here's what happens. Under some circumstances, mere friction builds up charges of this static electricity. One thing we used to do was to run a comb briskly through our hair on a cold winter night, which would usually be a little quiet, and charge on the comb. Then, in the dark, if you touched the comb to the tip of your nose, you'd see a tiny spark.

Or you could sort of scuff your shoes on the rug or carpeting, and build up a charge of static electricity that way. If you touched somebody else, there'd be a little spark, and you and the other fellow would feel a tiny shock.

As a matter of fact, there are more of these static charges built up today than in the dim days of my childhood. Why? More nylon, for one thing. More rugs and wall-to-wall carpeting, for another.

Technically, the friction builds up these charges, but under some circumstances the static charges leak away as fast as they are formed, so there are no sparks, no shocks. If there is moisture on things, the charges leak away more readily. When things are dry, they don't.

So that's why we used to play with these static charges on cold, dry winter nights. In other words, electricity doesn't travel well on dry surfaces, so the charges just stay where they are until you touch something to which they can escape. Nylon is a very good insulator, and that's the reason why girls who wear nylon slips or dresses or underclothes can store up such charges of static.

Personally, I have a pair of loose slippers which evidently are good insulators, because I'm forever building up charges when I wear those slippers and the house is dry. If I touch my finger or knuckles to something that is grounded—electrically attached to the ground, like a radiator, water pipe, metal door frame, etc.—the charge is discharged.

Such static can be hazardous in one circumstance: If a spark occurs in an atmosphere containing explosive fumes. So, for one example, people don't wear shoes in operating rooms. They wear cotton, which absorbs traces of moisture and conducts away charges more readily before they build up to soaking proportions. Floors are made of material that will let charges leak away, too.

Anyhow, for ordinary purposes, your best ways of avoiding little shocks from static are to raise the humidity of the house (don't let it become too dry). Rug-cleaning firms will spray carpets to reduce static, or you can spray a dilute solution of a detergent which will help temporarily. You can try rubber soles.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♣	Pass	2 ♦
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	3 ♣
Pass	3 NT

Opening lead — five of diamonds.

This deal occurred in the match between Italy and Nationalist China in 1969.

When the North-South hands were held by C. S. Shen and P. Hsiang for China, the bidding went as shown and three no-trump quickly went down one with a low diamond lead and return.

Shen and Huang were playing the Precision System, and the no-trump bid showed a balanced hand and from 15 to 15 points. Two diamonds was artificial, showing game-going values without specifying where the game might lie.

Two spades and three clubs were natural bids representing genuine suits, and South's three no-trump bid said that a no-trump might be the best contract. North had no compelling reason to overrule that, for the final contract was decidedly inferior to four spades or five clubs, either of which could have been made.

When Fabio Ticci and D'Alelio held the North - South cards for Italy, the bidding went:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♣	1 ♦	2 ♦
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠	Pass	4 NT
Pass	5 NT

D'Alelio's club opening was systemically an ambiguous bid, but in connection with his later three spade bid it described a balanced minimum hand including four spades.

Fabio Ticci's immediate raise to diamonds indicated a game going hand, just as his first bid, and his later raise to game in spades — even though he knew there were only 8 trumps fit — was clearly the most judicious choice.

Actually D'Alelio made six when West led the jack of hearts and the trumps proved to be divided 3-3, but, more important than that, Italy gained a vulnerable game and gained 720 points on the deal.

Tomorrow: Planning the play.

Paper Claims USO Used Black Market

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials of United States service-men's clubs in Vietnam used the clubs to raise $5 million through the black market and other illegal operations in the war zone, the Washington Post reports.

Citing a secret Pentagon investigation, the newspaper says in its Sunday editions that profits from the operation were deposited in foreign banks. One United Service Organizations (USO) manager is suspected of clearing more than $1 million, The Post says.

The USO, supported primarily through public fund-raising efforts, has clubs throughout the world where U.S. soldiers can relax.

The Post says Pentagon officials have recommended that USO executive director Samuel G. Anderson be fired from his $35,000-a-year job.

The Pentagon, while restating previous disclosures that there is an investigation under way into activities of the USO, declined comment on the specifics of the Post story.

Vitamin Myth

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — There's more myth than fact in the current popularity of vitamin E, a St. Louis researcher suggests.

Ninety per cent of the money spent on vitamin E is wasted, said Dr. Robert E. Olson, professor of biochemistry, medicine and surgery at St. Louis University. He told reporters at sessions of the American Heart Association meeting Sunday that wheat germ oil, other vegetable oils and plain vegetables are good natural sources of the vitamin.

The only type of disease found to benefit from large doses of vitamin E is a cardiovascular ailment known as intermittent claudication, he said. In this disease, the circulation of arteries of the legs is impaired, making walking difficult and painful.

With rare exceptions, the daily diet provides all the vitamin E needed by the body — about 20 milligrams—he said, noting that some physicians who prescribe the vitamin for themselves take as much as 1,000 milligrams a day. Such large doses are not harmful, however.

White, who was being held for trial on charges of robbery with violence, apparently scaled a 16-foot stone wall while guards were busy breaking up the disturbance.

Jail officials described the scuffle as a diversion and said White was noticed missing during a head count after the disturbance.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Women are catching up to men in the incidence of unexpected death from heart attack, an illness that seems to be related primarily to a higher rate of cigarette smoking, a New York researcher said Saturday.

TORONTO (CP) — Marie Johnson, 40, was stabbed to death Saturday in her Toronto apartment by a man who committed suicide minutes later by jumping from her ninth-floor balcony.

Police said the woman's daughter, Cindy, 9, ran to another apartment for help.

Then the man, who had gained entry into the apartment by imitating a woman's voice, stepped on to the balcony, stabbed himself several times in the stomach, and jumped.

Boys Kill Child

NEW YORK (AP) — Three boys aged 10, 11 and 12 were arrested Sunday and charged with raping a 'seven-year-old girl and pushing her from the roof of a south Bronx tenement six stories to her death.

The victim's 9-year-old sister also was lured or forced to the roof but managed to escape, police said. A hospital examination determined she had not been sexually molested.

Vote to Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Employees of D Lidles Groceterias Co. Ltd. stores in Toronto, Orillawa, Hamilton, London, Barrie and St. Catharines, have voted in favor of strike action to support contract demands.

No strike date has been set because the employees' union, Canadian Food and Allied Workers, locals 175 and 633, is not in a position to strike legally.

Difficult Task To Stop Fight

SAIGON (Reuter) — Confronting the peacemakers in Indochina is the nightmarish task of turning off the Vietnam war like with a ceasefire.

How do you stop a war which permeates the 600 miles of Jungles, highways, rivers and villages of South Vietnam and whose front lines are inextricably interwoven? How do you keep it stopped?

Take the current fighting in dense fruit jungles north of Saigon in Binh Duong province. There, 40 Viet Cong strefs into a hamlet and overcome local militia guards. Next, 100 government troops arrive and surround the hamlet to drive out the communists. But then the treaty is signed and a ceasefire goes into effect.

The result is one of possibly thousands of "leopard spots" in a ceasefire, with the Viet Cong flag flying in the midst of government-controlled territory.

Who would possibly supervise every part of an "in-place" ceasefire?

Who will ensure that an entertaining twoddler from the People's Liberation Army (Viet Cong) or from the Saigon forces does not move a stake marking the area of control a few paces to take in a rice paddy or a pig pen or cut off a roadway?

Despite the apparent measures in a peace agreement, the logistics of observing a ceasefire are far from ready. Diplomatic sources in Washington say one of the snags about reaching a final agreement lies in organizing effective international supervision.

Members of a proposed four-nation control commission—Canada, Hungary, Poland and Indonesia—have been approached, and the U.S. state department reports it was encouraged by the preliminary soundings. But a working body is still far from moving into operation.

A few hundred observers can hardly cover all four military zones in South Vietnam. There are an estimated 150,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in South Vietnam attacking a government force of one million men.

It Will Take Two Weeks To Clear Pelee of Floods

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — It will take about two weeks to get rid of floodwaters covering about half of Pelee Island, Pelee Township Reeve William Bartja said Sunday night.

That's providing Lake Erie doesn't repeat its rampage of last Tuesday, when high waves smashed dikes and lake waters filled the lowlands of the tiny, saucer-shaped island.

Island residents went on the alert Sunday after predictions of a lesser version of Tuesday's windstorm and flooding.

It appeared at dawn, however, that the wind had not blown as strongly as expected and waves on Lake Erie were not sufficiently high to create new damage.

Fred Paul Vardall of the University of Windsor, who had predicted last week's storm two months earlier, had said Sunday there would probably be additional but less severe damage early today from a new storm, raising the level of the west end of Lake Erie by one or two feet rather than the four feet of last Tuesday.

The two-week deadline places clearup crews in a race against winter. Mr. Bartja said last week if the water is not off farmland before the freeze-up, farmers will be unable to plant their crops in the spring.

Mr. Bartja said in a telephone interview Sunday night that flooding on the island had been under control since Friday.

Heavy equipment and work

Easy Going

SKEGNESS, England (CP) — Reginald Barnard and his wife, Hilda, solved the problem of holiday traffic jams by packing five suitcases into their car and driving 150 yards to their favorite hotel for a week's vacation.

"There is no pleasure driving on the roads these days," Barnard said. "This way we will not be tired after our drive home."

Not a Bite

KIDDERMINSTER, England (CP) — To find their angling champion, 200 national amateur servicemen fished a stretch of canal in Worcestershire in a competition. But after hours, nothing had been caught. Later a local fisherman told them that all the fish in the canal had been moved to other waters three weeks earlier. Another contest has been arranged.

crews moving onto the island over the weekend helped speed the job of patching up battered dikes.

Robert Norwood, director of the Windsor Emergency Measures Organization, said Sunday the work crews were on loan from provincial parks at Wheatley and Rondeau and from the department of lands and forests at Rondeau.

Mr. Norwood said in a telephone interview the influx of men and equipment indicated the province's willingness to supply more than the dollar-to-dollar aid already promised to flood-stricken communities in the area.

Ontario Premier William Davis told newsmen here Saturday he would discuss the rigid problem of Pelee Island at a cabinet meeting today.

Early estimates were that damage to the island was more than $1 million. Under a provincial aid formula, the island population of 295 would have to raise at least $500,000.

However, Mr. Davis indicated on Saturday there might be additional help coming in the form of men and equipment.

The premier visited the area for a 30-minute helicopter tour of flood-stricken communities.

Peace Talks Bring Smiles

PARIS (CP-AP) — Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho scheduled another meeting today after talking for more than five hours Monday about the Vietnam ceasefire agreement they are still trying to nail down.

Both men emerged smiling from their first meeting, but refused to comment. They met in a suburban villa 15 miles southwest of Paris.

Kissinger conferred with Pham Dang Lam, the head of the Saigon delegation to the Paris peace talks, Monday night. A spokesman for Hanoi said similar close contact was being maintained between The and the Viet Cong's representatives in Paris.

Kissinger, President Nixon's chief foreign policy adviser, and Tho, a member of the North Vietnamese politburo, reached general agreement in secret negotiations last month on the draft of a ceasefire agreement, but President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam has refused to go along.

Thieu's chief objection is that the draft does not require withdrawal of all-North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam. He also contends that the council of Communist, Thieu and neutralist representatives that would be set up to supervise national elections in South Vietnam would in fact be the coalition regime which Thieu has said repeatedly he would not agree to.

Presumably these and other demands by Thieu are what Kissinger and Tho are arguing about.

Queen's 'Walkabout' Highlights Celebration

LONDON (AP) — The Royal Family and 200 guests danced into the small hours today celebrating the queen's silver wedding and the success of a brief in royal tradition.

The Queen's "meet - the - people" venture—a walk through crowded streets with frequent stops to exchange small talk with bystanders—won cop marks from London papers.

This was the first time the Queen and Prince Philip had tried the technique in London. The Queen, walking from a Guildhall luncheon Monday celebrating the 25th anniversary of her marriage, went straight to the crowds, shaking hands and chatting.

"I'm so glad you could come to see us," she told a lit le girl perched on her father's shoulder.

The girl was shy and speechless. "She'll never forget this," said her father.

Prince Philip asked a couple how long they had been married.

Eleven years, was the reply. "The first 11 years are the worst," Philip said.

Municipalities' Federation Seeks New Deal in Taxes

By ROBERT WHITELAW
Toronto Bureau of
The Belleville Intelligencer

TORONTO — Tax reforms designed to remove the imbalance between local expenditure and resources is sought by the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities in a position paper presented today at the national tri-level conference.

Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott says the position paper deals with the policies of programs and finance. The municipal delegates attending the conference met last night and this morning prior to the start of the second day of the session to British discussion on the brief prior to presentation.

The 30-day report presented by Whitby Mayor D. G. Newman seeks the tax reform to enable all governments to get on with the business of governing the nation. Tax reform, said the report, would free governments from the growing tendency to become crisis-oriented.

The report says lack of access to adequate financial resources heads the list of local problems. As long as the financial resources of local governments are inadequate, accessibility to the other essential resources will continue to be impaired.

The report concludes that an outgoing tri-level conference investigate tax reform under three areas — trends to be expected in public expenditures by the federal government, the provinces and the municipalities problems involved in financing expenditures and their relationships to economic circumstances.

Scott Says More Talks To Be Held

By ROBERT WHITELAW
Intelligencer's Toronto Bureau

TORONTO — Delegates at the tri - level conference this morning reached a consensus for a continuation of tri-level meetings, says Belleville Mayor Russell Scott.

Dr. Scott told the Toronto Bureau that Quebec, New Brunswick, Alberta, Manitoba and Nova Scotia have all agreed to a proposal for future consultation of a tri-level nature.

A formal statement on the decision of the closed meeting will not come until 30 minutes following the close of the session this afternoon.

Dr. Scott late this morning moved from his seat in the municipal section to a seat on the inner circle of the conference room where he will act as the Ontario delegate of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Reeves.

Dr. Scott is president of the Association of Municipalities of Ontario and represents 703 municipalities in Ontario.

The final session this afternoon will hammer out a statement for the public based on the two-day conference attended by municipal, provincial and federal representatives.

Ontario May Buy City's Waterworks

Aim at Service For Townships

By KENNETH SMITH, Staff Reporter

Provincial government authorities are studying the possibility of buying out Belleville Public Utilities Commission water treatment facilities, taking over their operation and selling water to the city, Thurlow and Sidney townships.

A. B. Patterson, project co-ordinator for the ministry of environment said today his staff will have definite cost proposals and lists of water rates ready for perusal by local authorities by mid-December.

"The question is rattling around down there" of replacing the Belleville Utilities Commission with a regional utilities' administration as well, he added, stating he expects discussion of this topic to come up when ministry officials meet with representatives of Belleville area municipalities in the coming weeks.

Possible takeover by the province of water plant works is prompted both by a shift in government policy that will increase the prospects of extending water and sewer services into Sidney and Thurlow townships and by the need to expand Belleville's water filtration plant by 1975.

The takeover would be coupled with concerted efforts to push new water mains deep into adjacent townships' Consis are not known.

This provincially-administered approach is not new said utilities commissioner Harry O'Connor. He said the province has taken over treatment facilities in Niagara Falls.

Mr. O'Connor said it is not known whether takeover and expansion of existing facilities would be coupled with establishment of a regional utilities commission.

"I suppose there may be a commission with, say, two members from Belleville, one each from Sidney and Thurlow," he said.

In the past, the PUC has been cautious about thrusting its water services out into the townships, in part because supplying Belleville is its priority and also because the filtration plant can only cope with limited increases in capacity.

Officials of the Ontario government have been telling area representatives for months there would be no Lake Ontario pipeline for Quinte without concurrence of the municipalities that might be serviced by it.

Lately, however, the province has taken a firm anti-pipeline stand, telling local authorities they have found Lake Ontario water service would not be feasible financially in the light of their recent research.

As Patterson puts it: "we will be taking quite a different approach than before."

Kingston Bandits Get $5,500

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Two men escaped with $5,500 Monday after robbing a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Police said one of the men scooped the money out of a teller's cash drawer while the other, armed with a .22-calibre rifle, ordered 20 employees and 10 customers to lie on the floor.

The men wearing black and red balaclavas and ski jackets, escaped in a car which was found abandoned in a shopping centre less than half a mile away.

Hijackers Charged In Havana

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three men who hijacked a Southern Airways jet to Cuba nine days ago will be tried in Havana on various charges, including extortion, the U.S. state department says.

U.S. officials said the hijackers violated Cuban law when they threatened to blow up the plane if authorities at Jose Marti airport refused a demand to refuel the craft.

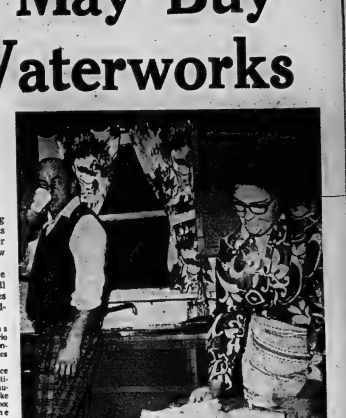
Israeli and Syrian Planes Clash

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli and Syrian planes and artillery battle across the Golan Heights ceasefire line today. Israel reported its planes shot down two Syrian MIG-21 jets and denied Syria's report that its forces brought down an Israeli plane.



The Israeli command said the two Syrian planes were downed in a dogfight over southern Syria.

It was the second major Israeli-Syrian battle in less than two weeks.

The Israeli command said its planes crossed the front-line twice to bomb and strafe Syrian army and guerrilla bases. Syria retaliated by shelling Israeli positions on the Heights, and the Israelis said their planes made a third raid that hit artillery emplacements and a radar station in the Nimshyah sector of south Syria.

Damascus radio, quoting Syrian military spokesman, said fighting was continuing "all along the Golan Heights ceasefire line."

An Israeli spokesman said the raids resulted from "intensified terrorist activity" in the Golan Heights the last few days.

Diefenbaker Worried

LONDON, (CP) — Former Canadian prime minister John Diefenbaker said today he is "deeply concerned" about the effect in Canada of proposed new British rules governing persons coming from the Commonwealth to seek work in Britain. The rules come up for approval or rejection in the Commons Wednesday. Diefenbaker, now visiting London, said in an interview that, whatever the merit of the projected rule, "this is the kind of thing which will stir up those people in Canada who are always looking for an excuse to bring about separation in the Commonwealth."

Controls Violated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Price Commission says it will take "significant action" because of widespread price-control violations and illegal business practices in the United States lumber industry. The commission said Monday it has found a 30-per-cent violation rate in price and profit reports filed by the lumber companies subject to price controls.

Therese police in October, 1971. The jury recommended clemency, but when Mr. Justice Mathieu asked Chartrand if he had anything to say after sentencing, he replied in a low, clear voice: "I refuse clemency."

Pensioners Concerned Meeting

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The falling dollar has made enough noise to rouse the elderly to action in the Belleville area.

Belleville and District Pensioners Concerned is no fiery protest group.

But, heavily armed with statistics and social resolve, it has joined a national challenge to all levels of government to ease the stress of inflation on senior citizens.

"We're not a militant organization," says J. Glynne Jones, the active 73 - year - old who heads the group. "We don't go around carrying banners. But we want attention—and action."

From the group's statistics stockpile he quotes figures to show inflation has deprecieated the dollar from a 1961 par to 58 cents.

Such erosion, tied to ballooning living costs and taxes in a hazardous fact of life for many elderly Canadians living on fixed incomes.

"They're losing their human dignity. Some of them today lack the basic needs of human life," says Mr. Jones.

The group has started pressing its case on local federal, provincial and municipal politicians — part of a common front formed by branches of Pensioners Concerned across the country.

Among the requests are higher pensions and tax exemptions from the federal government; extension of health service retirement plans to cover prescribed drugs, dentures, glasses, therapy and other services; exemption from municipal education taxes.

Already, the group has scored one positive political reaction in Belleville.

Roger Porter, city council candidate, has taken up the education tax issue and says he will bring it before council whether elected or not Dec. 4.

Mr. Porter says Toronto, Hamilton and Peterborough already grant a $100 credit on education taxes based on income. Qualifying are single retirees earning less than $3,400 and couples earning below $4,500.

He estimates about 1,000 elderly Bellevillians would qualify under such maximums. A $100 credit would only cost the city $10,500 — not "much of a bite" compared to city hall's total 19.6 million annual revenue, says Mr. Porter.

Money saved the retirees would more than much more purchasing power for them — and likely would be spent in the city anyway, he believes.

Pensioners Concerned, meantime, is resolved to bring the matter to city hall as soon as the new council takes office, says Mr. Jones.

The Belleville group is the 18th — and latest — in what is called a "self-help project" for retirees that has been gradually organized across Canada since first formed in Toronto three years ago.

Mr. Jones decided to launch the Belleville group after contact with a Toronto pensioner two months ago. To date, Pensioners Concerned is a nucleus executive of five men and five women. As yet, there is no formal membership grouping although 140 elderly Belleviillians signed an endorsement of its aims.

Mr. Jones, 10 years retired as a Northern Electric general foreman — and ree of the first Northern employees to arrive when the company moved into Belleville more than 25 years ago — indicates plans are afoot for greater contact with the fellow senior citizens.

Early next year, Pensioners Concerned hopes to organize district meetings in school auditoriums to explain its objectives.

There are already senior citizens' associations in the city and area. These, says Mr. Jones, were primarily organized for social functions.

Nonetheless, he ponders the possibility of combining forces.

But will pensioner power have the same impact on communities and politicians as other social action groups?

If governments and politicians haven't been listening to the grievances of pensioners in recent years "they've damn well got to start," believes Mr. Jones.

There's an inescapable political fact: The elderly could be a formidable voting bloc—there are about 1.7 million pensioners in Canada.

Moses Mr. Jones of this statistic: "Can you imagine if 1.7 million people all voted the one way . . ."

Alderman Questions Industrial Commission

Should the Industrial Commission continue in its present form?

This and other questions of growth — from parks to industry to highway construction — as they affect Belleville, were examined by Alderman Ben Corke in an address to a joint meeting of the Rotary and Kinsmen clubs Monday.

After listing a number of industries that got away, like the fish in the sea, and located elsewhere, and the frustration of it all, Ald. Corke said: "I am doubtful if the present set-up is either necessary, or the right way to go about it."

Ald. Corke, who is chairman of the commission, spoke of 15-minute meetings — and there had been ten such this year — and said: "I know very well that, in the members of the board of directors of the Industrial Commission, particularly those who are not council members, it is a very unrewarding and frustrating experience."

If asked should the commission continue in its present form, Ald. Corke said his reply would be: "we would have to have someone at city hall doing this full time — perhaps more closely with the city manager and not necessarily in the Industrial Commission as it now exists."

Earlier, Ald. Corke had quoted from an address by former Chamber of Commerce president Frank Murray asking if it would be feasible to abolish the commission and replace it with a Belleville Environmental Commission with wide terms of reference.

Many lived here, in Mr. Murray's view, because Belleville was not too big but now there was growth, with high-rise, with trees being cut down and with movement of the downtown at night.

On park development, Ald. Corke recalled the development of Zwick's Island as a park and recreational area and said some felt there was only so far they could go in making such places and maintaining them for only part of the year.

On highrise apartments, or apartments of whatever size, Ald. Corke said there were a lot of people who wanted to live in them.

"I know a person who is absolutely delighted she could find an apartment on the 14th floor of a building and who is only one of many living in some of the better apartments."

Ald. Corke also touched on his recent visit with Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott and a city delegation to Labrador in January. He told of a conversation with a German on the subject of student exchange visits. The German had wanted that no young person should go to one or the other country who did not have a good working knowledge of the language, otherwise it could be a very lonely experience.

Thanking Ald. Corke, Kiwanian Friedel Bellardi said many were concerned with the whole question and ethics of growth in Belleville.

He said the ministry of environment will propose the selling of treated water from an expanded filtration plant to Belleville, Sidney and Thurlow at wholesale prices and system pressure.

Patterson credited the Belleville utilities commission with considerable experience and said whether it is superceded by a regional authority must ultimately be a local decision.

Frank Stokmans, chairman, director of Quinte Planning Board, commented that whether or not administration of utilities is to be handled through a regional administration, "there is a trend to do everything on a regional basis."

Dealing with the water plant takeover will come first. Patterson said "that is all we are proposing now."

However, the prospect of setting up a regional PUC will follow.

Mayor J. Russell Scott mentioned last week that the utilities commissions across the province may ultimately be reduced to about 50.

"It may mean we will have a regional commission for the Quinte Planning area," he said.

Meal Makings Found on Pair

Two Belleville men caught outside Pape's Steak House early Monday have been charged with possession of stolen goods.

The pair were holding 24 filets, two cases of beer and 34 bottles of wine.

City police also arrested a third man Monday afternoon and charged him with four counts of possession of stolen goods. Found at the man's residence were items believed stolen from other locations. Police have linked the man to the two arrested at Pape's.

Sun Is Poet's Inspiration

"When I began writing poetry, it was a secret pleasure you kept to yourself. You didn't tell anybody about it."

His secret vice, now respectable — and profitable — poet Irving Layton came to BCI Monday to give an hour-long reading to senior students and to answer their questions.

So determined was he, in his university days at McGill, to prove that poets weren't "sissies or queers" that he took up interfaculty boxing and wrestling.

"One year I won the boxing and wrestling championship only because I had to prove my point," Mr. Layton told his listeners.

The former enfant terrible of Canadian letters, still beaming in middle age the tell-tale thick neck and shoulders of a wrestler, came on like a wise and inspiring teacher before the BCI students.

There was none of his reputation as "a naughty little boy who uses four-letter words in polite society for shock value" about him.

But in a reply to an earnest young woman who asked when he had written his first poem, Mr. Layton admitted his first effort had been a shocker.

"I was ill," he recalled, "and for some childish misdemeanor I was asked to stay after school. I was in love with my teacher, Miss Benjamin, who had beautiful deep brown eyes. I sat staring at her and I wrote my first poem — a very sexy, very erotic poem. I slammed it down on her desk and left the room and she never asked me to stay in after school after that."

Mr. Layton quickly disposed of charges of obscenity.

"You are reading the poem because it is saying something you don't want to hear," he said.

The sun is his inspiration, he said.

"In the summer I take my family to a place where we can lie in the sun and I write," said Mr. Layton. "In the winter I turn on the sun lamp."

Mr. Layton began his reading with a definition of poetry — "a verbal construction of maximum meaning and intensity.

"A poet is someone having a heartbreaking love affair with language."

Heartbreaking, said Mr. Layton, because he never expresses fully and totally what he has to say.

Explaining the birth of a poem, Mr. Layton said "you have an experience, you think on a verbal construction. All of you have experiences," he told his listeners. "So all of you are potential poets. That's what poetry is all about — poets feel that experiences are important."

A former secondary school English teacher, Mr. Layton said teachers look at their classes with sadness.

"Because you know their souls are going to grow dead. They haven't got a chance, except for a few lucky ones who retain their love of beauty, their curiosity and their openness to life.

"After 21, most of you will be living automatic lives. You will be playing the role of conforming hypocrites and will do so out of fear. Only literature can save you."

Asked if religion filled the same role, Mr. Layton agreed, "But not everyone has a direct line to God.

"I regard Jesus as one of the great poets of all time," he said. "His commandment 'You must be born again', means don't become the slave of conventionality.

"As long as the poet is alive and flourishing, mankind has a future."

Irving Layton and Admirers at BCI

Limited Reading Cripples English

All children who have gone to school should be able to "handle their language expressively," said poet Irving Layton, a former secondary school English teacher.

But they can't, he added, in agreement with a special task force on courses of study set up by the Hastings county board of education last year.

From his vantage point as poet-in-residence at York University, Mr. Layton said he had noted "a great deterioration in English" in recent years.

"My students don't know how to construct a paragraph with unity and coherence," he said.

He was shocked by their limited vocabulary and poor spelling, he said.

One of the reasons was limited reading, said Mr. Layton.

Students at the secondary school level were not reading as widely as in the past, he suggested. But even more important was the lack of emphasis on good grammar, spelling and vocabulary building.

"The teacher who pressed these things was thought to be stifling the child," contributed Glenn Richardson, English department head at BCI.

"Exactly!" exclaimed Mr. Layton.

But, he said, "English is being badly taught — anybody who shouldn't be in the classroom at all. The English teacher should be intelligent, open and broad minded."

Sidney Reeve Predicts Extension of Services

WALLBRIDGE (Staff) — "The time is ripe" for bids to extend services from Belleville and Trenton into Sidney township to be successful, Sidney reeve Jack Bush indicated Monday night.

The comment came after council heard an outline from Ernst Kneisel of problems he has had in trying to secure services for the 350 - acre Hastings Park development.

Reeve Bush said he believes things will change — that it will no longer be a great difficulty to secure approvals for such extensions.

Turning point in his thinking came at a recent private meeting of area municipal representatives and provincial officials. He said at that time the officials told the group the province now supports the principle of extending services out from the population centres into the townships.

This support - in - principle, Bush hinted, may translate itself into more practical support for actual projects, like Hastings Park.

Hastings Park holdings are east of Avonlough Road and include both the old county home farm and the former Kaiser property.

Kneisel has been seeking for several years to have the property serviced from Belleville through an extension of main along Avonlough Road.

Trenna were not reached with Belleville and he was quick to point out that Thurlow has just come in terms with the city's utilities commission for an extension of services.

"They are giving it to Thurlow — what is the matter with us?" Kneisel asked.

Bush indicated chances may be better now for an extension from city mains to the east of his property but Peter Eberley of Totten, Sims and Hubicki, engineering consultants, cautioned Sidney against providing for an undeveloped Hastings Park housing development through a $21,000 improvement to the Avonlough water main.

Eberley stated he does not believe a municipality should spend money on such work unless there are adequate means for recovering the money.

"Is there no concept here that you could put in mains to service lots?" asked Kneisel.

He concluded "you should put up a sign here saying this is a dangerous township in which to buy land."

Picton Plant To Expand

PICTON (Staff) — William (Bud) Stewart, director of manufacturing at the Picton operation of the Proctor-Lewyt plant of SCM (Canada) Ltd., yesterday confirmed plans for expansion of facilities and an increase in employment.

The plant will increase staff by approximately 20 per cent and the number of employees will rise from 180 to about 230 persons.

Mr. Stewart said extra equipment also is contemplated at the manufacturing plant which makes small electrical appliances such as toasters, irons and vacuum cleaners. The expansion was encouraged, according to him, by the standard achieved here.

Wilfred J. Duggan, director of economic development for Prince Edward County welcomed the news of expansion and said it is a sign the country is on the move. He remarked it is one of his prime duties to encourage existing industries to expand rather than open new plants in other parts of the province.

Mr. Stewart announced expansion plans at a luncheon attended by county warden Ross Benway, George Vincent reeve of Hallowell and chairman of the economic development committee and George Foster, reeve of Sophiasburgh.

Poetry Source of Truth

Politicians, priests, even parents have failed the young people of today.

So they are turning to poets for truth.

That, according to Irving Layton, is one of the reasons for the upsurge of poetry in the last 10 years.

The famous Canadian poet, in Belleville Monday to give readings of his works to senior students at BCI, said poetry has enjoyed a revival of popularity.

"Publishers say they would rather print a volume of poetry then any other writing," he said in an interview. "That's a switch from 10 or 15 years ago.

Young people believe that all the established institutions have betrayed them, and only the poets are levelling with them, he said.

A second reason for poetry's popularity lies in its sentiment. "It's the only pace for emotion in a technological age."

The third influence is the ballads of the "modern troubadors," poet - singers like Bob Dylan and Leonard Cohen.

"They have bridged the gap," said Mr. Layton, who has had some of his poems set to music.

Mr. Layton remarked on the popularity of poetry readings. "I had audiences of 800 to 1,000 on the west coast," he said of a recent tour. "Ten years ago I'd have been lucky to have drawn 50 people."

Economic Forecast

It is no secret that the status of the half million or so Canadians who are out of work has remained relatively unchanged since the election. Certainly there will have been a job or two obtained here and another one or two there, but generally things are the same. Governments, of whatever stamp, have no magical panaceas for problems of such magnitude. We have said as much in the days before the election and we say it again now.

Meanwhile a look at the Economic Council of Canada's forecast for the years between now and 1980 is significant. Eight years hence approximately 11 million people will be in the labor force, more than a third of them women. To reduce unemployment to four per cent, says the Council, the number of jobs will have to rise to 10.5 million from 7.8 million in 1970.

In other words the best, perhaps, that we can hope for is a reduction of unemployment to the level of four per cent, and that only after a lapse of nearly a decade.

Some other prognostications of the Economic Council: "By 1980, the total value of goods and services produced in Canada will have more than doubled, raising the gross national product to $190 billion as compared with $84.5 billion in 1970. This increased output moreover, is associated with strong increases in national spending. Consumer expenditures, the Council adds, in the kind of ambiguous, not to say confusing, statement that can creep into such a document, "remain the main source of demand for the goods and services produced, but other components such as government expenditure (of course) and private investment account for a larger share of total spending."

Another statement of the Council that more accurately and incisively reflects our times is the following: "The breakdown of national income between return on labor and return on capital remains relatively stable in the 1970s. In 1980, real personal disposable income per capita reaches twice the level of 20 years earlier and is approximately 50 per cent higher than in 1970. Due to the progressive nature of the taxation system however, an increasing share of personal income is absorbed by Government."

Was a truer word ever spoken? Or "progressive" indeed, the writers of the above document may have a different kind of "progress" in mind than has the average citizen.

Be that as it may, we can see that taxation remains a considerable burden and we must question once again, in a general way, the waste and the extravagance that all too often characterize Government spending. One observer has been questioning the efficacy of any proposed tax cuts the Government may institute in the wake of the election (on the bidding of the Opposition), noting that it could be inflationary and not effectively productive of jobs in any number and that it would also mean less revenue for the Government.

But can't this estimate of Government make substantial savings by simply practising a little elementary thrift and getting its priorities straightened out?

We suggest it can — indeed we believe it will be forced to do so, given the results of the election.

Parliament meets again in January. It will be one of the most interesting sessions in the nation's history.

Museum's Fate

It is and to see the wrecker's hammer finally going to work its fell purpose at the old Hastings County Museum on Church street.

It will be recalled that the decision was made to demolish the venerable red brick establishment on the corner of Patterson and Church to make way for more parking space for City Hall.

So much for progress and efforts to preserve the city's historical image, not to mention a respect for the past among the rising generation.

The fate of the old museum building is all the more inconscionable in light of this need to preserve our architectural heritage. And all the more ironic, given the two-day workshop at the weekend sponsored by the Ontario Historical Society. The workshop was said to have been organized to give municipal and regional studies insight into how they might co-operate with the schools on local historical matters.

What an example of civic indifference to the preservation of our heritage is this execution on Church Street.

Pearson's Life-saving Precedent Recalled

Veteran PC Believes Government May Survive

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — One of the oldest and wisest Conservatives in Parliament makes the blunt prediction that minority though it definitely is and shaky as it surely appears, the Trudeau government will survive.

Even if it is beaten in a want-of-confidence vote, he suggests, the government will live and work on.

To disclose whether this elder Conservative statesman occupies his distinguished place in the Commons or the Senate — there are experienced Tories in both chambers — would be to risk identifying him.

And this, under the prevailing circumstances, not only would be indiscreet but perhaps involve some element of breach of faith.

Let it be said only that he is a Conservative of long parliamentary experience, commanding respect and even affection in both Senate and Commons.

He remembers and wide national public admiration.

That should make the guessing easy — it could be one of perhaps only four or five Conservatives — but which one?

Now why does this Conservative, who has seen and participated in so many Parliaments believe that the Trudeau government, with the thinnest-ever minority in Canadian political history, will live, perhaps precariously, but survive all the perils?

Because, he explains, former Prime Minister Lester Pearson changed the traditional parliamentary rules on want-of-confidence votes by which governments live or die, and Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield let him get away with it.

You will recall the circumstances . . . the Pearson minority government was beaten on a budget bill . . . and by the rules of the years and previous Parliaments, because money bills are the most crucial of all, should have resigned . . . but did not.

When the votes were counted

[illegible]r the Commons on that budget bill and the unbelievable became apparent to all the startled MPs that the government had lost, nobody moved or said a word.

Sheer astonishment seemed to paralyze them.

Former Conservative Prime Minister Diefenbaker glanced along the Tory back bench and walled for someone to move . . . but there was not a murmur . . . until after some five or six minutes seconds he himself rose, jolted an accusing finger at the shaken Liberal cabinet and it[illegible]ntended "in the name of God, go."

But they did not.

Prime Minister Pearson, who had been sunning himself on the sands of the Caribbean, jetted back to Ottawa, rushed into the bewildered Commons and pleaded with Mr. Stanfield for "time."

Incredibly, he got it.

Next act in the amazing drama was the Prime Minister arguing that while the government had been beaten on the budget bill, it really was not a vote of confidence . . . .

. . . Never mind that if ever there was such a thing as a vote of confidence that was it . . . the Prime Minister said it was not . . . and to be scrupulously fair, suggested that the House put aside the matter by having such a vote, presumably, in his view, a "real" one.

It did, and the Liberals, in the meantime having rolled into Lill of political goals to Real Caouette and his Creditistes, won by the skin of Social Credit's teeth.

Mr. Diefenbaker said at the time he was "mad enough to stand right there on mad."

Two years later Mr. Stanfield explained he had gone along with Mr. Pearson because the Prime Minister had pleaded, with Bank of Canada Governor Louis Rasminsky, that to topple the government might put the then dicey Canadian dollar in peril.

Mr. Stanfield knew at the time he was deliberately passing up the chance to be Prime Minister, but reasoning up to what he considered his national responsibility he made his decision . . . and more importantly then . . . and now . . . a parliamentary precedent.

That was four years ago, but the precedent still stands, and could be the prop and prelude of the government in the days ahead.

For suppose, says the elder Conservative statesman, the Trudeau government is defeated on a confidence vote . . . the Prime Minister could claim he was not "really" . . . and that there now must be a second vote to confirm or deny his validity.

A second chance, time for second thoughts by the New Democrats, Social Credit, or perhaps even a merciful Tory, a change of mind and of vote, and a reprieve for the government.

"There is the precedent," says this Conservative parliamentary authority. "It is there and there is no way of evading, evading, or even ignoring it."

He calls it the Liberal Heraves".

"First they destroy our environment so that we starve — then they shoot us to save us from the anguish of starvation!"

New Democrats' Delicate Rule in Parliament

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis is basking in an unaccustomed spotlight. In a series of statements and comments following the election, Mr. Lewis looked and sounded like the leader of a party ready and willing to take the role of the tail that wags the dog.

The third party NDP, despite little increase in popular vote support and election of only a dozen more MPs, seems to believe it is in a position of unusual power. It stands ready to turn its support on and off to the government as it determines what is in the best interests of the people. The Liberals have been accused of having an arrogant attitude while the NDP has often adopted a holier-than-thou stance. Some of the Lewis statements of late would suggest his party has taken on both qualities.

Before the New Democrats revel too long and loud in their role as king-makers, they should reflect that such positions also carry great dangers to themselves, to say nothing of the country. For one thing, every time the New Democrats vote to sustain the government in office there will be a negative reaction from the 61 per cent of the voters who opted to lurf out the Trudeaulies. This includes the 18 per cent who supported the NDP.

The Social Credit party is in a happier position because its 15 votes cannot be decisive in any split along straight party lines. If it sides with the Tories against the Liberals and NDP, the government still wins. If 3 votes will the Liberals its support is not enough to save the government in the face of combined Conservative and New Democratic opposition.

Only in cases where there are a large number of absentees or where MPs break from their party on votes would the Social Credit support be significant. In this next Parliament, the whips are going to display a great deal of muscle and there are not likely to be many rebels or absentees from party ranks!

In addition, as the smallest of the parties in the Commons, the Socreds are in a favorable strategic position as they are the last group to be called upon to stand during the calling of formal recorded votes. The NDP votes third and this gives Social Credit a chance to make its decision with a great deal less pressure.

The New Democrats also face some forbidding historical precedents, based principally on the mother of Parliaments. Logic and experience suggest that third parties face serious losses in a dissolution of Parliament in a minority government situation. Its supporters will be critical whether it supports one or the other of the two major parties and it cannot continue to give support to neither. Even discriminating support tends to appear in practice to be mere wavering, no matter how logical in theory. Either or both of the two major parties tends to advance upon third party strength in order to catch some of its vote.

The situation of a third party in minority government causes elections to ask whether they need to cast their votes into the void and many lose their choice as one of alternatives, not of three different courses. Though it can modify government policies to a degree, it must accept much that it cannot support. Thus, dissolution is often a greater menace to third parties than to the government itself.

Perhaps the classic example of this in parliamentary history is when the gradual weakening of the British Liberal party in recent years, despite some worthy personnel and policies. The recent election in the United States also makes it clear that third parties are not making any headway under their system of government.

Miss Whitton Retires

Ottawa Journal

We have not come to say goodbye to Charlotte Whitton, not by a long shot. All that has happened is that the Ottawa Citizen's full phase of Miss Whitton's career will apparently be finished at the end of December. Miss Whitton may be bobbled for a bit longer by that dreaded hip, but she will be heard from again, and again. What should be said now is that no one ever served municipal politics with more dedication and passion[illegible]e[illegible]remunity than Charlotte Whitton. Her controversies made the pub lic prickle. The temperature and hours of work, the intuitively sound judgment on so many things, the vexations and many obscuraging frustrations did not. Ulster Independence Could Mean Bloodbath

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

British Prime Minister Edward Heath, in Northern Ireland last week, warned against unilateral independence for Ulster. Sound familiar?

If you recall that this fall is the seventh anniversary of the declaration in Rhodesia, the expression should bring back memories of what could have been a very ugly crisis for the then Wilson government.

In Salisbury with his UDI and an alleged world boycott still in existence, Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith certainly proved it can be done, in his case with no bloodshed and a good deal of tweaking of the British lion's tail.

UDI in Ireland, now personally talked about by the Canadian Ulster Defence Association, the Protestant answer to the IRA, would mean a bloodbath.

It also would mean withdrawal of the record number of British troops and a decision by the Heath government in the end the approximately $500 millions poured by the British taxpayer into needy Northern Ireland.

What a paradox that the travail of Rhodesia in the past colonial era, (most of the big former pieces of empire have been gone since the 1950s), should be with two truly British parts of the old global heritage.

Of course, Northern Ireland is not a colony, but an integral part of the United Kingdom, whereas Rhodesia was a self-governing colonial dependency whose independence, in everyone thought, could emanate only from Westminster.

Yet Rhodesia could prove that Northern Ireland, already in a brief war situation, could opt for unilateral independence, if the Protestant extremist and terror wing groups there secured the upper hand.

It's hard to say how seriously economic sanctions, or an end to subsidies in favor of Northern Ireland, could affect that shaky part of the world.

Again in making the Rhodesian comparison where the economy is less diversified than Ulster's, Rhodesia has suffered from a boycott. But her vital exports of chrome and tobacco, to name two, are getting out and reaching world markets.

Part of the reason is that Rhodesia has a few allies and friends left in the world—Portugal being one of them. And Rhodesia's access to the sea is via next-door Mozambique (Portuguese East Africa), from whose Rhodesian ports there is a half-hearted British blockade of ships carrying Rhodesian goods.

The major difference between Rhodesia with UDI and Ulster threatening it, is race. Rhodesia's overwhelming black population would be a black-dominated republic. But they have virtually no vote, no political power and are repressed by white security forces.

Northern Ireland is split religiously, but not racially. An effort at UDI by Protestant extremists with the IRA will even more ruthless "provisional IRA" resurgent in the north, would mean a classic religious war—little quarter on either side.

And because Northern Ireland is part of the United Kingdom, Westminster cannot and will not seek support from other Commonwealth countries to help solve the problems as she sought their co-operation on the Rhodesian boycott after UDI.

The Irish problem remains as insoluble as ever.

Industries In Move To Montreal

Brockville Recorder and Times

The situation in Smiths Falls, where one industry is pulling up stakes and moving to Quebec and another may follow, is typical of the grave dangers to a municipality that are posed by government competition for industry. The irony is doubly strong in that case in that industry would move from an area that is no better off than the area to which the industry is expected to move.

We submit, on a proportional basis, Montreal is no worse off for jobs than the Smiths Falls area.

While the Iron Rope Industries Ltd., officers deny having sullied the federal financial assistance to relocate in Montreal is a perfectly valid and there have been negotiations between the firm and the federal department of economic development. Indeed we'd be surprised if the minister of industry, Trade and Commerce, Jean Luc Pepin, has not announce soon that the government has decided against its financial aid for the plant's relocation in Quebec. This has happened before, and there is no reason[illegible] he didn't also drop all aid to Mason Steels Ltd., which has also been offered aid to move to Quebec.

This is the kind of industry from one part of the country to another in wrong if it means more jobs. Any industry which uses the aid of taxpayers' money, to open a new location and close an existing plant, is not only harms the economy of the town deprived of the industry, it harves a lot of people out of work. And if the move is to Quebec, as in the case of the Wire Rope firm, there is the additional factor of the problem of bilingualism. The working language in the new plant in Quebec will likely be French. How many Smiths Falls plant workers can speak French

Bob Nixon and Steve Lewis Aim Guns at Job Situation

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition guns will be aimed at the winter unemployment problem in Ontario as the second session of the 30th provincial legislature resumes today.

Both Liberal Leader Robert Nixon and Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic party, have been critical of what they term is lack of action on the part of the government of Premier William Davis.

"They don't even have a program to cut down diseased elm trees—which is their favorite one," snapped Mr. Nixon.

He said traditionally there always has been a "clear provincial responsibility" to battle winter unemployment.

Mr. Lewis said any winter works program the government comes up with now would be a "boot-string operation" and would be too late. The program should have been planned in September to do any good, he said.

A government spokesman said "active consideration" was being given to a winter works program.

In a session a year ago, the government kicked in $25 million to create an estimated 25,000 new jobs for the Ontario working force during the winter.

The seasonally adjusted unemployment figure for October was 3.1 per cent of the working force, the same as a year ago. And last winter, unemployment in the province hovered around six per cent.

One of the "two or three major announcements" predicted by a government spokesman could concern an expanded version of last year's winter works program.

100,000 Tribesmen Hear Billy Graham

KOHIMA, India (AP) — Dr. B. . . . n's words had to be translated into 18 dialects Monday night, but the evangelist drew a response from 100,000 Naga tribesmen whose ancestors were headhunters.

Graham's voice echoed off the surrounding hills as he opened a four-day crusade in Nagaland, an Indian state celebrating the 100th anniversary of the arrival of the first Baptist ... ary from the United States.

...land is in the far northeastern part of India, bordering Burma.

When he reached Kohima, the state capital, Graham was greeted by 100,000 Nagas. He was one of the few foreign visitors to Nagaland in years.

Then all filled on to an athletic field to hear Graham preach.

The people were colorful shawls as they sat on the ground in 18 groups, each representing a different dialect spoken in the predominantly Christian state.

It was the most multi-lingual crusade of his long evangelical career. An aide said that three languages were the most that were used before, in both Nigeria and Ethiopia.

Ann Landers

Motherhood Preferred To Women's Lib

Dear Ann Landers: The Spokane Spokesman printed a letter in their Action Corner that puts Women's Lib in the proper perspective. Please print it. This gal speaks for me and millions more, I'll bet.

"Hello, world. Some women want 'equal rights' but count me out. If you women's libbers must liberate us, please do me a favor.

"Liberate me from aching feet, cranky customers, hard-to-find babysitters, unhappy children who hate coming home to an empty house. Put me back in my own kitchen. Give me an air-conditioned home, shopping sprees, only kids, husband to warm my feet at night.

"Give me back the time I had to cope with childhood diseases, friendly, well-meaning neighbors, a coffee break, time to catch up on that ironing and mending, reading and visiting.

"Let me smell fresh bread from my own oven, cut grass in my yard, wet pants, dirty kids and freshly washed clothes. Give me back the time to say 'I love you' to my family. What could be more important than that?"—V.F.

Dear Friends in Spokane: Nothing. Absolutely nothing. Thanks for reminding us.

Dear Ann Landers: My girl friend, age 25, wants a sunken all year round. From May through September she bakes herself outdoors. When there is no available sun she hauls out the sun lamp. This has been going on for at least seven years. Last June she noticed some red patches on her face and went to a doctor. He told her she had skin cancer from too much sun. He said it was not serious and simple surgery would take care of it. He told her to stay out of the sun or risk more skin cancer.

Now my friend is depressed because she hates the way she looks without a suntan. Yesterday she was back under the sun lamp, and says the lamp is as bad as the sun. Is she right? —Every Day Is Sunday

Dear Ev: She should ask her doctor. He will tell her that skin cancer patients should NOT subject themselves to unnecessary ultra-violet rays—nature's or man-made.

There are many newly perfected cosmetics that can give the appearance of a sun tan without the skin-punishing exposure. I recommend them.

Dear Ann Landers: A letter from one of your readers stated "escort services are recommended by the Better Business Bureau." The policy of all Better Business Bureaus prohibits the recommendation or endorsement of any business or person. As one of the colleagues has erred we would appreciate having the matter reported to the Council of Better Business Bureaus in New York.

Commercial escort and computer dating services are not in the public interest unless research and examinations are performed which substantiate that the people matched are safe in respect to rape, prostitution, robbery, or other crimes perpetrated by one on another. You may have read that one computer dating service was prosecuted as a prostitution ring.

If you have space in your column, you might clear up the misunderstanding—recommendation endorsement. Thank you kindly.—Robert Bonser, BBB Grand Rapids, Michigan

Dear R.B. of BBB: I am making space in my column for what I consider a useful piece of information. Thank you for writing.

Princess Launches More In Her Cosmetic Line

By MARGARET NESS ...

ROME (CP) — "I'm quite willing to tell my right age," says Princess Galitzine, one of Italy's top fashion designers and now in the process of expanding the cosmetic line she launched two years ago. Up to now it has been sold only in Italy.

But the princess doesn't look her 46 years. She said she is unable to see why other women aren't as willing to be honest. But for men women older than 36 this is a touchy subject.

The princess said she believes the important things in the way you feel, your attitude towards life. This reflected on your looks.

"It's important to be pleased with yourself," she said. "And if you are, then it's not important to lie about your age."

Asked if the approved of face lifts to help a woman look younger, she agreed that for some women this was important.

"But why pretend you haven't had one when you have? What does it matter if you pull up your face three or four times? Be honest about it."

However, she said she feels that it shouldn't matter to a woman if she has a few wrinkles. They added character to her face. Good health and a well-cared-for skin were the important things.

On the differences between Italian and North American women, Princess Galitzine said she feels that American and Canadian women are more afraid of losing their men. This made them less interesting as persons.

"There's more hard competition and fear in a North American woman's married life," she said. "In Italy you have to wait five years for a divorce so a wife feels more secure. It doesn't happen suddenly and unexpectedly."

One of the things that helped to make an Italian woman feel confident and secure was the gallantry of Italian men.

"They are much more gallant than North Americans. So a foreign woman has to be careful not to be fooled."

This gallantry has made Italian women feel fragile, more dependent. But this may be changing. Young Italian girls now want a career.

"I was in business three years before my husband finally agreed to me continuing," said the princess, who is married to an industrialist.

So with independence, perhaps much of the Italian man's gallantry would vanish.

What about aging men? Obviously, she responded, it's a sign of aging when a man wants a young girl. A short adventure is one thing but he should really want a wife who is a mature, more experienced woman. She would be more interesting.

Italian men are very well groomed and have always taken more care of themselves than have Italian women," Princess Galitzine said. "They are more concerned about their figures and their skin."

However, she noted, Italian woman are catching up.

As for women's lib—"It will be some time before it gets anywhere in Italy," she speculated.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Are people anxious for change?

ANXIOUS about change is a better way of putting it. Oh, almost everyone will scream for-change; new local or national public officials, a new school board, a new slate of business directors, new social club officers, etc. But there is always that hesitation when the moment comes to make the decision for change. People want things to improve, but they know the "crew" that is in now; they are not so sure about installing another gang.

Should parents ignore 'acting up'?

NO, not even if it were possible. When a child "acts up," he is looking for some kind of reaction from his parents. They may choose to ignore his behavior, but, as far as the youngster is concerned, that means something, too. Parents, of course, will have to do a little detective work. Once they find out why the child is acting up, they will know precisely how to resolve the situation.

Can't a wife have a 'sympathetic ear'?

SURE she can, although to hear many a husband complain, it doesn't look that way. "My wife doesn't understand me" seems to be a favorite opening gambit between a married man and that shapely little girl he works with all day long. Unfortunately, it generally turns out that the co-worker's "sympathetic ear" lasts only until the man's attention is drawn to someone else who seems to have an even more "sympathetic ear."

Computers Can Be Wrong

By DORIS CLARK

If you get into trouble with computers sending you bills bills you have already paid, try and so something about it first (although talking back to a computer generally is a dead loss).

If your efforts don't work, drop into the Consumer Help Centres located in Renfrew and Cornwall, Ontario, and Winnipeg, Manitoba. If you don't live in or near these cities, write to The Consumer, Box 99, Ottawa. Box 99 officers talk to the guys who talk to the computers.

You don't have to be a victim of computerization. Consumer Conslact, Canadian Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs.

Dear Doris: I have been in an anxiety state now for 10 months. One doctor took X-rays of my breast and told me they showed something. He sent me to a second doctor who could see nothing on the X-rays, yet the second doctor keeps having me come back for periodic checks.

I told him I have been having pain in the breast which comes and goes. Yet he says there is nothing to be worried about.

I cannot understand why he keeps having me come back: he does not explain things too clearly. I should mention that he said the X-rays showed an irregularity of muscle tissue. But now he says the X-rays were perfectly clear and that the first doctor put a bad scare into me.

I'm wondering if my doctor thinks cancer might develop and is watching for this. — Very Anxious.

Dear Very Anxious: My gynecologist points out that pain in a breast is never a symptom of early cancer and considers that both doctors did the sensible thing. The second doctor is doing repeated examinations in the hope of reassuring you.

Many breasts do show irregularities due to many reasons, but cancer usually has definite characteristics.

You are going to have to believe somebody. Believe me.

Dear Doris: I am not overweight, but I'd like to know if there is a club or group where people can get together and exercise. I would like to keep fit but cannot afford expensive spas.

It would also mean I could get out an evening or two a week to exercise and meet some people. — Unfit.

Dear Unfit: Sure there are! First of all try your Y.W.C.A. Most Y's have a ladies' exercise program. If you live in a smaller town, your local Recreation Committee or high school evening classes may provide such an opportunity for exercise.

Also watch for local classes in swimming, skating and Yoga.

(Doris can help with that puzzling decision. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Indian Housewives Save

BOMBAY (CP) — Indian government sources say that brave housewives were responsible for saving $500,000 worth of public property during recent disturbances in several states.

In Punjab, Tamil Nadu, Assam, Bihar and other states women came out of their homes in hundreds to battle with militant factory workers, students and other agitators.

In most instances, the women's efforts to protect government buildings, public buses, shops and other property was spontaneous.

When angry student demonstrators protesting high tuition fees tried to burn down a government office in the town of Jullundur in Punjab state, women living in nearby houses intervened. They pleaded with the demonstrators that since many of their men worked in the office, its destruction would hit innocent families.

"You are not hurting the government but only poor citizens," the women said. "Perhaps the fathers of some of you work in this office."

The demonstrators spent half an hour discussing the women's plea. By then their anger had evaporated and they left the scene peacefully.

But what happened in the Punjab town of Ludhiana was somewhat different. Two hundred women there fought a mob of 500 factory workers with sticks for nearly two hours before subduing them.

The strangest part of the Ludhiana story was that the militant workers, who were demanding better working conditions, were really in a position to hit back against the women interventionists. But, as an observer put it, they were "paralysed" at the sight of women marching against them.

One of the subdued workers later said: "How could we hurt these women? They were just like our mothers and sisters. So, we mostly ran round and round the place with the women chasing us with their sticks. Ultimately we had to yield."

The government of Punjab has officially commended the bravery of Seeta Sharma, a professor in the government medical college at Amritsar, for saving a bus from a student mob.

Miss Sharma climbed into the bus as it was about to be burnt down by the demonstrators. "This bus belongs to the nation, to you and me. If you want to destroy it, then you will have to burn me alive too," she told them.

The mob retreated shamefacedly.

Punjab Chief Minister Zail Singh, in a message to the professor, described her action as "a splendid example to the whole nation."

Housewives in the town of Madurai in Tamil Nadu state forced a crowd of 2,000 workers, office assistants and students to abandon their plan to set fire to buses and shops.

The Madurai women, mostly housewives, "stopped the marching demonstrators by lying down on the road. They told the agitators that if public property is destroyed, taxes will go up.

"We are not prepared to pay for your vandalism," the women said.

Salons Have "New Look"

TORONTO (CP) — The new look in hairdressers' is the big, bustling assembly line salon where customers are moved with conveyor-belt efficiency from washer to cutter to dryer to settee.

Cathy Caron says there will be more of them to minister to the increasing number of women in a hurry.

Miss Caron is executive director of the Allied Beauty Association. She said in an interview she does not think the new salons will spell the end of the neighborhood businesses or exclusive shops.

"There will probably always be both; both businesses are viable. But you'll have to decide whether you want to have a warm, wonderful relationship with your hairdresser or be in and out.

"Nice women as working and to them time is important. The new way is an impersonal thing, but you get styling you couldn't do yourself.

Miss Caron said the beauty salon business has been booming because there are more women, because more women are working and because recent styles and cuts have drawn more teenage girls into the salons.

She estimated the business has revenue, on a national basis, of $350 million to $400 million yearly.

She said the new approach may put some small operators out of their own shops but absorb them in the bigger operations. She predicts there will be other changes, too.

"Women don't live for their hair anymore, they've had enough of ghastly pin-ups and those rollers. Now they want something they can just run a comb through."

Campaign Begins in Earnest

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Candidates for civic political office begin their face-to-face campaigning tonight.

The first round of 1972 meetings at 7:30 p.m. at Hillcrest Community Centre. Each candidate will have three minutes to outline his platform and a question period will follow.

Thursday night the Harry J. Clarke Home and School Association will entertain the six candidates for the five trustees' seats on the Hastings county board of education. The meeting begins at 8 p.m.

The marathon meeting will be Tuesday Nov. 28 at 8 p.m. at the Legion Hall, when the Chamber of Commerce sponsors its traditional candidates meeting. Radio station CJBQ will operate an open line to the meeting. The two mayoralty candidates will each have five minutes to speak. The 18 candidates for the 10 aldermanic seats and the three for the two public utilities commission seats are each allocated three minutes.

The Wharf Street Debating Club's annual bun feed and razzing session will be televised again this year Nov. 29 at 8 p.m. The club members will work over the candidates verbally but they are expected to show some quarter to the three women seeking public office.

The bun feed has always been a stag affair, but in recent years the organizers have asked that women candidates;

In addition to the public meetings, most candidates are holding their own neighborhood coffee parties throughout the city.

Increased Limit Worries Residents

WALLBRIDGE (Staff) — Concern is mounting along Highway 2 residents of Sidney township that an increase in the speed limit there when road widening is finished will only lead to more traffic accidents.

That was the message of councillor Reg McCurdy to the ministry of transportation and communication official Richard Boucher at a township council here Monday.

McCurdy said residents had learned of a department proposal to increase the speed limit from 50 to 60 miles an hour on the Belleville-Trenton four-lane highway from provincial government representatives at public meetings concerning the road project.

"They do not want it. We've come North Front Street," he told Boucher, who was on hand to discuss other matters.

The ministry representative told him that making turns from the new highway will "not be any more serious than from the old two-lane road."

Indicated left turning lanes would be placed at such key places as the Highway 2-Wallbridge-Sidney and Highway 2-Bell Road.

Retiring reeve Jack Bush pointed out school bus stops on the highway may be more hazardous with an increase in the speed limit as with the widening of the road itself. The two lanes of oncoming traffic must stop for a school bus letting off students on the opposite side of the highway.

On other road matters, the council gave preliminary approval to its plans for designating a thoroughfares portions of White's Road, Flying Club Road and Dick Hill Lake Road.

Mr. Boucher advised council that it should exercise its power and removed from the township roadways unauthorized directional signs put up by public individuals. He also mentioned instances of signs that have been placed by the department in improper locations.

Additionally, Boucher suggested stop signs be replaced by yield signs at some rural intersections in Sidney.

Candidates Face Electors

ROSSMORE (Special) — The five candidates seeking election to Hill three council vacancies outlined their platforms and solicited support at the polls Dec. 4 in a rotepayers' meeting in Tobe's County Kitchen last night.

The candidates are four newcomers, Gordon Babbitt, Earl Boster, Gerald Boyd, Stan Goodfellow and incumbent Arthur Wetherall.

The main interest shown by the 100 ratepayers in attendance related to an official classification of the communical clauses in the township's zoning bylaw. Commercial outlets on the Rednersville Road have been a bone of contention since the official plan became effective in April 1966.

Some operators of non-conformist businesses continue to expand into new lines, although the municipal board refuses to allow commercial zoning on the main road in one instance.

Auctioneer school soard members replied to questions about Kente School and proposed to enlarge the accommodation for stage, house economics and the gym.

Other questions from the floor called for answers regarding the outgoing council's policies. The ratepayers also wanted information pertaining to roads, assessment and building.

Reeve Russell Thompson and Deputy-reeve Rodger Redner, elected by acclamation, reported on their terms in office. Chairman was Phil Flagler.

Lights Approved For Foster-Dundas

City council will be asked to approve the installation of traffic lights at Foster Ave. and Dundas Street East, when the east-west artery is reconstructed and widened to four lanes.

That is the recommendation of the city traffic and parking committee. The group agreed that signals at Foster Ave. would provide a break in the flow of traffic and thus make it easier for motorists to get onto Dundas Street.

Discussion on the Foster Ave./traffic lights request from a public meeting last week when area residents and landowners were invited to inspect plans for the street widening.

Consultants' plans for the street widening made no provision for installation of additional traffic signals on Dundas Street artery, stating that traffic counts did not warrant them. Underground cables for future installation at Foster and Bleecker are included in the plans.

Alderman Harold Orr said traffic counts taken individually might not warrant signal lights but collectively they did.

He said he would be in favor of signal lights being installed at the intersection.

The motion recommending to council the installation of the lights was passed unanimously.

Skaters Seek Pledges

The next knock you hear on the front door could be any one of hundreds of young Bellevillians seeking pledges for a marathon skating session.

The event, organized by Belleville Kinsmen Club is enlisting the aid of about 3,000 young people in a minor sports and other youth organizations.

The skatathon is scheduled for Dec. 28-29 at the Memorial Arena and the Dick Ellis Rink.

Bellevillians will be asked to pledge from one to 100 cents a lap for a maximum 60 laps. Funds raised will be shared between Rotary and participating groups. The club gets 35 per cent, from which it pays all expenses, keeping the balance to fund its various community projects.

No financial objective has been set, since this is the first time such a project has been undertaken by Belleville Kinsmen.

But an ice marathon held by Woodbridge Kinsmen north of Toronto last year raised $40,000.

Ages of participants can range from seven to 70 years and Kinsmen say a Rotary organizer, youngsters in the eight to 12 age group might raise the most money, an average $27.

Ad Revenue Vital: Cable Man

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

CAMPBELLFORD — It is the ever-increasing opinion of cable television broadcasters that the Canadian Radio Television Commission will eventually have to allow paid advertisements if the community-oriented TV cable operators are to survive as such.

So says Brian Redden, partner in Redden's Cable TV here and manager of Cable 4 TV in Campbellford.

Mr. Redden said under the CRTC licencing agreements that eventually require a certain amount of local programming from cable companies, only public service announcements can be interspersed with the shows.

"I've talked with other cable people and some say you can't even mention the name of a commercial company in a service announcement," the publicity director said in an interview.

His program director, Roy Leigh, agrees. "Because we can't advertise, we have to watch what we say."

And for Campbellford's fledgling television programmers, this isn't easy. They often find it hard enough to put on a show, let alone have to worry about mentioning the name of a firm.

Redden's was founded by Brian's brother Bev back in 1961, as a TV and radio repair shop. Brian joined in 1963 and by July of 1966, their cable company's tower had been erected and they were rebroadcasting seven television channels. Locally produced programs began appearing on December of 1972, with taping of the annual Santa Claus parade.

Since then, most of the local talents have appeared on the weekly programs. The company invited public service-programming, political debate . . . in fact, anything that can provide them with their 11½ hours of programming each week. Mr. Leigh even produces his own disc jockey show.

Once a week local Kinsmen appear to draw weekly prizes for their bingo - oriented game, KINGO.

As well as their own programs, Redden's receives educational television programs produced at the University of Waterloo, by as far as 100 communication course. These programs, aired over Cable 4 Campbellford and before audiences at Hillcrest Public School are supplied by the Northumberland - Durham Board of Education.

But interest in participating on the cable stations is waning.

"The main thing we're trying to do," Mr. Leigh, "is turn it back into the community and get them to put on their own shows. We can't increase the high school kids in helping us out, but it should pay off."

The problem once again returns to one of finance. Because cable companies in Canada are not allowed to advertise or receive payment for program director Roy Leigh, while second camera is aimed at logo of village, for automatic switching from the control centre.

Because personnel at Cable 4 TV in Campbellford are hard to come by at times, everyone pitches in and makes do. Here, company announcer Bev Redden prepares camera for show featuring

All New to Him

Robert Guthrie, here, talks with Marion Seymour, representing the Quinte Branch of the Canadian Diabetic Association at the Rehabilitation Week program last night in Belleville General Hospital. Mr. Guthrie, 60, was told last week he had diabetes. "It is a challenge," said Mr. Guthrie. "It is not the end."

Unaware Diabetics Group's Problem

One in every 100 Canadians has diabetes, and knows it. The problem for the Canadian Diabetic Association — there is another one in every 100 who does not know it.

John Kennedy, executive director of the Canadian Diabetic Association, made these comments during an interview concerning the diabetic portion of Belleville General Hospital's Rehabilitation Week seminars last night.

Mr. Kennedy, with a paid national staff of 10, runs the administrative affairs of the association from Toronto, coordinating educational programs around the 60 branches across the country.

"Once a diabetic has been diagnosed and a treatment prescribed, he is very much on his own" said Mr. Kennedy. "The association fills in the gap between the annual con monments in the hospital to the return to productive living. The local CDA is great. They are doing a tremendous job in this field."

For the 360 known cases in Belleville and the 360 who do not realize their condition, there is "a great need for patient education," he said.

"These are good safe figures," he said. "They would not be lower," said the national director.

Mr. Kennedy said the emotional impact on the family is tremendous, "especially between mother and child," he said.

The mother becomes overprotective and coddles the child needlessly, believing the child to be an invalid he said.

"He can play hockey as well as any other child his age," said Mr. Kennedy.

"It a matter of balance. A diabetic "feels the signs" that tell him to be careful, he said. "If he gets tired he eats a couple of cubes of sugar or a chocolate bar and almost immediately he recovers from his faint feeling."

Education itself was lined with booths last night, displaying foods and information that save diabetics' lives every day.

Mr. Kennedy took his position behind his booth for the evening, chatting with patients, families and friends, saying "diabetes is not an end but a change in direction, an adjustment to be made."

18-year-olds Get Municipal Ballot

Eighteen-year-olds had the privilege of voting in last months federal election and also in this last provincial election, but not all young people are aware that they now, for the first time, have the right to vote in municipal elections.

This is indicated by a city clerk department survey conducted by a young high-biker.

The 18-year-old was unaware that he had the right to vote in the municipal election and inferred that many of his friends had the same view.

Today, City Clerk Adam Stalker said that all citizens born in 1954 or before and who were resident of the city prior to Oct. 16 are entitled to vote in the upcoming Dec. 4 election.

As electors, they may vote for all civic positions — mayor, city aldermen, public utilities and school board, but not on money bylaws.

To vote on money bylaws, citizens still have to be property owners or kng - term tenants.

The extension of the municipal franchise to 18-year-olds came as a surprise to citizens living in the municipality at the time of enumeration and to property owners living outside the municipality, who had a direct interest in the rural municipalities.

Because of the franchise extension, the number of electors in many of the townships and villages jumped to more than 1,000 and accordingly, the three municipalities are entitled to a deputy reeve to sit on county council.

As a result, membership in county council next year will see the addition of about 10 new deputy reeves.

Labor For McFarland

PICTON (Staff) — Picton labor officials have endorsed Harvey J. McFarland for mayor in the Dec. 4 municipal election.

The Picton area municipal committee of the Quinte District Labor Council has announced it is supporting Albert Plouth for reeve, Ross Cronkwright for deputy-reeve, David Hickman and Gordon Pearce for utilities commissioners, and Burt Dussett and Dougias Caley for Hallowell board of education.

Following a meeting Saturday, chairman Jean McClenen said, "The Committee decided that this slate of candidates is for progress in the next term of office."

Two to Go

These two lovable kittens are waiting for homes where they will be warmer. Their names are Miss Daddles and Tiger Lily and they are both eight weeks of age. The two kittens are very curious, active and are also very healthy. Miss Daddles is white with grey patches on her. Whereas her sister, Tiger, is tri-colored. They both have green eyes. They have had distemper shots so they won't have to have these. Two kittens need a lot of love from the nice people who adopt them. If you would like to adopt one or both of them please call the Ontario Humane Society at 967-1423 between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. These kittens were sponsored by the grade 5 and 6 class at Sir Winston Churchill Public School.

Ti-Cats Face Familiar Task

HAMILTON (CP) — The way Angelo Mosca sees it, Hamilton Tiger-Cats left their game on the practice field prior to Saturday-game total-point Eastern day's 19-7 loss to Ottawa Rough Riders in the first game of the two-game total-point Eastern Football Conference final.

"We were flat before the game; you could feel it in the dressing room," observed the big Tiger defensive tackle who limped home from Ottawa with a gimpy knee.

Mosca's reference was to the Tiger-Cats' two-week layoff during which they prepared for the natural turf at Ottawa's Lansdowne Park by working out on grass and dirt conditions.

"They beat us to our cadence all day, they just got off the ball first."

Mosca and coach Jerry Williams admitted they were beaten by a better team Saturday. But a 12-point deficit for Sunday's second game here, on Ivor Wynne Stadium's artificial turf, doesn't leave Hamilton a dying contender for the Grey Cup final here Dec. 2.

Mosca feels the pressure Sunday will "be on the Riders more than on us," since the Riders will be playing away from home.

"When you run into a team as high emotionally as they were, you're in trouble," declared Williams, whose club had beaten Ottawa in their three meetings during the season.

"We're lucky we're not down more . . . but we're confident we can come back," declared Williams.

His sentiments were echoed by Ottawa coach Jack Gotta.

"If it was a sudden-death game, Hamilton would have to be favored by 10 or 11 points. . . . I know I shouldn't be talking about points spreads, but the home-field advantage is well known" to both Gotta and Ottawa fans.

Gotta, with Calgary in 1963, recalled the Stampeders had a 26-point advantage in it's two-game total-point Western final after the first game against Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The Riders won the second game 29-12 in Regina and a berth in the Grey Cup.

And Ottawa fans recall the 1961 Eastern final when the Riders took a 17-point advantage into Hamilton only to lose by a 25-8 score.

Ottawans are hoping to reciprocate the Ticats' hospitality of 1972 when Hamilton stomped the Rough Riders in the EFC first with the national final scheduled for Ottawa.

Gaudaur Will Talk With Munro

TORONTO (CP) — Jake Gaudaur, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, says he's prepared to sit down with federal Health Minister John Munro to discuss proposed expansion of the CFL into the United States.

Commenting on Munro's suggestion Saturday that the federal government would take a dim view of the CFL's expansion to the United States, Gaudaur suggested Monday the Canadian government should consider assistance in the cost of construction of stadiums in the various communities.

"If indeed football is typical Canadians, then perhaps the government should assist us in this way," Gaudaur said.

He said no bids from U.S. applicants are being considered for expansion, but he had been assured by Robert Schmertz of New York City that there would be immediately a decision to expand is made.

The CFL governors, who met in Winnipeg last week, will consider the question again during Grey Cup meetings in Hamilton next week.

Is Etcheverry Still Als' Coach?

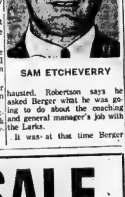
MONTREAL (CP) — Is Sam Etcheverry still coach of Montreal Alouettes? Is. J. L. Albrecht still general manager of the Eastern Football Conference team?

To Montrealers Monday it seemed to depend on whom team owner Sam Berger had talked with.

John Robertson, Montreal Star sports columnist, said in a front-page story in the newspaper's second edition that Berger told him Etcheverry and Albrecht were fired during a morning meeting.

Contacted by other reporters later, Berger denied the story saying:

"It just isn't true. I don't know where the stories come from."



The owner said, "We were just evaluating the situation. I haven't come to any conclusion of any kind."

Robertson then called Berger again and in a final edition story quoted Berger as saying:

"I thought we were just talking off the record. I didn't think you were going to write anything today."

Robertson said in the final edition story that he called Berger earlier Monday to discuss last week's Canadian Football League meeting and a proposed expansion to the United States.

When the subject was ex-

SAM ETCHEVERRY

said he was firing the two sacking he wanted a coach "who can command and get respect from the players," Robertson reported.d

Albrecht "is just not a general manager," Robertson quotes Berger as saying. "He brought in far too many players and not enough good ones."

The contracts of both men run through 1973.

The newspaperman also said where he discussed a possible replacement for Etcheverry. Berger said that John Bassett, owner of Toronto Argonauts, had recommended his recently-fired head coach Leo Cahill. Berger said he was not sold on that idea.

Berger has admitted he is contemplating changes in the hausted. Robertson says he asked Berger what he was going to do about the coaching and general manager's job with the Larks.

It was at that time Berger

Government Eyes Cost

OTTAWA (CP) — It is time for a federal government look at "the over-all cost picture" of the Summer Olympic Games to be held in Montreal in 1976, Treasury Board President C. M. Drury said Monday.

Senior officials of his department will meet representatives of Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau on the cost question, Mr. Drury said in an interview.

"We hope to find out just what plans Mayor Drapeau has in mind and to what extent he wants help from the federal government."

Mayor Drapeau has said in the past that the city would not need any money from the central government except what already is available under present programs. Mr. Drury said this is the only kind of financial aid the city should expect.

By the Montreal civic leader "may be making some assumptions" regarding costs, charges in housing legislation that could make more money available to finance construction needed for the 1976 Games, Mr. Drury added.

"We want to find out whether these assumptions have any validity."

Prime Minister Trudeau said earlier this year he doubted the ability of Montreal to stage the Games without some form of special federal aid. He also has said repeatedly that only the funds regularly available under existing programs would be on tap for Montreal.

Mr. Drapeau has been criticized recently about the unclarified questions connected with financing of the Olympics. Critics have said his estimate of $120-million to finance the Games should be doubled or tripled.

The Games in Munich last summer are estimated to have cost more than $700 million.

Mr. Drapeau said Nov. 8 that both Quebec and Ottawa would have to "modify some acts" if financing can be made available for some aspects of the Olympics."

He did not specify what acts but noted that Quebec law would need to be amended to permit a special Olympics lottery.

Fisk Top Rookie

NEW YORK (AP) — Boston Red Sox catcher Carlton Fisk is the first American League baseball player unanimously selected Rookie of the Year by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Fisk, who batted .293, eighth-best in the league in 1972, hit 22 home runs and drove in 61 runs, garnered all 24 votes.

He joined Frank Robinson and Willie McCovey of the National League as the only major league players unanimously selected, and is only the second catcher to win American League rookie honors.

Fisk's batting average and home run and RBI output were tops among American League catchers. And he recently was voted to receive the Gold Glove award of managers and coaches as the league's best defensive catcher.

Ski Patrol Plays Important Safety Role

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Skis, a hill and the ski patrol are the three basic ingredients that have made skiing the fast, sophisticated and relatively safe sport it is today.

People have been skiing for a considerable time, probably since snow - covered Hills know came along, but the ski patrol is a relative new comer to the ski recipe.

More than 20 years ago, The Canadian Amateur Ski Association decided a comprehensive ski patrol program was needed to help fallen skiers.

It wasn't until the late 40's that a ski first aid manual was published. It took another 11 years to enrol a membership of 650 patrollers, spread across the country.

All a patrol member is given is a free pass into the ski area. He (she) receives no pay for taking the first aid responsibility of any skier on and sometimes off the slope.

"If someone is injured, and a ski patroller is the closest, para medical person available, it is his obligation to take charge," said Jack McCabe, local ski patrol instructor.

Beginning in mid-October, 18 individuals enrolled for intensive classes at the Oak Hills area ski patrol school. These 18, if successful in examinations, will constitute the area's entire force.

The ski patrol organization is broken into zones and areas where skiers frequent. O n Hills and Napanee are the only neighboring clubs aligned with the national group.

"every.hing from broken bones to sprains to emergency child birth is taught to the class ranging in age from 16 to 25," said Mr. McCabe.

While 16 and 17 - year olds can train with the patrol and can pass as fully qualified staff, they are not permitted to wear the ski patrol jacket. They may carry the first aid kit which girds the waist.

"It is a demanding course, requiring studegts to attain a minimum mark of 75 per cent in first aid theory, artificial respiration and practical problems on the slope," said Mr. McCabe.

For really demanding part is staying on the s l o p e s throughout the entire day, he said.

"If you are assigned to the hill for a particular day, you are not only expected to be there but to be skiing almost constantly," he said.

This winter the Oak Hills force will be doubled with four members on duty each day.

Ski Patrol receives few subsidies and must be self sufficient in raising funds to operate during the season. Members of the group sell buttons for 50 cents and sponsor a ski swap session.

More than $70 is spent on medical supplies at the beginning of the ski season along with the purchase of major equipment.

A sled, the only practical method of bringing a skier down from the slope costs about $100. The patrol will be needing a new one soon.

The new recruits and past patrollers taking refresher courses will be w.iting examinations soon and travelling to Peterborough to enter ski patrol competitions in the first week of December.

"We try to be the best," said Mr. McCabe "We are in the business of being there and knowing what to do when an accident happens."

Ali Eyes Frazier Re Match

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Around the corner from t.he Sizzling Hot machines in the Sands-Tahoe casino Muhammad Ali and Bob Foster fight tonight for higher stakes and a possible shot at losing's biggest jackpot—the world heavyweight championship.

"I'm waiting for Joe Frazier," said A li, theq former heavyweight champ, on the eve of his scheduled 12-round bout with light heavyweight champ Foster.

"I don't know what to expect from Foster, but he'll give me trouble for a few rounds," he said about his 32-year-old opponent, expected to weigh in at about 186 pounds.

Ali has predicted he'll stop Foster in eight rounds and says the lighter but taller fighter "has to rely on a lucky quick punch" to score an upset.

Ali is fighting for a guarantee of $250,000. Foster for $125,000.

The 30-year-Ali will have a weight advantage of about 40 pounds. Foster has held the light-heavy crown for 4½ years, but was knocked out by Frazier in two rounds in an attempt to take the heavyweight title.

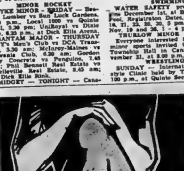
Ali's only loss in 40 professional fights was 20 months ago to Frazier. The 15-round decision spoiled his bid to recapture the title taken away from him for a draft evasion conviction which later was reversed.

"What should worry Foster, if he thinks about it, is what I did to Frazier and what happened when he fought him," Ali said in a last-minute psyching attempt.

Frazier spent a few days in a hospital after the rugged match with Ali.

The Foster-Ali bout is set in the High Sierra Theatre at this resort hotel in ski and gambling country on the south shore of Lake Tahoe.

The seating capacity - is slightly more than 2,000, and the audience should see the theatre's toughest show since entertainer Ann-Margret suffered a few broken bones in a recent fall on stage.



Nevada uses a five-point must system in judging, with the winner getting five points and the loser four or less in each round. Three judges rule, the referee has no vote.

"I wanted the fight because of the big money," said Foster. "But I think I can beat him and there will be more money."

Circuit Court Judge Grounds Golden Jet

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Golden Jet of the World Hockey Association has been grounded again—or has he?

A circuit court judge in Chicago issued a restraining order Monday to stop Bobby Hull from playing for Winnipeg Jets in the WHA.

However, Hull said from Houston he would play in tonight's game against the Aeros—and his words were echoed by Jim Smith, president of the Aeros.

That, apparently, was before Hull had talked to his lawyer and Jerry Torshen, a lawyer who does work for the WHA in Chicago, said Hull wouldn't play.

What is certain is that Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League applied to have Hull restrained from playing in the rival WHA Monday. Judge Francis T. Delaney signed the restraining order because the WHA hadn't posted a $3.5 million bond with the United States district court in Philadelphia.

Judge Leon Higginbotham, in a 194-page judgment Nov. 8, issued a temporary injunction in Philadelphia, preventing the NHL from enforcing its controversial reserve clause, thus freeing former NHLers to play in the WHA.

However, in that judgment, Judge Higginbotham said the WHA would have to post a $2.5 million bond to indemnify the NHL against any possible loss in the event his judgment was reversed.

Judge Delaney said the deadline for posting the bond was Monday—a deadline imposed by Judge Higginbotham.

However, WHA lawyers said Monday wasn't the deadline.

A. J. (Tesly) Simons, the Jets' lawyer, said in Winnipeg he hadn't been told about the deadline. Torshen said the same thing in Chicago.

Smith said Monday Hull "will be there tomorrow night."

"It's not a question of ignoring a court order; A federal court said he could play."

Mercury said he thought Judge Delaney's decision may apply only to Illinois and Hull agrees.

"I imagine the restraining order would apply only to the state of Illinois where I was enjoined in the first place," said Hull in Houston. "But I'll know more in the morning. I expect we'll be able to straighten it out then."

Lawrence Eiger, lawyer for Hull, said 10 WHA teams had promised to post $250,000 each for the bond, but so far only two had done so. Some bond documents had been held up by a mail strike in Alberta.

Hull, who jumped from the Black Hawks to the Jets and signed a $2.75 million contract, has played only 12 games so far this season.

Mercury accused the NHL of dirty pool. He said WHA lawyers had met NHL lawyers and been assured the NHL would abide by the federal court decision.

Monday's ruling showed the NHL was interested in harassing one player, said Mercury, and this would work to the detriment of the established league while boosting the WHA.

Henderson Gets Fruits of Victory

At Hamilton city hall Monday, his collection was augmented by a cartoon, a framed poem, a builder's hat, cuff links and a city pin.

Henderson, who played his junior hockey with Hamilton Red Wings, told Mayor Vic Copps he had visited city hall the first time when he obtained his marriage licence.

BOBBY HULL

Nats Nipped

BOSTON (AP) — Tom Webster, John French and Ted Green all scored two goals apiece Monday night to power New England Whalers to a 7-5 World Hockey Association victory over Ottawa Nationals.

French scored twice for New England in the first period and Green got the first of his goals. Wayne Cunningham, Rick Carleton and Gavin Kirk tallied for Ottawa to tie the score 3-3 at the end of the first period.

Webster and Green scored within 56 seconds in the opening minutes of the middle period. Tom Martin got Ottawa's lone goal of the period before Terry Caffery converted Larry Pleau's rebound on a power play at 9:46. Webster got his second goal at 17:46.

Bob Leduc scored for Ottawa at 3:27 of the third period.

New England had a 35-25 shooting advantage in the game, in which referee Brent Casselman assessed 15 minor penalties.

Attendance at the game was 7,916.

NHL Hat Tricks--Now 'Old Hat'

MONTREAL (CP) — National Hockey League forwards today appear to have taken aim at an all-time record for most three-goal games in a season.

So far they have performed the feat 17 times—a number which league statisticians say is unequalled this early in a season.

The highest number previous to this season after a like number of games was 13 recorded last year, when a final record of 53 three-goal games was produced.

With 36 games remaining this month, players already have equalled the highest previous total 30, three-goal games in a single month, recorded in March 1971.

Leading the way in this department are four players who have had two three-or-more-goal games each. They are Butch Goring of Los Angeles Kings, rookie Steve Vickers of the New York Rangers, Al McDonough of Pittsburgh Penguins and Bob Schmautz of Vancouver Canucks.

The most notable of these performances was that by Schmautz. The Vancouver right winger scored three goals last Friday against the Kings and four against Buffalo Sabres Sunday. His sudden output gave him 13 goals so far this season, one more than he scored during the 76 games with the Canucks last season.

Vickers' two three-goal games were also in successive contests, Nov. 12 against the Kings and last Wednesday against Philadelphia Flyers.

The sudden surge of scoring power has been partly responsible for the fact that 80 goals more have been scored this season than after the same number of games one year ago.

It also has had an effect on goaltending averages which have ballooned to the point where only one team, Montreal Canadiens, boasts a goals-against average better than 3.50 per game, compared with five clubs at the same time last season.

Japanese Quarterback Learns Fundamentals

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — When Utah State University went to Japan to play football against two Japanese all-star teams last Christmas, it brought back a souvenir—one of the Japanese quarterbacks.

Keijiro Hirose now is studying English and football coaching techniques at Utah.

Hirose lives in the Utah football dormitory with the team.

He said American-style football is growing in Japan, but it's at about the level of soccer in the United States.

Hirose goes to English classes daily and then goes to football practice, where he takes notes on American football from the sidelines.

Hirose plans to study at USU for two years, then return to Japan to become a full-time coach.

Service Pays Off For Stan Smith

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Tennis ace Stan Smith is out of the United States Army now—one of the few GIs to come out of the service richer than when he went in. About $100,000 richer.

Maybe $200,000.

He'll be even richer if he's allowed to keep the remainder of a special fund set up in his name when he donned a private's uniform two years ago. This fund, a source of some controversy, is said to total between $40,000 and $60,000.

The No. 1 tennis player in the U.S. entered the army in December, 1970. He was mustered out Oct. 31 as a specialist fourth class with a monthly salary of $346.20.

In the intervening 24 months, he did little but play tennis—as a representative of the army's special services—and raked in rich prizes, as much as $25,000 in tournaments.

His tournament winnings for the two years have amounted to around $250,000. Although GIs technically are forbidden to make extra money while in uniform—except during leave—Smith apparently will keep as much of the money as if he were a civilian.

This has been made possible through a deal with Ed Turville, former U.S. Davis Cup captain, and through the astute handling of Smith's affairs by his attorney-manager, Donald Dell.

Still, an aura of mystery has built up around the arrangement, largely as the result of a question asked Smith after he won the $15,000 first prize in the U.S. Open at Forest Hills, N.Y., in 1971.

"Is it true that you have a slush fund and that you'll get all this money when you're out of the service?" Smith was asked.

He was shaken momentarily by the question.

"I don't know," he replied. "I think all the money goes to the Davis Cup fund."

Harcourt Woods, chairman of the U.S. Davis Cup committee, queried about the fund this week, said: "We haven't seen a cent of it."

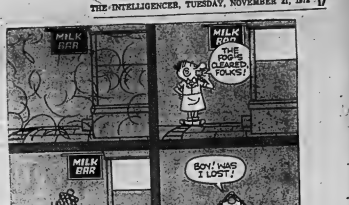
Reached at the Pentagon, Maj. Richard Lake of the offending army chief of information, said: "We made an arrangement with the U.S. Davis Cup Committee that Smith could play tennis, but that all prize money not won while on leave must go directly to the Davis Cup fund.

Turville, a St. Petersburg, Fla., lawyer who served as president of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association (USLTA) prior to his period as Davis Cup captain, acknowledged the existence of such a fund.

"The deal was that all travel and other expenses incurred by Smith should be paid out of this fund," Turville said. "After Smith won the U.S. Open and played a couple of tournaments in the West Coast, the fund reached about $25,000.

"After taking out for expenses, it got down to around $12,000 and I think that was used for Smith to play earlier this year in Jamaica and Mexico."

Dell, reached in Rotterdam, Holland, where he was conferring with Davis Cup representatives, said:



"It isn't the Davis Cup fund at all, it's called the Stan Smith Davis Cup Account. Smith's money—except that which he's on leave—is placed into this fund. Out of this fund comes money for all of his travel and tournament expenses. What people don't realize is that Smith hasn't cost the army anything . . .

"During the last two years, however, Smith was sharing in the Davis Cup per-diem allowance which reached as much as $200 by the time the team had gained the challenge round.

Smith was paid $50 a day for the 10 days in Jerusalem, $100 a day for the two weeks in Mexico, $125 a day for the Chilean series and $150 a day for the inter-zone final in Spain and $250 a day for three weeks in Bucharest.

Dell became incensed at a report the USLTA might demand the remainder of the fund.

"Why should the USLTA have it?," asked Dell. "It's Smith's money. He earned it. The army doesn't want it. I plan to maximize the invoices and use every legitimate expense allowance to see that Stan gets a fair shake."

WILT-BUILT CHAMPS -- by Alan Mayer

New Formula Possible For Major Leagues

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball would expand, rather than cut, its extensive post-season playoffs under proposals to be brought before the owners at their winter meetings, scheduled to open next Monday in Honolulu.

Under a plan for restructuring the playoffs, the first two teams in each division of the two major league leagues would qualify. The second-place team in each division would meet the winner of the other division in a best-of-three series, the winners to meet in a best-of-five series for the league championship.

The current format calls for a best-of-five series between divisional winners to determine participants in the World Series.

Two other proposals for changing the playoff structure on the agenda are:

—two teams, irrespective of division, with the highest percentage outside the divisional champions play a best-of-five three-game series for the right to meet the winner of the divisional playoffs.

—The present two six-team divisions in each league be carved up into three divisions of four teams each. The winners of each division would be joined by the team with the best percentage among the three second-place finishers for a best-of-five series, the survivors to meet best-of-five for the league title.

Other items on the agenda include:

—Report on player negotiations. Efforts will be made to prevent a player strike such as that which delayed the season pended games to be completed.

—Change the rules so that games halted by weather, which now become shortened regulation games, become suspended game to be completed later.

Increase the number of players who may be put on the 21-day disabled list from two to three.

Redskins Ground Falcons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three cheers for the Redskins," sang the husky-voiced Washington football team.

Three cheers for the Redskins . . . rah, rah rah."

There are grown men, mind you.

"Hooray for Pat, hooray for Pat Fischer," continued the offkey locker room chorus. "Hooray for Alvin, hooray for Alvin Hayward. Rah, Rah Rah."

The Redskins are the world's oldest, largest, highest-paid boy scouts. George Allen is as much their routmaster as the coach of the National Football League powerhouse.

After a victory Allen passes out game footballs like merit badges. Monday night was Fischer's turn, for guilty defence that got him a black eye and Hayward's turn for nifty kick returning.

"We sing because we're happy," said Allen "It was a big win for us. The pressure's now on Dallas Cowboys for Thursday's game. We'll just sit back and watch what happens."

Washington had just smacked Atlanta Falcons 26-13 for their seventh straight win, the longest streak of Redskin victories since 1942 when D. C. had its last world champion.

The Redskins are 9-1, one game better than the current National Football League champs, Dallas, with the Cowboys meeting San Francisco on Thanksgiving Day.

Atlanta, 5-5, lost a 24-hour grip on first place in the NFC West as Los Angeles and the 49ers, both 5-4-1, popped ahead when the Falcons collapsed in the chilling wind at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium.

Billy Kilmer hit 7-for-7 in the third quarter, topping an 88-yard march with an 18-yard touchdown pass to Larry Brown and later hitting tight end Jerry Smith on a 12-yard score.

A 10-7 Falcon halftime lead vanished amid the Kilmer barrage that put Washington into 21-10 command. Bill Bell kicked a fourth-period field goal for Atlanta, but Curt Knight matched it with a 37-yarder that drew a standing ovation from the partisan Washington crowd.

Atlanta started fast, intercepting a Kilmer pass in the first quarter. Atlanta quarterback Bob Berry then rifled a 36-yard touchdown pass to tight end Jim Mitchell for a 7-0 Falcon lead.

Ted, Vactor fumbled a Falcon punt at the Redskin 30 to set up a 23-yard field goal by Bell that made it 13-0.

Falcon runner Art Malone cooled his team's hot streak with a fumble that was recovered by Chris Hanburger late in the second quarter.

Kilmer then worked the club to the Atlanta one, setting up a one-yard scoring charge by the incredible Brown. It was then 10-7, setting the stage for Kilmer's third period heroics that erased Atlanta hopes for an upset.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 22

Aries (March 21-April 19): Your opinions are a bit sharp on others' ears—not helpful in today's probable involvement with group and neighborhood affairs.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Rushing around solves nothing. Stick with what you have and normally would do. Early preparations succeed.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Leave financial arrangements alone. If your work is well enough presented, important support will be attracted.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Bridge any gaps between you and those you love. Later hours run out as you are carried along it freely currents at changes.

Leo (July 23-Aug 22): Be alert, things are not the same as yesterday. Opportunity comes briefly—install new equipment, use new methods.

Virgo (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Possessions change in value. You can make an opening for yourself where you have worked out proper information and really want to produce.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Declare a public relations day, begin a carefully planned exploration. Contacts established now promise well for the long future.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Unfamiliar contacts need your best persuasive talents. Financial arrangements can be revised well early in the day.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Involvement encompasses strong feelings, so make them positive and constructive. Pursue the goals you really want.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Press forward in good faith and earnest endeavor. Later hours provide a chance for exceptional progress in new relationships.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Find areas for compromise. Mechanical equipment has to be given extra care or left aside in favor of person-to-person action.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Co-operation is much freer. Getting is good humor, letting bygones be bygones. It's a whole new deal if you let it be so.

Sedimentation Rate Tells Much

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you explain how a blood sedimentation rate is obtained? Is it agnostic test? I think I understand the principles of other common blood tests, but not the "sed rate."

I've known of the test being used to determine the progress of cranial arteritis, ulcerative colitis, and mononucleosis.

If you put a sample of blood in a tube (test tube, or whatever) and let it sit, the red blood cells will settle toward the bottom.

The presence of infection or tissue damage makes the cells settle faster, so the sedimentation rate is the speed with which the red cells move toward the bottom. In an indication of the degree of infection.

It is not a specific test—you cannot tell from a sed rate whether some specific disease is present. But it can give a clue as to the progress of some conditions, such as those you've mentioned and others.

Since so many newer laboratory tests are now available that can be specific I needed, some physicians regard the sed test as unnecessary and of scant use as a diagnostic tool; and the principal value perhaps is in just keeping track of the progress of some chronic ailment.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is "elevated uric acid level in the blood," and how can it be treated?

It means there's more uric acid in the blood than there would be. Uricosuric agents (drugs which reduce uric acid) are the principal treatment, as is of secondary importance.

Elevated uric acid is the basic characteristic of gout, and of some types of kidney stones, so it is important to control uric acid. Nicely per cent of those with a uric acid problem show it eventually develop gout.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How contagious is TB after taking medication?

My husband contracted it recently, and baby stones, and tests, and the doctor put him on medication for three months, after which he is to return for more x-rays and tests.

Our son is afraid to bring the baby to see us. He said their doctor said so, as the baby had colds. The baby is six months old.

A question I can't answer—because I don't know the state of your husband's TB. If sputum tests show active TB germs, then the baby should not be anywhere near him. In fact, great care should be taken to protect anyone with whom he comes in contact. Medication is usually given for more than three months.

But if his case has subsided to the point where tests show no active germs, then he would not be in danger of infecting anyone else.

Perhaps you'll have a definite answer when your husband goes for next tests. I surely hope so. But don't be a matter of another three months I'd certainly play safe and not have the baby around.

The bidding:

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

Endplays seldom come about as by themselves. Declarer must generally exercise considerable acumen to attain the endplay position he seeks, and he usually has to apply himself for a long problem right from the start.

Take this deal where West leads the king of diamonds and shifts to the king of clubs. Declarer sees all this at once and sees that if the cards are all stacked against him he may ultimately lose a spade, two hearts and a diamond.

South has an control over the trump loser if the suit is divided 2-0, so all his thoughts are concentrated on finding a way to restrict himself to one heart loser. In line with this plan he club at trick three, the first step in the elimination process he plans to invoke to produce the desired effect. Without this play South would lose the contract: 3

He then plays the ace of trumps, East showing out, and proceeds in ruff a diamond, a club, a diamond, and finally the last club. Having eliminated all the clubs and diamonds from his own hand and dummy's, South is ready for the sure - fire endplay. He puts West on lead with a trump.

By this time everyone is down to four cards. Dummy has three hearts and a trump, and so has South. West has three hearts and a diamond.

West, on two tricks in the bag, is on lead and unhappy. If he returns a diamond, he hands South a ruff and discard as well as the contract. And if he returns a heart instead, the outcome is the same. So South loses only one heart trick.

It pays to plan the play.

Tomorrow: Slam bidding.

North Sea Rig

Three drilling rigs, similar to one shown above, will form cornerstone of Ekofisk City, a permanent oil production site planned for the North Sea. The project will also contain a field terminal platform, a tower to burn waste gas and a tank capable of storing a million barrels of crude oil. The plant will begin operation next year.

NDP to Seek to Limit Election Costs

OTTAWA (CP) — With the most expensive election only recently behind them and another costly one not far away, MPs early next year will be asked once again— to consider legislation to limit such spending.

The New Democratic Party, holding the balance of power in the Commons that opens Jan. 4, already has made clear it will seek such legislation.

Stanley Knowles, NDP House leader, Monday said the party will seek improvements in government legislation that died with the last Parliament after strong opposition criticism.

The minority Liberal government isn't giving away any secrets about legislation to be outlined at the opening of the 30th Parliament. But informed sources say it is quite conceivable Prime Minister Trudeau may seek to limit election expenses before the next election.

But he will be facing a radically-altered Parliament. Instead of an overwhelming majority, he will have 109 government MPs compared with 107 Conservatives, 31 NDP members, 15 Social Credit members and two independents in the 264-seat Commons.

Mr. Trudeau may decide it would be good politics to help candidates cope with ever-rising costs of getting elected.

Relief is needed, according to the estimates of Kheyyam Zev Paltiel, a Carleton University political science professor who has been studying election expenses for years.

In an interview, Prof. Paltiel said the last election may have cost politicians and their parties between $20 million and $30 million. On top of that, Chief Electoral Officer Jean-Marc Hamel estimates it cost about $10 million to organize the vote. This makes a total of between $40 million and $50 million.

This compares to a Paltiel estimate of $31 million for politicians and $13.8 million for government in 1968 and a Commons committee estimate of $18 million for candidates and $12.9 million for organization in 1968.

Skylab Will Follow Apollo Space Series

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —Contrary to some beliefs, the United States space centre is not going to close down after Apollo 17 is launched here Dec. 6 on the final moon-landing journey in the series.

In fact, says Dr. Kurt Debus, the Kennedy Space Centre director, he directs is ready to move into the next U.S. manned project, Skylab, with three launchings next year during which men will be flying in space a total of five months.

After Skylab, Debus says, there will be a lull in manned space activity, with only a joint U.S.-Russian flight scheduled between 1974 and 1978. But during that time preparations will be under way for the revolutionary space shuttle, and during the decade of the '80s manned ships might be embarking from the Cape at the rate of one a week.

There also will be a continuing series of unmanned satellite launchings, including shots to many of the planets.

Skylab, a two-storey laboratory with the volume of a medium-size house, is to be launched unmanned by a Saturn 5 rocket next April 30.

The following day a three-man crew is to be launched in a modified Apollo capsule by a smaller Saturn 1 B rocket. The astronauts will enter the Skylab 270 miles above the earth and remain aboard for 28 days.

The astronauts will conduct more than 30 different types of experiments aimed at developing techniques for surveying earth's resources from space, determining man's ability to live and work in orbit for long periods, extending solar astronomy beyond earth's dense atmosphere and experimenting with space manufacturing processes.

Between Skylab and the shuttle there will be perhaps the most significant flight yet—a joint orbital mission in 1975 by U.S. astronauts and Russians cosmonauts.

First manned test flights of the shuttle are scheduled from Cape Kennedy in 1978 and it is hoped the rocket plane will be operational within a few months, functioning almost as simply as an airliner.

The shuttle will take off like a rocket, fly in orbit like a spaceship and land back on earth like an airplane. Each shuttle will be capable of making more than 100 trips into space before wearing out. Its two solid fuel booster rockets also will be reusable after parachuting to earth.

The shuttle will be the size of DC-9 airliner and can be flown by two pilots. It can carry up to 6,000 pounds of payload and 12 passengers who do not have to be trained astronauts. Scientists, medical experts, meteorologists, anyone in good health, can make the trip.

The craft's first function will be to carry unmanned satellites into orbit. On some missions the shuttle will serve as an interim space station.

Action, Not Talk, Is West's Reply to Traffic Tangles

CALGARY (CP) — The favored approach among cities with transportation woes is talk, talk, talk and study, study, study. Doing something to alleviate problems or even to avoid them seems less popular, says transportation director Bill Kuyt of Calgary.

"You can fill shelves with studies Vancouver has been doing this for years.

"But Regina said 'Let's try.' We are doing the same."

Calgary is looking for its answer to congestion in a 16-month experiment called the Blue Arrow Bus Express System (BABES).

Its aim is to get people in and out of downtown in a hurry and Mr. Kuyt says some aspects are as innovative as Regina's dial-a-bus introduced last year.

BABES is a fore-runner of rapid transit and operates on streets which follow the proposed rapid transit corridors.

Mr. Kuyt said the system is the first in North America to run a fast-service bus solely on city streets. Seattle runs a similar system through its downtown but mostly uses freeways.

To get the jump on traffic in the city centre, BABES has a mixture of special bus lanes, a five-second start on other traffic at some intersections, and bus sensors which set up sequences of traffic lights.

Running buses the wrong way down one lane of a one-way street is also being considered as a way of avoiding normal traffic. In the morning out-bound one-ways are practically deserted as cars head for the middle of town while in the evening the situation is reversed.

The wrong-way idea came from Europe which Mr. Kuyt described as miles ahead of North America in public transit. Another European idea is the use of radios, facilitating the addition of buses when passengers increase and improving schedule reliability.

BABES runs five days a week, 12 hours a day beginning at 6:30 a.m. and replaces four rush-hour express routes which used to run about six hours a day.

The old routes averaged 1,200 passengers a day but the first day BABES was in operation it had 2,800 patrons.

Usage has risen between five and six per cent a week to 3,200 a day. When two days of snowy weather arrived, the number of passengers jumped 27 per cent.

Mr. Kuyt said the increase may indicate what will happen in the winter when downtown workers leave their cars at home.

Unless people use rapid transit it will not be economically feasible and Mr. Kuyt says a system better than buses will be needed by the end of the 1970s.

Another reason for rapid transit is pollution.

At present, 200 buses an hour travel within a block of each other in the downtown. When the fumes from their diesel engines and the other traffic are considered they become "just too many in too small an area."

Another problem with that number of buses is that the schedules get badly disrupted by unexpected traffic.

BABES cuts in half, to about 15 minutes, the time to get downtown from outer areas compared to former systems. It takes about half an hour to drive and park.

Much of the time is saved by having fewer stops and using feeder lines to bring people from residential areas to terminals.

Some terminals have parking lots with plug-ins to encourage drivers to pay 2 cent fares, the same as on regular service, and leave their cars behind.

This caused a small furore in one district where residents opposed the lot because they said it used land earmarked for recreation purposes.

Mr. Kuyt said: "It's not fashionable to be against rapid transit. It is fashionable to be against freeways."

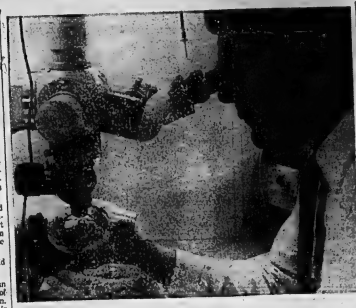
The operating and capital cost of the 16-month experiment is $1.2 million and if it falls through nearly all the capital materials may be used in other parts of the system.

Japanese Have Metal Waste Cure

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japanese scientists claim to have produced a low-cost absorbent that can remove poisonous heavy metals in waste water discharged by industrial plants.

The semi-governmental National Chemical Laboratory for Industry said a series of tests has shown the new absorbent can remove more than 99.5 per cent of the heavy metals, such as cadmium, mercury and lead, in the water.

The discovery could be a godsend for Japanese industries, now being prosecuted with increasing frequency by the public for deaths and injuries caused by discharge of poisonous waste water, and facing a government requirement that they meet all anti-pollution costs.



A laboratory spokesman said the absorbent is nitro-hamic acid modified by carboxyl methyl cellulose.

The acid can be extracted at low cost from low-grade coals such as lignite, which are abundantly available on the northernmost Japanese island of Hokkaido.

Nitro-hamic acid now is being widely used as a material for soil enrichment and compound fertilizer, a spokesman said.

Its strong absorbent qualities have long been known, but its practical application has previously been a problem as it was easily soluble in alkaline liquid. This has been solved by transforming it into pellets with the cellulose, the spokesman added.

Tests showed that a small amount of the absorbent in a glass tube could remove all traces of cadmium from gallons of waste water.

Checks Diamond

Roy Hoddlestone, managing director of Diamond Grading Laboratories of London, checks for flaws in diamond through a powerful microscope. The small British firm has also come up with a method of "fingerprinting" valuable gems that might be stolen. (CP Photo)

City Being Built In Middle of Sea

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — Out in the stormy North Sea they're building a $1 billion steel monster known as Ekofisk City. It will be the permanent production plant for the Ekofisk oil field.

The field is 200 miles southwest of this Norwegian city, in the Norwegian end of the triangle which links the continental shelves of Britain, Denmark and Norway.

Some 500 men are working around the clock so that the plant can go into operation next year. Ekofisk City will handle an estimated 300,000 barrels of oil daily from 20 wells.

The Phillips group — American, Belgian, French, Italian and Norwegian companies with Phillips Petroleum as operator — now is producing 40,000 barrels daily on a test basis from four wells in the field.

Norway's treasury collected more than $2.2 million in royalties from Phillips for the year ended June 30.

Phillips wants to lay a pipeline to land oil in Britain at the steel shipbuilding and chemicals centre known as Teeside, on the estuary of the Tees River. Opinion in Stavanger is that the Norwegian parliament will agree when the question of the terminal comes up next February. A government-appointed committee earlier this year argued for piping the Ekofisk oil to Teeside, where Phillips operates an oil refinery. Phillips already has ordered equipment for the pipeline project with Teeside in mind, and the work could start next summer.

Experts say this is one of the toughest areas in the world to search for oil—and to produce it. The hazards include weeklong storms, strong sea currents, big tidal differences and long periods of rain and fog.

The whole Ekofisk operation is adjusted to these hazards.

Ekofisk City will be a cornerstone in the North Sea oil saga.

Other off-shore "cities" of this kind will follow. The French-Norwegian Petrocord group has found a gusher in the Frigg field further north. British Petroleum hit the jackpot in the Forties field on the British side.

Ekofisk City will rest 60 feet above the surface on platforms connected to enormous steel pilits hammered into the bottom. The sea is 215 feet deep in this area.

Postal Conciliation Talks Proceeding

OTTAWA (CP) — While postal workers waiting for news of a working contract agree more negotiated, a conciliation board set up to deal with issues in dispute between their union and government was still talking business Monday.

The conciliation board, headed by Owen Shime of the Ontario Labor Relations Board is working on an indefinite extension of its original term. The extension was requested about 12 days ago.

Wildcat walkouts in Toronto last week by postal workers reflect the growing restlessness of the union members, waiting for a new working agreement since March when their last one expired.

The Toronto workers were forced back to work Sunday by a Supreme Court of Ontario injunction.

Joseph Davidson, national vice-president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), said Monday the union executive hoped the men would not go out on more wildcats.

It was upsetting to have no news on how negotiations were proceeding, "but we don't want our members flying off the handle."

Some of the 28,000 members of the Council of Postal Unions (CPU), which includes the CUPW and the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, were less patient and their restlessness increased week to week, he said.

The shortage of news coming from the conciliation board extended even to national officers of the CPU unions. "We are not being told what is going on ourselves."

But Mr. Davidson said he was hopeful that some conclusions would be reached by the conciliation board this week.

He said conflicting reports that a settlement was near or that no agreement was close were equally without basis. "I don't know how many issues remain outstanding.

Plea Made

LONDON (CP) — A Conservative member of Parliament has appealed to the government to ease new immigration regulations for Canadians, Australians and New Zealanders.

"On this festival day of loyalty," said John Biggs-Davison, referring to the Queen's silver wedding anniversary, "...should we not be assured that our fellow subjects from Australia, Canada and New Zealand will be treated here as members of one family on the basis of reciprocity."

Biggs-Davison raised the point in the House of Commons Monday recalling that new immigration regulations coming into effect Jan. 1 will make it more difficult for Commonwealth citizens to obtain long-term job permits in Britain.

Brandt Praised

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau told Willy Brandt Monday that he is delighted with his re-election as chancellor of West Germany.

Mr. Trudeau sent this telegram to the chancellor the day after the West German elections:

"I am delighted by your electoral victory. It has confirmed your courageous and realistic ost politik which has already contributed to much to East-West relations."

Blows Fatal

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — A 16-year-old Metrix girl, whose nude body was found Sunday in a ditch about five miles from her home, died of head injuries that included a fractured skull, an autopsy disclosed Monday.

Police said it has not been determined whether Suzanne Aldeworth also had been sexually assaulted. The blows to the girl's head were made by a blunt instrument.

Union Doubtful

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Dr. A. C. Forrest, a prominent and often controversial United Church Minister, said Monday he wouldn't be surprised if the Anglican Church "backs off" from union with the United Church and the Dfficiples of Christ.

He was commenting on a resolution by the council of faith of the Anglican Church of Canada at the council's annual mee ing in London, Ont., during the weekend.

The council warned the Anglican Church that it faces "fragmentation" if it ever tries to unite with the United Church on the basis of the present draft of union.

Legs Broken

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Two school children, among 10 injured Monday when their school bus crashed into a bridge abutment, have been admitted to hospital here with leg fractures.

Mark Guilbeault, 7, and Mark Berretta, 9, both of RR2, Belle River, were reported in satisfactory condition.

The other children and the bus driver were released from hospital after treatment for cuts and bruises.

Women Wary

TORONTO (CP) — The Voice of Women (VoW) has sent a telegram to External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp protesting possible Canadian participation in a peacekeeping force in Indochina.

The group's national council said: "No genuine peace plans" have been made clear. In this unsettled situation, Canada should not be drawn into the position of representing the United States in enforcing its will on the Vietnamese."

The telegram was signed by Nancy Pocock of Toronto, a member of the VoW steering committee.

The VoW is a national, anti-war organization.

Divide Gains

EDMONTON (CP) — Property accumulated during marriage should be divided equally in any divorce settlement, recommends an interim report on the status of women tabled Monday in the legislature.

The report, tabled by Helen Hunley, minister without portfolio, endorses the recommendation of the royal commission on the status of women in Canada that provinces amend their laws in order to recognize the concept of equal partnership in marriage.

Girl Strangled

KARS, Ont. (CP) — A nine-year-old girl died Monday after her scarf became entangled in the power take-off of a tractor.

Michelle Samek was standing in the driveway of her home when her father, Hurst Samek drove past on a tractor pulling a powered snow-blower attachment. The girl's scarf caught in the mechanism and she was dragged into the driveshaft.

Kars is about 25 miles south of Ottawa.

OK Lounges

STRATHROY, Ont. (CP) — Strathroy residents voted Monday to permit cocktail lounges and to allow wines and liquors to be served with meals in dining lounges.

The vote was about 65 per cent in favor of cocktail lounges and about 75 per cent in favor of serving wines and liquor with meals.

Metal House

TORONTO (CP) — The International Lead Zinc Research Organization Inc. (ILZRO) is developing a metal house that will be ready for the market within three years.

Egg Plan OK

OTTAWA (CP) — An agreement that may lead to a national agency to con rol the production and marketing of eggs was signed Monday by Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson and other provincial counterparts.

Should provincial and regional egg marketing boards follow suit as expected, the agreement would lead to the first federal agency created under the Farm Products Marketing Agencies Act passed early this year after two years of debate.

Basically, the plan would limit national egg production to 375 million dozen a year, parcelled out among provinces on the basis of past production. Provincial marketing boards would allocate quotas to farmers to "ensure orderly marketing."

Plan Inquest

OTTAWA (CP) — An inquest has been ordered into the death of a 16-year-old Ottawa girl whose body was found in a swamp near here in August, 1971.

The hearing, set for Dec. 5, will look into the death of Christine Wallowiak who was found at North Gower, 20 miles south of Ottawa.

An autopsy found the girl had died of a beating with a blunt object and police have been carrying out an investigation since then.

Conscience Money

HALIFAX (CP) — The provincial government received a boost in funds here recently from an unknown Nova Scotia resident. A letter containing $20 was received by the minister of education. A department spokesman said different de-

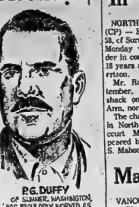
Rail Subsidies

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission has approved more than $30 million a year in new subsidies to Canadian railways for uneconomic passenger services.

The railways had applied to discontinue virtually all rail passenger services between Quebec City, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton and London. Such applications are necessary to obtain subsidies.

In a decision released Monday, the commission directed the railways to maintain the services, with a federal subsidy of 80 per. cent of approved loss.

Children Help



WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Schoolchildren here were rallying today in support of the 'sod-stricken residents of Pelee Island.

Beginning Wednesday, students will devote two hours of school time and two hours of their own time to doing odd jobs in the community. Money raised will go to the Essex County Flood-relief fund.

Murder Charge Laid In Death in 1954

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — Edward Joseph White, 58, of Surrey, B.C., was charged Monday with non-capital murder in connection with the death 18 years ago of John Keith Robertson.

Mr. Robertson died in September, 1954, in his lonely shack on an island in Indian Arm, north of Vancouver.

The charge was read to White in North Vancouver provincial court Monday when he appeared briefly before Judge H. S. Mahon. He was remanded in custody to Nov. 27. White did not enter a plea.

In 1954, the pathologist who examined Mr. Robertson's body said he was almost certain the death was due to natural causes. And the coroner's jury which investigated his death ruled out foul play and returned a verdict of death from natural causes. He was 68.

RCMP would not explain the renewed interest in the case, except to say they'd recently received some additional information.

Mackasey Is Sued

VANCOUVER (CP) — A writ was filed in federal court Monday alleging that Immigration Minister Bryce Mackasey acted unconstitutionally in suspending the right of visitors to Canada to apply for landed immigrant status.

Suraj Sandor, a building contractor in Vancouver, said in an interview that the minister's move to plug the loophole was "unlawful, ultra vires and unconstitutional because it violates the fundamental principle that Parliament and Parliament alone can change a major interpretation in any act. . . ."

Mr. Sandor said when Mr. Mackasey gave orders not to accept any more applications for landed immigrant status from visitors, Parliament was not in session.

"No law can be changed without the express consent and approval of Parliament," he said.

Goes to Jail

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal ruled Monday that Gary Allen Scarrow, 21, of Delaware, Ont., must serve a jail sentence of 21 months definite and 12 months indeterminate on charges of armed robbery, escaping lawful custody and forcible seizure of a 15-year-old youth.

Scarrow pleaded guilty to the charges Aug. 15 and Provincial Court Judge G. G. Marshman of London, Ont., gave him a suspended sentence and two years probation.

The sentence was appealed by the Crown.

Just Cackled

TORONTO (CP) — Secretaries of about 20 provincial government backbenchers met Monday to discuss salaries and fringe benefits, but "just cackled like a bunch of hens," said one of them.

Civilized City

TORONTO (CP) — The people of Toronto have every reason to be proud of their city. It is the most civilized city in North America, said Vance Packard, prominent American social critic, in a visit here.

Potter Studies Plan

Denture Therapists Proposed by Report

TORONTO (CP) — A special class of properly-trained dental therapists should be permitted to make and fit false teeth in Ontario, recommends a report tabled in the legislature Tuesday.

The report of a seven-member health advisory committee said the primary aim in creating a new dental health discipline should be protection of the public against incompetent or inadequately trained denturists.

Health Minister Richard Potter, in tabling the report, assured the legislature that safeguards would be part of the bill to provide denturists with a professional status independent of the existing dental profession.

He said he hoped to bring the bill before the house for second reading next week.

Outside the house, the minister said the government approved of the main thrust of the report dealing with safeguards.

"I can assure you that nobody is going to be licensed without proper safeguards," he told reporters. About 375 dental technicians operate in the province, graduates of a four-year course or apprenticeship training.

Denturists say they can provide false teeth, without the intervention of dentists, at $100 to $150 less than dentists.

"We're going to study the report and we hope to bring in some amendments next week, although we haven't yet decided what they might be," the minister said.

The bulky report by the committee, formed last July and headed by Barry Lowes of Toronto, said qualifications of denturists should be upgraded.

It said they should not be called dental technologists, as the bill proposes, but denture therapists. The practice should be known as denture therapy.

A denture therapists' licensing board should be set up to review qualifications, set examinations and compile statistics on the supply, distribution and professional activities of members.

Therapists should be trained in anatomy and physiology, to take impressions and "to work in the mouth of patients which they obviously aren't," trained to do at present, Dr. Potter told reporters.

Dr. Potter said this kind of training will ensure "that technicians know that the patient isn't suffering from some condition that could lead to serious complications."

Under the existing Dental Act, it is illegal for any technician to fit or sell dentures without supervision of a dentist. About 75 denturists practising in private clinics in Metropolitan Toronto are operating outside the act, which has led to police raids and prosecutions.

Dentists say they have evidence to prove some denturists have ignored serious dental complications and have attached partial plates to decayed teeth.

The right of the individuals to use the services of the health practitioners of their choice should be respected," the report states. "Any limitations on these rights should be those designed specifically to protect the public interest.

Dr. Potter told reporters he agrees with this assumption, adding:

"Let's make sure, first of all, whether we need another type of dental auxiliary, and we've decided we probably do. Then let's make sure they're properly trained and qualified to deal directly with the public."

Among the report's 43 recommendations:

—The training program in denture therapy consist of three parts—academic, technical and clinical.

—The program be three years' beyond Grade 13, and that George Brown College of Applied Arts and Technology in Toronto be the first to offer the course.

—George Brown College should aim for 25 graduates a year in denture therapy.

—Persons currently practising as denturists be permitted to take an examination to determine their qualifications.

Wary Sharp Sets Truce Conditions

OTTAWA (CP) — Wary of the military and political perils involved, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has set out the conditions for Canadian participation in a possible Vietnam ceasefire.

He reiterated at a news conference Tuesday that Canada has made no commitment to take part in an international peace supervisory force, and a element of a peace plan now under negotiation between the United States and North Vietnam.

The U.S. state department has listed Canada along with three other countries as contributors to such a commission.

But Mr. Sharp responded Tuesday the first requirement for Canadian participation is an invitation from all the contestants in Vietnam. Canada would not accept as the nominee of one side or the representative of the United States.

Mr. Sharp said the second condition is establishment of a "machinery" by which a peace commission would report.

Third, the procedure to be followed by the commission must be "workable."

Finally, the peace commission must have freedom of movement inside Vietnam, Mr. Sharp said.

Mr. Sharp said the proposed commission would not be a military peacekeeping force, but a supervisory body to "observe and report."

The other three countries mentioned for membership on the new commission are Indonesia, Hungary and Poland.

Five Win Appeal

CHICAGO (AP) — Declaring that the trial judge took an "often antagonistic attitude toward the defence," a federal appeals court has overturned the conviction of five anti-war activists in the case of the Chicago Seven.

The ruling Tuesday by the U.S. 7th Circuit Court of Appeals climaxed a controversial case which results from riots during the week of the Democratic national convention here in 1968.

The five anti-war activists who were convicted two years ago of inciting the riots were David Dellinger, 56; Rennie Davis, 32; Abbie Hoffman, 33; Jerry Rubin, 33; and Thomas Hayden, 32.

Graham Hears Ambush Shots

KOHIMA, India (AP) — An Indian army convoy was ambushed today only three miles from where American evangelist Billy Graham was conducting his Crusade for Christ among the Nagas tribe.

The firing was audible in the crusade grounds, but Graham carried on with a special prayer service for the wife. When about 2,000 persons sitting on the outer edges of the fan-fold left, began to leave after hearing the shooting, Graham appealed to them to remain seated. They did.

JFK Killed 9 Years Ago

WASHINGTON (AP) — Memorial rites were planned over the weekend in different parts of the United States to observe the ninth anniversary of President John F. Kennedy's assassination.

Kissinger Sees Suharto On Vietnam Truce Plan

PARIS (CP-AP) — Henry Kissinger resumed his Vietnam peace talks with Hanoi's negotiators today after an overnight trip to Brussels and an hour-long talk with President Suharto of Indonesia.

U.S. President Nixon's security adviser and the North Vietnamese politburo member, Le Duc Tho, went into the third meeting of their secret peace talks.

They met in the same suburban villa, the property of the French Communist party, where they conferred for 5½ hours Monday and 4¼ hours Tuesday.

Indonesia is one of four countries that have been asked to supervise the ceasefire Kissinger and Tho are trying to work out. Presumably the U.S. presidential adviser went to Brussels to discuss this with Suharto, who is on a tour of European capitals.

Kissinger flew to Brussels Tuesday night after his second meeting with Tho. He returned to Paris in mid-morning.

Kissinger and Tho met for more than four hours Tuesday at a suburban villa owned by the French Communist party. As usual there was no concrete information on their discussions.

Second Tri-level Conference Planned

'We've Come Out on Top' Says Delighted Belleville Mayor

TORONTO (CP) Special — We've come out on top" said Belleville Mayor J. R. Scott following the conclusion of the two-day tri-level conference in Toronto Tuesday.

Mayor Scott told the Toronto Bureau of The Belleville Intelligencer the municipalities in their presentations did better than anyone expected because they did their homework.

A second tri-level conference will be held before the end of 1973 following a compromise agreement reached Tuesday afternoon. The solution was worked out by conference chairman Senator Carl Goldenberg of Montreal, a well-known labor conciliator.

The agreement also provides for tri-level consultations on a regional level. These discussions would deal with urban problems in a specific province or group of provinces.

The decisions were termed "historic" by Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford, Fraser Mooney, Nova Scotia minister of municipal affairs, and Mayor D. G. Newman of Whitby, Ont. They were chairmen of the federal, provincial and municipal delegations respectively.

The municipal and federal delegations appeared to give the least ground in the two-day conference. The provincial group, though not united, seemed cool to further tri-level talks as the conference opened.

While the general provincial brief did not close the door to further tri-level conferences, it suggested municipal problems could best be handled by the annual conference of provincial municipal affairs ministers.

Former Halifax mayor Allan O'Brien, who was a consultant to the Maritime governments at the conference, said the municipalities were for the first time allowed to speak as coalition independent of the provinces.

Mr. O'Brien, now a political science professor at the University of Western Ontario at London, said the municipalities had to take this separate national stand before a discussion could begin on redistribution of financial resources.

Mayor Newman said he wants municipal financial problems to be discussed at the next conference. But Mr. Basford and Mr. Mooney refused to commit the federal and provincial delegations to discussing finances at the next meeting.

The municipal delegation submitted a brief to the conference demanding a careful examination of municipal finances at another tri-level meeting.

The relief said the municipal tax field, based mainly on property tax, is growing more slowly than the income tax area which belongs to the federal and provincial governments.

But municipal responsibilities are increasing. Some needs could not be met because of lack of funds.

The agenda for the next meeting has not yet been decided.

The conference appeared to run into a roadblock following a speech by Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton Tuesday morning.

Mr. MacNaughton threw cold water on the federal and municipal requests for permanent machinery for consultation. But he did not rule out another tri-level meeting.

Mr. Basford helped smooth the way to the compromise by slightly modifying the federal position just after Mr. MacNaughton spoke. He played down the request for a continuing secretariat.

"We wish as a federal government to suggest those who wish to see a periodic and informal consultation on urban affairs on a national basis," he said.

"We agree that the structure should not be a formal structure."

The conference, however, agreed to provide staff from the three levels of government to help organize the next meeting.

Morch Requests Pedestrian Walk

Provision of a pedestrian walk over the Canadian Pacific tracks should be a city requirement for any agreement with the railway for the closing of the Mary Street level crossing.

This was stressed at Monday's meeting of the city traffic and light committee by Ian Morch of Morch Manufacturing Ltd., who said there was considerable summertime traffic over the tracks by persons walking to the down town area.

Mr. Morch attended the traffic committee meeting to discuss a proposed roadway giving access to his plant on Water Street, should the city agree to closing Mary Street.

Currently there is a narrow private road owned by Morch Manufacturing leading west from the Morch plant to the former Bay Bridge Road, but as a private road the city would be unable to do construction to bring it up to standard as a public roadway or provide maintenance.

Separate Board to Decide On In-school Promotions

Commercial promotions will be permitted in separate schools in Hastings - Prince Edward only with approval of the board.

Internal sales and collection of money for charity will be allowed only if Superintendent E. J. Neville gives his permission.

The decision to control fund raising activities in the schools was made last night at the separate school's regular meeting.

Mr. Neville gave several reasons for his opposition to money - making drives in the schools.

They are unnecessary, they disrupt the school, they invite vandalism because money is on hand at the school, they are a financial burden on parents.

Most important of all is their discrimination against the less affluent child.

It's sorry about the harm to the child who hasn't got the money," said Mr. Neville.

In very few cases is the fund drive necessary, he said. Schools have petty cash and excursion funds to handle most needs.

"I would approve of a project in which the child can give something of himself for others," he said.

The Hallowe'en UNICEF drive is one such project, along with campaigns for music and the Red Cross, he indicated. They have already received board approval.

Trustee John Granville, a teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, said he sees no harm in funds turned in by fund drives who had been refused.

Trenton Readies For Vietnam Lift

TRENTON (Staff) — A small number of CFB Trenton personnel — less than 25 men — are being put on a special r immunization program in case Canada decides to supply peace supervision in Vietnam.

Meanwhile, Air Transport Command planners are refining standard contingency plans for Southeast Asia operations, in case special airlift and support services are needed.

"While we have standard plans, variables have to be considered," one source here said today.

A total of 200 officers and 65 non-commissioned officers from across the country are being readied for Vietnam service in a peace observer role. The NDHQ in Ottawa spokesman said, would serve as an administrative support staff.

Although many CFB Trenton personnel keep up to date on immunization against various tropical diseases, this inoculation program for the troops being readied for Vietnam is being supplemented by shots for such other maladies as infectious hepatitis and plague. Immunization for these is also on the usual "needle parade list".

Additionally, booster shots are being administered for smallpox, typhus, yellow fever and typhoid and a tuberculosis screening program is being conducted.

As far as flight operations are concerned, Air Transport Command squadrons at Trenton are familiar with Southeast Asian service. There are at least six resupply and training flights annually from the local base that pass through Saigon.

Sign Damage Decreases

PICTON (Staff) — Hallowe'en vandals tampered with a total of 110 Prince Edward County road signs this year and several charges have been laid.

Russell Thompson, reeve of Hallowburgh and chairman of the road committee, told a full afternoon county council here the sirens in question have been re-erected and replaced.

County engineer Donald Cole said he thought vandalism was reduced this year and requested costs for damages were cut by approximately $700 to $300.

Hillcrest Hears Council Hopefuls

By HARRY MULHALL

In a common face-off, veteran and fledgling politicans made individual plays for a single goal last night: A Belleville city council seat.

But the 18 candidates bidding for 10 council posts must wait until Dec. 4 — voting day — to discover how they succeeded before Hillcrest electors in the first round of pre-election public confrontations.

The Hillcrest meeting lasted more than two hours, as the candidates talked policies, answered questions — and were given some blunt talk in exchange.

Because of its locale, its organization by Hillcrest Ratepayers' Association, much of the session prompted attention to specific Hillcrest problems — notably lack of sanitary sewers in the city's northeast suburb.

And although most candidates agreed on the need for such installations — and incumbent councillors explained sewer projects were in the offing — the electorcrs were pointedly told Hillcrest residents weren't totally happy with city hall's attention to their concerns.

Gordon Harris, chair man of the meeting, bluntly told the candidates that Hillcrest householders "want a little shake for their tax dollar compared to what they're getting."

Such "vital facilities" as sewers should be provided before city water services are extended to neighboring Thurlow township — approval of which was announced last week.

Before the last city election, the big Hillcrest issue was water supply.

"This election it's sewers," said Mr. Harris. "It appears the only time Hillcrest gets anything is when there's an election coming up."

The platform of candidates, on their first public policy-airing together, ventured into broader areas.

Condensed, this is how the candidates' comments came out:

ALD. BEN CORKE — City council needs a "reasonable mix" of incumbents, from experienced representatives to people with "new thrusts," aware of the future.

The city now is "very well managed", evidence of which is the high respect given it in major financial circles which handle city bond issues.

ROGER PORTER — Land use plan is needed, also comparative study to see how much is spent on city road programs against communities of similar size. Better roads are needed, and improvements to make the downtown core "clean and viable".

VERA L. HERMBACH — Rezoning has caused consternation among citizens. Parks Board needs more money, more support. Once built over potential parkland is gone forever.

TED KELLY — More recreation facilities needed as well as better services for handicapped, education tax concessions for pensioners. More industries, improved business districts would bring in more taxes. Tree-planting program proposed to replace city's many dead elms.

ALD. ARTHUR KEEGAN — Traffic problems change daily in the city. Seeking release of prime land on city's south shore front by finding alternative railroad route to present CP Rail. Housing unit construction is past five years as chairman of housing equals $22,400,000.

ALEX MANJURIS —Pledged to institute an "open-door policy" to increase citizen involvement in local government. Such stepped-up contact would make for clearer representation on council.

STU MEEKS — Major areas of concern include: (1) Harbor, which must be protected as natural beauty source from dumping and silting; (3) Downtown, which needs closer co-operation between businessmen, parking and city hall authorities to community's benefit.

ALD. ARNOLD ORR — Council needs presence of experienced members as well as newcomers to ensure proper functioning of city business. Proud of city's accomplishments in recent years — all-out though much to be done and city government a continuing task.

JOSEPH RAYCROFT — Spending on parks and recreation, has hit limit for time being. While not opposed to such projects, funds should be used on other necessary civic programs, including roads.

ALD. JEAN SMITH —First campaigned on political platform and still holds protection of natural resources a prime concern.

DR. JOHN STOCK — New access to Hillcrest needed, as well as sewer system. City must realine it has to get away from "archaic" sanitary system now in the area.

RICHARD WILLIAMS — Inadequate housing needs "intelligent, dedicated look" at alternatives. Must face facts of growth and plan so can control future growth required. Sense of community must be reinstilled in city area and wards system of electing council by areas is one method.

ALBERT LENTINI —More attention needed by service expansion, offering encouragement to younger people to stay in city. It's unfortunate that natives of Belleville have to move . . . because of lack of employment". Housing standards needed; in some areas housing conditions "deplorable".

JOE COX — Belleville now looking forward to a time of "prosperity and growth never seen in the past." Believes experience in community and business groups would be asset as city hall representative.

ALD. PAUL RUSSELL — Prime need is serviced, industrial land and would make this a top priority. Much of city's parkland acquired in cooperation with other agencies, thus greatly reducing costs.

ALD. JACK IRELAND — "Tremendous" expansion in city in recent years and as siderable increase". At the same time tax rate has levelled off.

GEORGE EGGOURAS — Belleville has been "dragging its feet" on official plan; would like to see plan immediately in effect to secure residential areas, Street and sidewalk program needed as well as modernization of the downtown area.

GEORGE MURRAY—"Absurd" landsplit zoning permitting only outsize lots, rules against proper expansion in Hillcrest. Would like to see stiffer building penalties. Placing cost of sewer hookups on general levy should be considered.

Steer Shot, Help Available

PICTON (Staff) — Sophiasburgh reeve George Foster last night introduced "critter" compensation in county council discussions when he mentioned a yearling steer bagged by a hunter in his township.

Reeve Foster said he did not know if the kill was accidental or intentional. Investigation showed the owner is eligible for "some assistance" toward the cost of his animal.

He informed council farmers who lose critters in this manner must contact Larry Matheson, agricultural representative for the Ontario department of agriculture and food in Prince Edward, and a veterinarian.

The reeve said he felt the public should be alerted concerning critter compensation, since many may be unaware that some reimbursement may be available.

Developers Taking Over?

Mayoralty campaigner Robin Jeffrey believes developers are "taking over" the city of Belleville.

And city council candidate Richard Williams fears low-housing projects can deteriorate into slums.

The reactions were prompted as city election candidates faced voters at Hillcrest Community Centre last night.

The responses were sparked by a question from William Hockley, prolific writer of newspaper letters on civic issues.

Mr. Hockley said there seems an "indecent haste" at city hall to "ram through zoning, favoring developers over peoples' wishes".

He asked if a trend hadn't evolved in the past five years with developers "taking over development at this city".

Respondent Alderman Jeffrey: "I think I can say definitely the developers are taking over the city of Belleville."

Mr. Williams, also replying to a question from Mr. Hockley, said townhousing as an alternative to highrises have displaced little imagination; and could become slum areas in five or ten years.

Toronto bears evidence of what can happen to such developments, some of which since construction in the 1960s have "managed to degenerate quite pleasantly. . .

"I don't think we're relying on housing alternatives as much as we could," he said.

Mayoralty Candidates Agree on Major Issues

Pending provincial legislation should guard against future conflict of interest disputes in local government, both camps in Belleville's mayoralty campaign reflected last night.

The issue —briefly raised at the first public quizzing of city election candidates — was an obvious echo of controversial allegations over land-holdings levelled against Mayor Russell Scott in city council earlier this year.

The mayor, attending this week's tri-level government conference in Toronto, was not present as the query was posed at a Hillcrest Ratepayers' Association meeting.

But, as his spokesman, his daughter, Mrs. Jane Marcotte, said proposed Ontario government legislation involving such issues would also apply to municipalities.

Her father's opponent, Alderman Robin Jeffrey agreed.

The new law was up for first reading by the legislature and included sections "where you must declare your land interest, your land holdings."

"You think this will eliminate the problem?" pressed the youthful spectator who raised the question about public disclosure of personal interests.

"I think the point . . . Is that anyone who has land holdings that can be used for development must not vote on that issue," replied Ald. Jeffrey. "I think that's where the whole question of conflict of interest is — or the questions that have arisen in the last months since April (in council)! That you must declare your interest in any motion or anything that happens that affects that property."

Both mayoralty campaigners found common ground on several objections in opening messages aimed at Hillcrest voters.

A major issue in the northeast suburb to emerge at last night's meeting is sanitary sewer installations.

In a message read by Mrs. Marcotte, Mayor Scott noted a bylaw calling for five sewer construction starts on Hillcrest streets will be presented at the next council meeting. Other projects quoted by the mayor were construction of a grade separation replacing the present Camilton Road CN railroad level crossing, senior government assistance for the planned Yardmen's Benefit Fund sports complex; a flood control dam on the nearby Moira River and extension of College St. into Thurlow township to improve neighborhood traffic conditions.

Ald. Jeffrey noted the city has laid aside $100,000 annually for the next four years to begin sewer construction. Residents' payments worked out over 15 years "should not measurably add" to present taxes. If elected she would leave "no stone unturned" to ensure the sewer program will finish "on time and within the cost estimated . . . She also would give higher priority to construction of the Camilton Road railroad overpass.

PTAs Dead -Trustee

"Parent - Teacher Associations have gone down the drain — they are becoming extinct, and rightly so, because they've lost their goals."

The judgment was delivered by Zdenk Kvarda, separate school trustee, at last night's meeting of the Hastings - Prince Edward board.

"Parents want information on what's going on in the schools, what the programs are and how they are run," Mr. Kvarda said. "If not, sooner or later this is going to be a bad reaction."

Mr. Kvarda asked the board to come up with a policy or a program designed to reach parents and ratepayers.

Superintendent E. J. Neville said administration had been pushing "on a soft sell basis" a campaign to bring school principals closer to parents.

Volunteer aides in the schools have been "a great help" in involving parents and the community with the schools, he said.

Technological Gaps

Man has found the means of journeying safely to the moon and back, but he has not fully mastered his own environment. He is capable of superb manifestations of human accomplishment, such as Expo 67 here in Canada and the recent Olympics in Munich (marred though they were by Arab terrorism), but he has not fully solved the problem of over-population, hunger and urban blight.

There is too one other monumental problem that unhappily is so common, so part of everyday life that, while law enforcement people and defence forces do what they can to curb it, is taken very much for granted.

We refer to crime and to its political extension, terrorism. We refer also to the appalling efficacy of modern weapons of death, from the "Saturday night specials" that citizens carry in the United States to the Japanese-made rapid-fire weapon called the Armelite that has been used by guerrillas in Ulster. And not to mention a host of other death-dealing weapons against which there is no fullproof protection.

Isn't it strange, after all this time, after so many technical accomplishments, that there is no real answer to the faster-than-sound speeding bullet. Oh yes there are bullet-proof vests but in Ulster, for instance, they do not seem to be used all that much by the military. A soldier killed recently was said to have died of a chest wound. Even helmets seem to have been discarded there.

Consider the International Security Conference held in Washington in recent days. On display has been an astounding variety of crime prevention and detection devices. Protective devices also, but again nothing more elaborate apparently than a bullet-proof vest which Burlington Industrial Fabrics has available for only 85 Manufacturers however, may be thinking in terms of still other forms of protection. Said a Burlington official: "We have the vests; we have a bullet-proof attache case. One of these days we'll have bullet-proof pajama satin, in full color."

Then what about bullet-proof clothing for soldiers and policement? With so much violence and use of deadly weapons nearly it is time inventors got down to work on such materials. Maybe the armies of old had the right idea with their suits of armor. Could nothing of the kind be developed today, only lighter in weight and of course tough enough to withstand bullets and shrapnel. Some of our very strong modern materials used in a variety of industries might fill the bill. We believe it is time something is done to neutralize the ghastly carnage inflicted by even the simplest of pistols and automatic weapons.

Measure the Burlington Industrial Fabrics man, looking to future prospects for his firm's bullet-proof pajama satin, says: "If this creeping paranoia continues, there will be a market soon. And we'll get around to that."

At the same time, what about the responsibility of arms manufacturers? Must we have such zealous output — such a degree of overkill either for civilian or for military use?

Lively Princess

The Royal Family's golden - haired Princess Anne at 22 has a large slice of the get-up-and-go that characterizes her generation. And it has netted her two police checks for driving her sports car too fast on an expressway. In other words, in excess of 70 mph.

It is all rather embarrassing, and it will be more so if the police decide to prosecute as it's rumored they may. A far cry from the day a year ago or so ago in London when the princess bumped into a car ahead of her and the royal escort did all the talking with a rather irate driver.

All very much in contrast also with the quiet family atmosphere reflected by silver wedding anniversary pictures of the Queen and Prince Philip taking their ease at Balmoral with Anne, Prince Charles and the two younger offspring, Prince Andrew and Prince Edward. And even more in contrast with the picture of Charles in kilt and sporran playing in the Scottish countryside with his cousin, Lady Sarah Armstrong - Jones.

No expressways up there by Braemer and Ballater on the River Dee. Unless things have changed, that is, in the 20 years or so since we were there and with the castle and grounds empty, was permitted by the gateman to wander right up to Royalty's front door.

Thor Heyerdahl Warning Overshadows Talks

Dumping of Waste at Sea Theme of UK Conference

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst

One of the more essential international conventions held recently has concluded in London under the title "Convention on the Dumping of Wastes at Sea." Altogether 91 nations attended, including Canada of course, and 57 of these countries signed the convention's wide-ranging proposals to control ocean pollution before delegates left Britain this week.

There have been many important and essential international meetings in the last 18 months dealing for example, with environmental pollution, (at Stockholm last summer), on new North Atlantic air fare rates, on copper prices, sugar and oil production and export.

Coming up next year is the next major conference on the law of the sea held normally every five years. It is also important to Canada since our 1970 unilateral declarations of Arctic Sovereignty will be discussed in the light of earlier declarations of this kind from small powers.

The recent London convention to control ocean dumping came at a good time, both relative to next year's sea conference and the alarming spread of ocean pollutants.

Included among the pollutants discussed were oil and industrial chemicals, the major pollutants at the present time, mercury and its compounds, radioactive waste & peeling metals, and others.

Thus the international conference went a good deal further than the recent American legislation introduced by President Nixon's council on environmental quality which concerns itself primarily with controlling radio-active and biological wastes.

The political aspects which have dogged all conventions dealing with largely non-political matters like the environment, air fares but less so commodities, were fortunately sidetracked at this convention. This was because a fairly large group of countries decided to shelve their demands that the conference agree to a "pollution zone" ranging from 36 to 200 miles off their coasts.

Implicit in this of course, were the various unilateral declarations of territorial water limits made by such countries as Chile, Peru and Ghana. Such nations wisely decided to let that problem, largely political, less so environmental, be tabled for analysis at next year's international conference on the law of the sea.

In Canada, we need little coaxing to be reminded of the great hazards we face from ocean pollutants.

There are examples in abundance from all our three great sea frontiers—tankers polluting coastal waters in Nova Scotia and British Columbia, the heavy mercury poisoning of Lake Erie, the dire warnings of permanent ecological damage if a full super-tanker ever split open in our far north Arctic waters.

The grim report of Thor Heyerdahl from the mid - Atlantic, 1,500 miles out from both the coasts of North America and Western Europe, that the ocean around his raft was full of garbage and effluents from ocean shipping, will not be easily forgotten.

In the 1970s, international conferences will deal more and more with these basically non-political matters. Where the big foreign policy approaches are being absorbed for the most part in high-level committee between East and West, the increasingly tougher ones of survival in our planet must be thrashed out in their place at giant conferences.

The most serious case in point —where neither summitry nor conferences are fooling answers — is, as Dick Gilbert has observed already, in solving air piracy.

Bible Digest
by H. B. DEAN

"Therefore I say unto you, what things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye have them, and ye shall have them." — Mark 11:24

Here is an outlook sufficient to cover our greatest need, often claimed by the least of the children. "With God all things are possible."

"I hate to do this, but I've got a cigarette habit to support."

Diminishing Fish Supply Remains A Serious Problem

Kingston' Whig-Standard

Weekend Magazine recently reported another sad tale of resource depletion, referring to the diminishing supply of fish along Canada's Atlantic regions. The story is not a new one.

In 1931, a treaty had to be signed prohibiting the fishing of Pacific halibut because Canadian and American fleets had fished out the species to the point of extinction. Thirty years later, the species had all but restored itself when the Japanese and Russians arrived on the scene. In 10 years, their giant floating factories had reduced the halibut population by approximately 500 million pounds, once again to the point of extinction. Herring and salmon now fall into the same category.

Perhaps the greatest fear of the Canadian fishermen in the Maritimes, is the rapid disappearance of the Atlantic cod. From 1961 to 1965 the annual total catch of cod along Canada's east coast was about three billion pounds. Once again the Russians began their massive fishing effort and by 1969 they had pushed the annual yield to over four billion pounds — leave as much as Canada's total catch on both coasts.

Then the crash came, reducing the catch to cover two billion pounds by 1970. Theoretically this could mean the extinction of the cod by as early as 1973.

Another point of concern is pollution of the kind that closed the Placentia Bay fisheries in 1969, ruined the Nova Scotia shellfish industry and caused concentrations of toxic mercury in tuna.

The Canadian government can continue to impose and enforce anti-pollution laws on their inland waters, but not beyond their territorial limits.

The government could also provide greater subsidies for advanced research and technology to increase the Canadian catch to a level comparable with that of other nations. But this would just deplete the resource even faster. Newly-found wealth procured by such measures would be short-lived.

The fisheries issue puts the livelihood of thousands of Canadians at stake and places one of our richest resources in an ominous balance. The greed and near-sightedness of all nations must be checked immediately and it is up to the Canadian government to see that this is done — before it is too late.

McGovern's Radicalism Turned Americans Off

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: The re-election of Richard Nixon as president of the United States was a surprise to no one. The Republican landslide had been predicted several weeks in advance and observers never once doubted Mr. Nixon's victory. . . .

The voters' decision was more a vote against Mr. McGovern who has made several errors since being named head of the Democratic party, rather than a vote of confidence for Mr. Nixon.

In effect, the McGovern election campaign scared Americans. The changes he advocated, because they had a slight tendency towards the left, were regarded by most voters as too radical. Americans by temperament are, above all, centralists, but lean towards the right. They by no means want institutions to What in the world has happened to collumn sense? Has it become so common that it is outmoded? Or has our Board of Education taken complete leave of its senses?

Are we not left an age for in sex-ed? Teaching sex education to higher grades without the consent of the individual parents is uncalled for; it shows extremely bad taste and plain stupidity on the part of our so-called educators who are imparting temptations into the minds of our children to experiment in these areas before they would normally think of such things.

However, to even think of polluting young minds with carnal knowledge is encouraging immorality before they even learn to walk.

Do parents realize what brand of corruption is being taught in our schools, under the disguised name of "education"? Our youngsters are being taught that which brings forth death rather than life. Or do parents care? (This new morality is nothing more than the age-old "immorality.") It shows the true mental state of such advocates as would promote immorality in the schools and the weak nauseating, unconcerned attitude of parents who permit it to happen.

Commonwealth Citizens And Britain's Immigration Laws

Daily Express

Britain must inevitably give preference to nationals of other Market countries over those from the outside world, including the Commonwealth. Within those terms of reference however, there is no reason either to throw over entirely the principles which have governed immigration to this country in the past . . . One guiding light of Britain's policy should be a rough reciprocity of immigration policies. If system ensures that the Community should be liberal, for instance, in the number of Americans it will allow in (if they wish to come). For that reason no fun for long taken large numbers of Europeans. The same considerations applies to immigrants from, say, Australia and Canada. By the same token, countries which close their doors to Community nationals must not expect to export a lot of people to the new nine. The change is said in some ways, but Western Europe should eventually benefit from a common immigration policies towards the outside world, and within the Community itself.

Legislature to Have More Debate on Dentur Issue

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

Although this current wind-up session of the legislature for this year is expected to be short and generally not-too important, it should have its moments.

Its program will include a number of items left on the order paper from last spring along with whatever new business the government may bring in or that the opposition may force it to debate.

Of the hang-over legislation there should be a good bit of interest in Bills 203 and 204, sponsors known as the China Clapper bills.

They are the two measures which would legalize dental technicians or "denturists" and over which a very expensive battle has been waged all summer and fall by the dentists and the denturists.

It appears this may be one fight in which the referee, in this case Health Minister Dick Potter, may be the one to take the biggest clobbering.

Feelings are strong. It seems to be no matter what he does Potter, who has to steer the legislation and bring in any final amendments, probably will end up taking the wrong side. There doesn't seem much possibility or making either of them happy.

Politically the issue that will be watched for is the alleged deal where Falconi (Canada) Ltd., developers of a property with the Workmen's Compensation Board as prime tenant, obtained $50,000 for the PC kitty in the last provincial election.

The only problem still is precedent: one of how to get government against the wall for a debate on the question.

It isn't all that easy to get a fight going in a parliament, of course. There has to be the proper time and occasion.

One logical time to get at the government is the question period, and there probably will be a share of Fidinam questions. They probably will be easily handled by the government, however.

But one question which could give the Liberals and NDP a chance for full broadsides is the wind-up of the budget debate which still has to take place before prorogation.

This could have some fireworks.

As for the members, it appears they are in a talkative mood.

They, of course, are looking for a raise in their $18,000 pay cheques.

But at last word the Camp inquiry, which is studying the role of the legislature, had not made any reports.

And the government won't act until it has the backing of the inquiry.

Woman Director

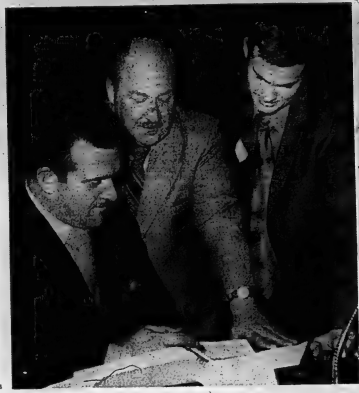
Fair Board Makes History

Members of the women's division of the Quinte Exhibition in the future are to be full partners in the operation of the fair, rather than being just "tolerated" as a committee.

This was formally approved at the annual meeting of the Belleville Agricultural Society held last night at city hall when a previous notice of motion was ratified calling for the president of the women's division to automatically be a director of the society.

The meeting was the first time that members of the women's division of the fair had attended the annual session.

Fair board 1st vice-president Phil Flagler, said that recognition of the women's division on the fair board directorate was a step in the right direction.



Douglas Rollins, local service station operator, was elected president of the society at the meeting.

Mr. Rollins steps up from the role of 2nd vice-president and succeeds John E. Bush, who had held the office for the past two years.

Vice-presidents of the fair board are Phil Flagler and Lyle Vanclief.

Directors named to the board were Robert Burkitt, Arthur Cierfield, Harold Caldwell, Phil Flagler, Ed Goodfellow, Hudson Ketcheson, Lyle Langabeer, Delbert McComb, Gordon McIlroy, Douglas Rollins, Bob Sills, Don Spencer, Clarke Steele, Lyle Vanclief, Ronald Hamilton, Warren Whitley, and Henry Vandenbosch.

Mrs. Evelyn Burkitt, as chairman of the women's division,will also be a board director.

Mistreatment Charged

Off-track Shop Manager Guilty

The former manager of an off-track betting shop on Front Street was found guilty Tuesday of keeping a common betting house.

John Alexander Ellacott, 21, was also convicted of unlawfully recording bets, engaging in bookmaking and engaging in the business or occupation of betting. He was remanded out of custody by Provincial Court Judge John C. Clendenning for sentencing Dec. 19.

Crown witness Russell Clarke, a constable in the Ontario Provincial Police's Anti-Gambling Branch, testified he found no tote tickets or other evidence to prove Ellacott was placing bets at the six Ontario race tracks to which his shop purportedly relayed messages. Clarke placed a bet with Ellacott on Sept. 18, two days before he led a raid that officially closed the shop.

Ellacott, who became manager after answering a newspaper ad, told the court he was following the instructions of Greenback Investment Ltd. the firm that owns off-track shops all over Ontario. The Loanlist College accounting graduate said he phoned his bets each day to the head office in Toronto where company officials took the responsibility of getting wagers to the pari-mutuel window.

Each conviction carries a maximum two-year sentence.

Public, Separate Pupils Share Gym

The concept of shared public and separate school facilities is an ideal given only lip service in most parts of Ontario.

But in Hastings county it is a reality — visible evidence of the good relationship each system congratulates the other and itself for fostering and preserving.

A case in point is the Batawa - Glen Miller and Sacred Heart arrangement.

Separate school trustees last night approved public school pupils from Batawa using Sacred Heart's gym between 11 and 12 a.m. every school day.

Batawa has no gym. Nearby Sacred Heart has. Batawa has some equipment — balance benches and a vaulting horse. Sacred Heart hasn't.

Principals of the two schools arrived at the logical conclusion. Put the equipment in the gym for use by the separate school pupils and let the gymless public school pupils use the room an hour a day.

The recommendation passed the regular Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board meeting with routine dispatch. There will be no rental fee.

Cablevue Adds ETV Channel

Cablevue Belleville Ltd., has added UHF Channel 21 from Rochester to its list of cable programs offered.

Programs from the Rochester educational TV station will be carried by Cablevue on the Channel 3 slot commencing Wednesday morning, Nov. 22.

Roy Taylor, Cablevue Sales Manager, said carrying of Rochester UHF programs would be conditional on CRTC approval and would bring the number of stations offered to 11.

Last Friday, Cablevue announced the addition of eight more FM stations.

Daytime programming on Channel 21 commences at 8:30 or 9 a.m. with regularly scheduled programs on the air each day until 3 p.m.

Then special programming takes over, featuring cultural and other special interest programs until 11 p.m.

A daily feature is a news broadcast at 4:30 in the evening which is directed to people with normal hearing and for those who are deaf.

On a split screen format, one newsman reads the news in the conventional way, while on the other side another man tells the story in sign language.

Lost Dogs At Shelter

Deer hunters whose hounds strayed in the Quinte bush during the shooting season just ended can now check for their pets at the Ontario Humane Society shelter near Belleville.

Yesterday, a truckload of hounds was transferred to OHS kennels west of the city from pounds spotted through the northern townships of Hastings County by the natural resources ministry.

They will be held one week at the shelter where owners may retrieve dogs for a $10 pound fee. After that time, the animals are put up for adoption.

In all, 17 hounds were transferred by ministry wildlife officers from pounds at Eldorado, Gilmour and L'Amable.

Coins Stolen

An assortment of Centennial coins was stolen from the home of Mrs. Walter McNulty, 545 Sidney St., some time last weekend.

Taken were Manitoba dollars and Canadian silver coins minted in 1967. Total value was $40.

Salesmen Get Pitch

National Life Underwriters Association president Hayden Smith, Tuesday in San Luis Gardens, sounded more like a football coach giving a pep talk than a life insurance agent, as he addressed the Bay of Quinte underwriters group.

Selling more insurance, bringing in more premiums were the aims as the national president challenged local underwriters to fight for a place on the "million dollar round table."

The round table is a symbol of recognition in the insurance sphere for selling excellence.

"Wearing the hat of the national president, I say a sleeping giant (life insurance) has come alive this year," he said.

The key to Mr. Smith's forecasts of more sales is the section of "Benson's White Paper on tax reform," outlining registered retirement savings.

A complicated tax shelter, it provides for a portion of a person's income to be spread over a number of years, easing the tax "bite".

Underwriters will have to jump quickly if they want to hitch onto Mr. Smith's sales wagon.

"We must constantly upgrade our services," he said. "We can't afford to be part-time people."

The result of the constant educational programs available to underwriters will be a dramatic decrease in the number of agents in any one community.

"By 1980, there will be about half the number of agents there are now," he said.

Agents will be more qualified and able to handle larger work loads through greater efficiency, he said. "Marginal agents will be gone, leaving only the energetic salesman."

Mr. Smith warned, "a chartered life underwriter's degree would be mandatory by 1980."

Only 20 of the 80 underwriters in the Bay of Quinte have attained this academic distinction.

Brandishing a copy of the tax reform paper throughout his speech, Mr. Smith declared, "a great responsibility has been placed on the underwriter's shoulders. If he doesn't learn his job he will be in equally great trouble."

Santa's Workshop in Progress!

Hastings Manor residents are busy preparing for Christmas in Santa's Workshop. Orders for Christmas presents have been taken and now each day, men and women seniors congregate in the Arts and Crafts Room to visit and hastily yet expertly make their Yuletide crafts. "When you're busy all your life, you need to keep busy," said Mrs. Donna Yates, Arts and Crafts Room Supervisor. "There's more than 50 active members who help make our Christmas toys and crafts, while seven remain in their rooms and work on projects, the others come out every day to make their crafts."

Auxiliary members volunteer their services each week in helping the residents. But when walking in the huge auditorium and Arts and Crafts Room, it's seen that each person there knows their craft and need little assistance.

Mrs. Merle Clark, 80 and Mrs. Grace Holmes, 76 are responsible for the charming Granny Dolls with or without the glasses. Petticoats, are even included on these masterpieces. Each morning and afternoon, these women are seen in the Arts and Crafts Room working away on their project. These Granny Dolls are originally designed and individually named from: Samantha, Caroline, to Mary Jane.

Mrs. Helen-Elliott, Mrs. Annie Searles and Mrs. Annie Steenburg had a chat while they were sewing on their Christmas quilt attached to the wooden frame. These popular and comfortably warm Yuletide gifts for anyone including children, made by three proud grandmothers. Bids are usually made before the quilts are finished, due to their increasing popularity. These women have quilted all their lives and now, as they agreed, is not the time to stop. Mrs. Anni Meeens, 84 does the finishing slop and binds the quilts by hand. This chore along with the other tasks involved in quilt - making requires a lot of patience and fine sewing.

"Experience is the best master," remarked Mrs. Meens.

Miss Sarah B. Wilson was busy in the corner making candy - cane horses in red and green felts. Each of these Christmas gifts require a lot of time and patience. Yet, each resident in the craft room kept pace with their craft.

The men had their own projects for the busy season ahead. Packages of Yuletide cards are made from Christmas cards and sold for those who want to save on these necessary purchases. James Cooper, 90 had a chance to read all the cards as he cut them down to miniature size. John McLeod assisted.

Walter Lindenfield, 90 joined the arts and crafts department and brought his trousers he's making with him. A tailor, by profession, Mr. Lindenfield uses bees-wax for his thread and hand-sews the entire garment. He proudly stated that he even sewed his wife's wedding coat and his own suit.

Frygecia Topping, assists the women in making their Granny Dolls. Mr. Topping unendingly cuts the nylons to shreds used for the dolls.

James Hodgkisson achieves a sometimes forgotten skill, while visiting with the men. Mr. Hodgkinson paints by numbers, a long process but much appreciated gift at Christmas.

Mrs. Edith Latham has contributed a special and rare item seen nowadays — a knitted bedspread. This is her fourth bedspread endeavored, and each time, Mrs. Latham has used a different pattern.

Mrs. Lillie Cooney, 77, also has a special artistic talent. Colorful wool dusters carefully made by knotting strands of wool on clothes' hangers which are then attached to a broomstick handle to create a tidy and perky little duster!

Miniature green and red felt owls for Christmas tree ornaments are made by Mrs. Bertha Courtney. Styrofoam balls, sequins and nylon add the originally designed character to these individual decorations.

Christmas wreaths were next made by Mrs. Beulah Wiggins, 72. The process here is similar to making the dusters. Cellophane strips are tied around a wire, which is bent in a circle and then spray-painted and completed by artificial laurels and greenery.

Mrs. Edna Ketcheson, 78 makes rugs from long strips of crinoline by braiding and knotting the strips which are sewn to make a long-lasting washable rug.

Mrs. Yates, who helps design the patterns for the residents' projects also chooses the materials for their crafts. Bright and original Christmas gifts and ornaments are produced each day during this social gathering when members enjoy tea, coffee and cookies and help make the Arts and Crafts Room a busier and livlier place at Hastings Manor.

Ann Landers
Eptileptic Fits Controlled

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the mother who was afraid to invite the epileptic cousin to her daughter's wedding "because the kid might have a fit," really made me boil. Ignorant people like her make it difficult for epileptics who are fighting to live a normal life.

Guy son is an epileptic. He is handsome, intelligent, beautifully mannered, kind and generous. He takes his medicine regularly and has never had a seizure in public. (Thank you for telling that idiot not to say "fit.") I've seen many so-called normal children (spoiled brats) lie down in the aisles of supermarkets and department stores, kick and scream and turn purple because they couldn't have their way. This is what I call a real fit.

In some states epileptics are denied employment and workmen's compensation. They can't drive cars, can't marry, can't get into certain schools or clubs and are considered poor risks, brain-damaged, weird and insane. The ignorance concerning this illness is appalling. Thank you for giving that woman a piece of your mind. And thanks, too, for letting the mother of an epileptic son let off some steam. — Grand Mal's Mom.

Dear Mom: Most epileptics are quite capable and have excellent work records. Discrimination against them is cruel and unjust. Your letter was one of hundreds that expressed similar sentiments. My thanks to you and to all who wrote.

Dear Ann Landers: I am not writing this to be mean or to pass judgment. I just think perhaps some of your readers might see themselves in this letter and join in to somewhere as a reminder.

I know many people, both men and women, intelligent, informed, well-educated and highly sophisticated, who continually interrupt someone who is speaking without so much as a word of apology. They break right in and take over. I have observed this rudeness repeatedly.

As for myself, I have gritted my teeth and grinned crazily as some long-winded bore droned on and on, but at least I felt I was being courteous. Am I pica-yunish and super-critical?—Guess Who Waits

Dear One: One of the hall-marks of a lively, quick-moving conversation is frequent interruptions. One provocative idea sparks another, and this is as it should be. I don't mind being interrupted and I'm sure I've done my share of interrupting others. Moreover, if you didn't cut in on some people, they'd hold the floor all night.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a widow 8 years old. My husband died five years ago. I live alone in this house where we sent 50 happy years. I am content, comfortable, and able to keep it up myself.

My family and friends tell me that while I am still in good health, I should sell my home and move to a small apartment. They say I shouldn't have the responsibility, that I ought to take things easier, travel and so on. I really don't know what to do, Ann. Perhaps you can guide me. — Undecided

Dear Undecided: Stay where you are. I've had dozens of letters from widows who blamed it too many well-meaning friends and relatives. They upprooted themselves, sold the family home, gave away precious belongings—and were miserable ever after.

Fast Descent

TORONTO (CP) — A hydro crew witnessed a speed record in pole descent here recently. It wasn't a veteran hydro lineman, but a black and white cat which had been trapped for two miserable days atop a pole. A nudge from a stick carried by one of the hydro workers was all it took for the cat to overcome its fear of height.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONNELL

Do creative people want to be 'pushed'?

YES. Indeed, many writers, artists, designers, etc., know that being "pushed" is the only way they can turn out anything creative. A writer, for instance, may complain about working under a deadline. But he secretly welcomes the fact that he is being pressured into writing. He knows he will have to buckle down and write without having time to worry about any fears he may have that no one will be interested in what he has to say.

Must a teener 'try' religion?

NOT in the sense that the adolescent has to sample each different religion before he can make up his mind. If, however, parents are anxious about the outlook their teenager will adopt toward religion, they should act as though they themselves are influenced by their own religion. Once a teenager sees that his parents' religion is meaningful to them, he might understand how religion could be meaningful to him.

Can love change a person's values?

NO. Love simply is not present when men or women continue a relationship that is completely alien to their nature or background. A woman, for instance, may think she loves a man who refuses to discuss the subject of marriage with her. She will keep seeing him and she will accept their "agreement" not to talk about that "taboo" topic. A woman in such a situation just doesn't want to believe the man does not love her.

Some Women Tops in Real Estate

TORONTO (CP) — Women now constitute almost one-third of the sales force in the Toronto real estate market, says the chairman-elect of the women's division of the Toronto Real Estate Board.

Dora Hamilton said in an interview that this proportion probably will increase as more and more women seem to be attracted to the real estate business.

Mrs. Hamilton recalled that 10 years ago only about one sales representative in seven was a woman.

But she cautioned women interested in a real estate career that there is hard work involved.

"Women shouldn't come into real estate expecting it to be a series of social events. They should be prepared to give their very best to the work."

Mrs. Hamilton, mother of one daughter, said: "Some of the top producers in real estate sales in Toronto are women."

Man's Best Friend

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Rose Marie Muraro, a Brazilian women's lib leader, told the movement's first national conference: "What the woman now needs is to show that she intends not to compete with the man but to be his companion in the daily struggle and that she wants to free herself from the oppression that has been imposed on her for a long time."

Successful Living
Folk Tales Suggested

By DORIS CLARK

Lately we have been getting a great many requests for ideas about books suitable for children's reading or for parents to read to their youngsters. Some ask for specific books and stories well loved by their own childhood years that they want to share with children and grandchildren. We have been able to steer many of them to possible sources of supply.

Now I have in front of me a brand new book written by three of Canada's noted writers called "The Lucky Coin (and Other Folk Tales Canadians Tell)." The authors write under the combination pen name of Leslie Quinton.

The stories are short, time-honored tales passed on from mother to child of many nations—Canadian Indians, Quebecois, and countries on other continents such as England, France, Italy, Spain, Germany and several others. Publishers: McLeland and Stewart.

Might be an idea for your Christmas list?

Dear Doris: I was going out with Bob until my old boy friend Sam started being nice to me and told me it was either him or Bob. So I chose Bob. I only liked him as a friend and did not want to go steady. He was upset about it.

Since then all Sam has said to me is "Hi!" I'm wondering if he does like me. I'm 15 and both boys are 17.

I had broken up with Sam because we went much too far but not all the way. It was bothering me so I told my parents and my father said if he wants to see me again he must come and see them first.

Sometimes I think I'm in love with Sam because I never stop thinking about him. Should I forget him? — Uncertain.

Dear Uncertain: Unless Sam is man enough to accept you.

Dear Doris: I have a secret fear of never having a good time or being by myself. Usually at dances I'm sitting while other girls are having fun going with different guys.

I am deaf in one ear and the doctors say nothing can be done. When I don't understand something or misunderstand it — "Gee, you're dumb!" is what I get. I am also very short for my age. — Fifteen.

Dear Fifteen: You'd never dream how many girls go through that "secret fear" time. Some of them get it off their chest to their mothers: you have written to me.

At 15, those physical things, like shortness, matter — far too much. And the fellow who calls you dumb is being rude. Yet there are times you could explain about the ear. You have a right to be yourself — and many a girl with a handicap grows a personality twice as interesting because she has had something to overcome.

It is not an unmixed blessing to be born beautiful and physically perfect. Your future — and a good one — is ahead of you. Start asserting yourself.

Artwork Shown At Library

The East Central Ontario Art Association's Annual Juried show, which opened in Lindsay last month, is now showing at the Belleville Library Gallery on Pinnacle Street for two weeks.

This year's show will be of special interest to Belleville viewers as two local artists won special awards. Dorothy Brown won the Rose Baker award for the most original work, and Lilian Peddle won the Scott's Decorating Center Award for creative excellence. Other local artists exhibiting in the name show are: Muriel Andrews, Georgina Graham, Helen Graham, Margaret Pedersen and Bea Williamson.

Artists Alex Millar and Oscar Schliesgeer selected the work for the show from 150 submitted entries.

The East Central Ontario Art Association consists of artists from Toronto to Ottawa, who meet several times each year for painting seminars and workshops. For the past 12 years, there has been an annual juried show which travels to centers throughout the area.

DONA PREWER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. G. Prewer, Belleville received a BA in English at the fall convocation for York University. Miss Prewer, a graduate of BCIVS, is attending McArthur College Faculty of Education, Queen's University, Kingston.

Millhaven Prisoner Sees Staff Struggle

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A prisoner at nearby Millhaven institution said Tuesday that prisoners there are being harassed by prison staff who themselves are vying for power at the maximum-security penitentiary.

William Ronald Yardley, 24, said in a memorandum to his lawyer that some prisoners have been beaten by prison guards who do not accept the prison reform program instituted by Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer.

Yardley said that because of the struggle for power by prison staff who reject the reforms and those who are trying to make them work, Millhaven has gone full cycle, and treatment of prisoners is the same, if not worse, than it was 50 years ago."

Prison director Nicholas Cabraa refused to comment on the charges until he has studied the case.

The memorandum was released by Kingston lawyer Kay Cartwright, who is representing Yardley on charges of being unlawfully at large following the escape of 14 prisoners from Millhaven last July.

Miss Cartwright said she has sent copies of the memorandum to Mr. Goyer and Flora MacDonald, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Kingston and the Islands.

Query Pyramid Sales

CALGARY (CP) — Pyramid sales promotions prompted the largest number of inquiries to the Calgary Better Business Bureau between March 31, 1971, and April 1, 1972. In a report to the bureau's annual meeting, manager Dave Oakes said pyramid selling was the subject of at least 800 questions out of 17,455.

Father and Son MPs

OTTAWA (CP)—For the sixth time since Confederation, a father and son have been sworn in to sit simultaneously as members of the House of Commons.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette and his son Gilles, members from the Quebec ridings of Temiscamingue and Charlevoix respectively, were sworn in Tuesday and will sit together in the next session beginning Jan. 4.

After four unsuccessful bids for a Commons seat, Gilles, 32, beat his Liberal opponent, Jean-Guy Alvie, by 168 votes in the Oct. 30 election.

The last time a father and son sat together in Parliament was after he 1957 general election when former Liberal prime minister Louis St. Laurent was joined by his son Jean-Paul who won in the former riding of Riviere du Loup-Temiscouata for the party led by his father.

The pattern at this ring dates to the Middle Ages where it was known as "the ceremonial ring."
The symbols used then are as appropriate today as they were in the year 1320.

Clasped Hands:
togetherness for a lifetime.
Scriptures:
wisdom of the ages for guidance.
Horn of Plenty:

Scientists Devise Simulated Meats

LONDON (Reuter) —Steak a la test tube, chicken a la laboratory—the science fiction menu is coming closer to reality.

With meat prices rising almost everywhere, scientists around the world are looking more and more towards simulated meats and other synthetic foodstuffs.

The idea is far from new. At least 25 firms in the United States are producing artificial meat, mostly from soybean flour, and Japan is reported to turn out some 24,000 tons a year.

In Britain, a major textile group has just begun marketing a synthetic meat made from bean protein which is spun like yarn. They say the fibrous texture makes it much more realistic and enjoyable than the American product.

But nobody expects a sudden revolution in eating habits, a quick culinary coup d'etat. For one thing, the artificial meat is often just as expensive or more so than the authentic product.

Courtaulds, the British textile firm, is so far offering its product only to the catering trade and stresses that it is an alternative, not a substitute, for the real thing.

One guest at a recent public tasting sampled a concoction called a kesp Comercio—artificial meat wrapped in bacon, butter-dipped and deep fried—and declared:

"I am completely unmoved by this alleged breakthrough."

He turned out to be an interpreter from the National Federation of Meat Traders.

In Australia, the opposition to artificial meat has reached Parliament, where Robert Bonnett urged import restrictions to protect the domestic market, warning that manufacturers of synthetic meat planned a major effort to capture a big bite of the world meat market.

Many scientists believe it is essential to develop new ways of producing protein-rich synthetic food in the face of expanding populations and shrinking arable land.

Another big British combine, Rank's Hovis-McDougall, has a £3m set up an experimental pilot plant which can produce up to two tons a week of a golden fungus" called A3-5.

The yellowish-brown powder can be used as a meat substitute or as a protein additive. The company says it contains twice as much high quality protein as good beef steak.

Artificial milk has been promised from fish pulp, cabbage leaves and peapods.

But perhaps the least memorable substitute was announced in 1948 by Dr. Robert Aries, a professor at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, New York. He said he could make good, cheap whisky from sawdust and oil refinery wastes. It has yet to hit the market.

New Facilities

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver General Hospital has a new $265,000 radiology centre which will improve the hospital's facilities for investigating brain and arterial diseases. The unit has its own staff of technicians, and is able to handle eight patients a day.

Salaried Positions For MPPs Upheld

TORONTO (CP) — Municipal politicians running for provincial office should "shave or get out of the bathroom," a Liberal MPP said Tuesday.

Philip Givens (Toronto-York Forest-Hill) told the legislature that a municipal politician such as an alderman who decides to contest a legislature seat should be forced to resign his municipal office on the day he is nominated for provincial election.

Dalton Bales said that would create unnecessary byelections and said municipal candidates should be encouraged to seek "higher" office if they so choose.

An amendment by Mr. Givens to force municipal candidates to resign on nomination day was defeated 63-38, with Liberals and New Democrats supporting the motion.

Michael Cassidy (NDP—Ottawa-Centre) moved an amendment which would prohibit MPPs from holding government-appointed salaried positions.

He noted that John Root (PC Wellington-Dufferin) recieved $15,000 a year on top of his $30,000 MPP's salary as vice-chairman of the water resources commission.

Mr. Cassidy also noted that James Allan (PC Haldimand-Norfolk) receives $5,000 from the Niagara parks commission and Clarke Rollins (PC Hastings) receives a like amount for serving on the St. Lawrence parks commission.

He described the practice of appointing Conservatives to extra-paying committees jobs as "pure and simple patronage."

"It is a reward . . . which is given to members of the party."

Mr. Cassidy's amendment to Mr. Bales's bill was defeated 52-38 with the opposition parties voting against the government.

School Boards Told To Make Joint Plans

TORONTO (CP) — The matter of further co-operation between public and seperate school boards in Ontario must be faced squarely, Thomas Wells, provincial minister of education, said Tuesday.

He told the legislature he was mailing memorandums to all school board heads which outlines a new procedure to ensure that all school boards serving a given geographic area will cooperate, consult and plan with each other on the matter of allocating school accommodation reasonably and efficiently.

"Before the ministry will give grant approval for the construction of any new pupil places, the boards concerned with the geographic area will have to show evidence of real need and co-operative planning," he said.

It means that representatives must make the "best possible projection of initial and/or future enrolments in that area," he said.

"From this information, they must then estimate the number who will be attending public schools and the number who will be attending separate schools, and relate this information to the available existing accommodation," Mr. Wells said.

Using "co-operation" sentimates, Mr. Wells said, the boards then will work out a proposal by which their school accommodation requirements can be met.

"This may take the form of sharing facilities, the sale of facilities, or new construction."

No Good Would Come Of Hydro Rate Cut

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said Tuesday "little purpose" would be served in rescinding the recent eight-per-cent rate increase granted Ontario Hydro.

Mr. Davis, replying in the Ontario legislature to Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, said the rate increase has been supported by the municipalities to whom Hydro sells power. "And, no one likes to see it, but I think that the economics of it are there for anyone to see."

MacDonald Opposes Prosecuting Papers

TORONTO (CP) — A rule which holds that a newspaper can be held in contempt of the Ontario legislature for publishing a secret report was termed "an ass" Tuesday by Donald MacDonald, former leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party.

Mr. MacDonald, member for Toronto York South, said the publication of secret reports shows the press is doing its job.

He was speaking during a debate in the legislature on a ruling several months ago by Speaker Allan Reuter concerning a report in The Globe and Mail based on a legislative committee investigation of the Workmen's Compensation Board.

Mr. Reuter said it was his personal opinion that, based on the existing rules of the house, the article could be construed as contempt.

He said that although he gave his opinion on the matter, there was no action taken by any members of the legislature.

Mr. MacDonald said the ruling should "point the finger at the person who first gives the information out and not to the newspaper."

"You (Reuter) make a laughing stock of us, you and everyone," said Mr. MacDonald. "The point is, the rule is an ass," he said.

Mr. Reuter admitted the fault may lie with the person who leaked the report.

He said the house rules were written years ago and he suggested they may have to be rewritten to reflect the present situation.

By O. D.

CONVENTION M.D.—Frank G. Slaughter

This ever popular author has written another novel of a medical profession the patient never sees — this time including murder. At the annual conference of the Central Medical Association a struggle develops between the old guard physicians and the new breed of young people who want to make their profession more responsive to the needs of the people. Things take a serious turn with the death of a prominent guest speaker.

PORT CAPTAIN — Patrick O'Brian

Jack Aubrey, dashing captain of His Majesty's armed brig "Sophie", comes ashore to take up the life of an English country gentleman. He falls in love. Then overwhelmed by romantic entanglements and financial disaster, he flees to France. When war breaks out again, Aubrey is given another command. A bitter rivalry develops and the plot builds to a climax as the squadron sails in pursuit of Spanish treasure ships.

BREED TO COME — Audre Norton

Audre Norton, mistress of the science fiction novel, in her latest story writes of Earth after men have been forced to flee their polluted planet. It is the animals who thrive, each generation more forceful and intelligent than the last. A band of cats, led by Gammage are seeking to discover the secrets left by man. Then a space ship lands bearing a crew of the feared human evil ones. Both animals and men are faced with soul-tearing decisions.

MARIANNE AND THE PRIVATEER — Juliette Benzoni

Marianne is the heroine of two previous romantic novels. In this third of the series, we find her fleeing from her second husband and returning to the glittering splendor of Napoleon's Paris. She falls deeply in love with American Jason Beaufort, only to realize that danger surrounds them. Can they fight those who would separate them and escape from her husband's vengeance?

I LOVE YOU, IRENE — MacKinlay Kantor

Mr. Kantor has been writing for 50 years about the American scene. Herewith he illuminates the great love which came into his own life when he was young. The devotion of Irene and MacKinlay Kantor has persisted through every form of stress, until they now stand at the pinnacle of success. This account of their first two years, years of poverty and struggle, culminates with the birth of a daughter and the publication of his first book.

COLD WEATHER STARTING

1 Shift selector in Neutral or "Park". Your car's starter will not operate in any other position.

3. Engage starter. Do to for 15 seconds If engine fails to start, repeat steps 2 and 3. Avoid cranking engine for extended periods: You may damage your starter motor.

STARTING A FLOODED ENGINE

If you should happen to flood your engine, depress the gas pedal to the floor and hold it there. Then engage starter. Hold accelerator down until engine starts and release it slowly Again do not pump the accelerator.

QUESTION: We are going to be driving in Europe and understand that distances and speeds are measured in kilometers and kilometers per hour What would be the equivalent in miles

ANSWER: One kilometer equals .62 miles. For short distances a ready rule is to multiply the number of kilometers by 6 and divide by 10.

Canada, like Britain, is moving towards adoption of the metric system. In the next decade our highways may all be marked in kilometers instead of miles and meters instead of feet. One wonders what will happen to English words like yardstick, milestone, inching.

How long is a meter It was originally fixed as the ten-millionth part of the distance from the equator to the North Pole, equal to 39.37 inches. But it is reported that an international conference of scientists has now decided on a more precise definition: they say that the exact length of a meter is 1,650,763.73 times the wavelength of the orange light of isotopic krypton of mass 86 at 760 mm. of pressure at 15 degrees centigrade We thought you might like to know.

QUESTION: What and where is the Yellowhead Route?

ANSWER: A century ago, when the Overlanders poured across the Canadian Prairies and into British Columbia bound for the gold fields of Barkerville, the term Yellowhead meant, simply, the lowest, easiest and best pass through the Rocky Mountains.

Today, the Yellowhead Route is a great new highway, spanning half a continent, and offering the motoring public an exciting alternate pathway between central Canada and the Pacific Coast.

More than 25 years ago, a dedicated band of Canadians living in communities strung across Western Canada near the 53th parallel, formed the Yellowhead Highway Association — with the avowed purpose of persuading the provincial governments of the four Western provinces to complete a highway route from tobe, up through Yellowhead Pass and across BC in a giant Portage La Prairie, Manitoba to both Kamloops and to Prince Rupert via Prince George.

Hamel Probes Climb In Rejected Ballots

OTTAWA (CP) — Th chief electoral office has started an investigation into what appears to have been an unusually large number of rejected ballots in the Oct. 30 federal election.

Jean-Marc Hamel says he is investigating reports of votes were wrongly marked. He will be able to do a thorough job when he can legally open ballot boxes after Dec. 5.

At present, the ballot boxes are in a restricted area of a warehouse here. The elections officer can get to them only by a court order.

Mr. Hamel said rejections must be considered on a constituency-by-constituency basis, not nationally.

While national figures may appear high, the proportion of rejections to the total vote in each constituency may be low, he said in an interview.

Canada Pension Plan Benefits, Levies Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Automatic increases in benefits and contributions under the Canada Pension Plan, to compensate for increases in the consumer price index, will go into effect Jan. 1, 1973.

The increases result from a two-per-cent rise in the pension index, reflecting price index rises within a legal maximum limit.

The main points of increase will cover benefits for orphans and children of disabled contributors—up to $28.15 from $27.50—and the maximum death benefit, which will be $560 in 1973 compared with $550 at present.

Contribution increases will boost the total employee and employer share of the pension plan costs to $80 a year from $68.20.

The income limit, above which no contributions are necessary, will rise to $6,600 a year from $5,500 a year.

Jurors Receive Less Than Minimum Wage

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — A grand jury report Monday indicated that wages for jury members in Ontario may be less than the minimum wage rate of $1.75 an hour.

Juries are now being paid $10 a day plus gasoline mileage.

Sheriff Larry Lamoureux said the report does not reveal all the facts, adding that often jury members are called in for an hour and the court is adjourned for the day. This would in effect be payment at a rate of $10 an hour, well above the minimum wage.

Some companies, such as International Nickel Co. of Canada and Falconbridge Mines make up the balance of pay that their employees lose by sitting on a jury.

Toast of Gas House League

Ted Rowland of Mead Johnson receives a toast from O'Keefe Breweries representative Pass Rutan on being named "Player of the Month in the Gas House Hockey League. The O'Keefe company will present a set of glassware to the top player each month, who is chosen by the 10 team representatives. Rowland proved his worth Monday night by helping Meads to a 12-3 win over Stewart Warner.

Jim's Still Unbeaten

Carl Boomhower and Brian Smith, scoring a goal apiece Tuesday, led victory over Gas House League's second place team, the Doctors. Boomhower and Smith each played 50 minutes of Tuesday's game according to coach Don Putnam. "We only had three men on the bench," said the coach.

Smith, who was hooked on a breakaway, netted the Pizzamen's final goal on a penalty shot. Bob Revoy tallied the other goal for Jim's.

The Doctor's lone goal came from Bryce Laughlin.

In the Rollins - Cassidy contest last night, Wayne Harris knocked in two goals to give Rollins a 2-2 tie with the Electrics.

Ron Knight and Bill Pycock scored for Cassidy.

Lions Midget Tournament Sunday

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

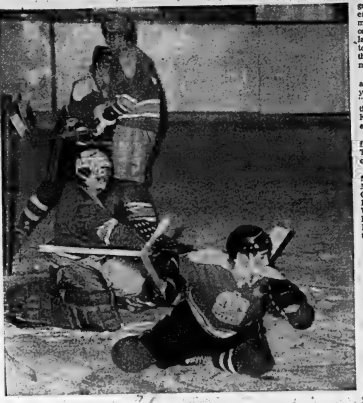
Despite the lack of a big top, the midgets will be in Belleville Sunday.

Belleville will be hosting eight midget hockey teams in the Belleville Lions Midget Hockey Tournament to be held Sunday at Memorial Arena and the Dick Ellis Rink.

The Blake Kerr Imperials will be representing Belleville against teams from Oshawa, Brooklin - Whitby, Kingston Bffalry - Kiwanis, Brockville, Burlington, Brampton, and Cornwall. Each team will play at least two games, either in the "A" or the "B" championships.

Floyd Bell, who is co-ordinating the tournament for the Lions Club, said that both "A" and "B" champions will receive trophies. All the boys on both championship teams will get individual trophies. During the games, the best players on the ice will get either gold, silver, or bronze medallions. 'We had to turn away four teams," said Bell, "and three other teams inquired about attending. I think it will be successful. We hope to have both arenas full." Robb Burrowes, coach of the Blake Kerr Imperial Midgets, said that 'the boys are finding their own style of play, and depending on how things go, we should hold our own."

According to Burrowes the "team to beat" in Belleville's first midget tournament will be Cornwall. Part of Cornwall's team won the "A" and the Grand Championship Tournament in Drummondville last February. They were also the Grand Finalists in the Richmond Bill Tourney in March.



Blake Kerr midgets have only played two of the teams in the tourney. They beat the Golden Triangle League's Brockville 9-2, but were defeated by Kingston 6-2.

This year's Imperial midgets are a young team. Winger Steve Kirby and defenceman Martin Thisted are the only members remaining from last year's team which went to the quarter finals, and won the Orillia Midget Tournament.

"At least 10 of our players are up from the bantams this year," said coach Burrowes, "but if they play hockey like they did tonight (5-1 win over Kingston Township) they'll be all right."

Blake Kerr went through a final pre-tournament tune-up Tuesday by scoring a 5-1 win over Kingston Township.

The Imperials' tallies came from Martin Thisted, Peter McBride, Eric Powell, Peter Crawford, and the final at 19:49 of the third from Gary Woodby, Kingston's single tally was scored by defenseman Eric Kay on a slap shot from the Imperial's blue line.

Imperials Rise to Victory

Blake Kerr Imperial's Wayne Clapp falls to his knees in front of Kingston Township's goalie Richard Snowdon after making a shot, while Kingston defenseman Eric Kay pushes Belleville's John Murphy out of the play.

The Imperials will be the home team in Sunday's first annual Lions Midget Tournament, which will see eight teams fighting for the Past Presidents and Complete Rental-All Trophies.

Towers Take Kingston Loss

Kingston CAL defeated the Belleville Towers Food City novice majors 7-4 in OMHA hockey action Tuesday night.

Belleville's tallies came from Charles Doran, Timmy Jacques, Tony Parks, and Greg Horwood.

Kingston goal getters were B. Ball with four goals, M. From with two, and K. Williams with the final.

Islanders Pluck Win From California Seals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Islanders don't win many National Hockey League games, but when they do they pick on clubs from California.

So far this year, the Islanders, playing their first season in the NHL, have won only three games—two against California Golden Seals and one against Los Angeles Kings.

Tuesday night, they beat the Seals 4-2. They also beat the Seals Nov. 1—but one was a little easier, 6-5—and they took Los Angeles 3-2 Oct. 12 for their win first NHL victory.

If they hope to move from their basement position in the Eastern Division, they'll have to beat someone else. With just seven points—the Islanders tied Chicago Black Hawks 4-4 on Oct. 26—they're eight points behind seventh-place Toronto Maple Leafs.

In other games Tuesday the results were: St. Louis 4 Vancouver 2 and New York Rangers 3 Atlanta 1.

The Seals' loss combined with St. Louis' win put last-place California three points behind the Blues in the Western Division.

Brian Spencer and Ed Westfall were the keys to New York's win. Spencer fired the winner on a pass from Westfall and then Westfall wrapped it up after a pass from Spencer. Both goals came in the final period.

The Islanders were full value for their win, outshooting California 33-23 as 11,027 fans watched in Uniondale, N.Y.

Meanwhile, in the other expansion city, Atlanta Flames disappointed their 11,566 fans with their loss to the Rangers, who moved to within three points of league-leading Montreal Canadiens in the East.

Jets Win Without Golden Jet's Services

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Despite being without its Jet, Winnipeg just enough power Tuesday night to leave Houston well behind in World Hockey Association play.

Bobby Hull, the Golden Jet of Winnipeg, was grounded by a court order issued Monday in Chicago which said he couldn't play because a $2.5 million bond hadn't been posted by the WHA as required by an earlier court ruling.

However, lawyers for Hull filed an appeal of the court order and asked the Illinois Appellate Court for an emergency hearing to have it dissolved.

Hull said Tuesday he hoped the situation would be cleared up by Thursday when the Jets again play in Houston. As it is, he's the highest-paid rookie player in the sports world. He jumped from Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League to the Jets for a contract calling for $2.75 million.

Meanwhile, his mates on the ice were more than the Aeros could handle as Winnipeg took a 4-2 decision and improved its hold on first-place in the Western Division.

In other games, Minnesota Fighting Saints defeated Alberta Oilers 4-3 in overtime; Ottawa Nationals downed Quebec Nordiques 4-2 and Cleveland Crusaders hammered Los Angeles Sharks 8-2.

GERRY CHEEVERS

In Houston, with 4,643 fans on hand, Chris Hebenton scored his 16th and 17th goals of the season, both unassisted, to pace the Jets' win.

Ab McDonald and Cal Swenson got the other Jet goals with Gord Labossiere scoring for Aeros' goals.

Cleveland put the two-month unbeaten streak behind former Boston Bruin Gerry Cheevers, who stopped 24 Los Angeles shots, 20 in the first period.

In the first, the Crusaders fired 12 shots at Russ Gillow in the Sharks' net and got two past him—Ron Buchanan's 12th of the season and the first of two by Dick Pumple. Cheevers handled the LA shots flawlessly.

Mike Byers closed the gap and Bill Young tied it up early in the third before 4,104 fans.

However, just 90 seconds later Buchanan got his second of the night. Then Pumple scored again and Gerry Pinder put the puck into an open net to cement the win, which gave the Crusaders a four-point bulge atop the Eastern standings.

Ali Floors Foster in 8th

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Muhammed Ali still says that Joe Frazier, the only man who has beaten him, is wearing a crown "too heavy for his brow."

But Bob Foster, who lost by eight-second count in the 8th Tuesday night, landed a left jab that cut the ex-champ early in the fight and later cut Ali with his remarks.

"I don't think he can punch like Frazier," said Foster, the reigning light heavy champion who was knocked out in the second round by Frazier in a 1970 heavyweight title match.

"I don't think he can beat him."

Ali sat quietly, holding an ice pack to the swelling left side of his face as he listened to Foster's comments during a post-fight conference. Then he repeated what he's been saying since losing a 15-round decision 20 months ago in the biggest money event in boxing history.

"I want Frazier, I don't want the division to die because the champion is killing it."

Frazier has fought just two unranked opponents, for a total of eight rounds, since beating Ali, who has gone into the ring nine times for a total of 45 rounds in that period.

Foster, who at 180 was out weighed by 41 pounds, gave Ali some of the roughest rounds in his 41-fight career despite being knocked down seven times. Foster went down the first time in the second round of the eighth round.

"He's a great, great fighter," said Ali. "I've got a cut and a bruise. That's something that Frazier nor anyone else could do to me.

The cut over his left eye required five stitches.

Ali was guaranteed $250,000 for the scheduled 12-rounder in the theatre showroom of the Sahara-Tahoe Hotel and Foster, whose ring record is now 49-6, received $125,000.

The 2 contender behind Ali, on Jan. 23.

"If he fights George Foreman and whupz him, that will make up for his idleness," Ali said. "He's fighting a good man—the best besides me."

Foster, 6-foot-4, looked like a basketball player in the ring with his heavier opponent.

Foster said he fast-at 1 and didn't know he was as good as he was.

Foster said he plans to defend his title next month, although no match is set yet, and Ali will soon take off on an exhibition tour that will include several stops in the Far East.

Government Offers Assistance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The federal government will do everything it can to prevent the Canadian Football League from expanding into the United States, Health Minister John Munro said Tuesday night.

Munro, minister responsible for sport in Canada, said the federal government has powers of sanction in the areas of immigration, broadcasting and taxation to prevent the CFL from moving into the U.S., or to prevent a National Football League franchise coming here.

Commenting on a meeting held earlier in the day with John Bassett, owner of Toronto Argonauts, and Jake Gaudaur, CFL commissioner, Munro said the government would "regard expansion of the NFL/CFL KINTO Canada as something to be deplored."

"We will do everything we can to prevent it happening. This is government policy. Having said that, we hope that we can work something out with the CFL rather than just invoke sanctions."

Following the hastily-called meeting with Munro, Bassett and Argonaut coach Leo Cahill, CFL meeting in Winnipeg last week recommending expansion to the U.S. will be withdrawn when the owners meet next week in Hamilton.

His statement was well received by other CFL spokesmen, particularly those in Western Canada, most of whom strongly opposed a move into the U.S.

Bassett said after the meeting he made it clear to Munro that "those of us who believe in expansion, our objectives are the same . . . a strong Canadian Football League."

Nevertheless, something had to be done because "two or three teams cannot carry the financial load indefinitely."

Bassett used the Argonauts to explain the financial woes of some CFL clubs: The Argos had doubled its league to the tune of $413,000 in equalization payments and television revenue over the last four seasons.

The proposal to expand into the U.S. had not been made on the assumption more money would be available, but to assure the financial viability of the league and "to keep it alive."

Sam Berger, owner of Montreal Alouettes, said he would support any motion which would keep the league Canada-wide.

When asked what he thought CFL expansion into the U.S. would be like in the past, if this can be done.

David Loeb, owner of Ottawa Rough Riders, said he was in favor of exploring the idea of expansion as long as the threat exists that the NFL might seek a franchise in Canada, or that a third league might appear to fragment Canadian teams.

If the CFL didn't go into the U.S. he was in favor of expanding in Canada.

The CFL clubs in Winnipeg, Saskatchewan, Edmonton and Calgary were pleased the U.S. expansion idea would be dropped.

"The future has never looked brighter for Canadian football," said Gordon Muirhead, president of Winnipeg Blue Bombers. "The government support for preventing expansion into the U.S. exceeded our (Western) Conference team owners') greatest expectations."

Saskatchewan Roughrider president Alan Sangster said he was glad Bassett "saw the light."

"It would have ruined Canadian football. . . . There is no doubt in my mind that expansion would have killed Canadian football."

Norm Kimball, general manager of Edmonton Eskimos, was surprised, but he thought it was "terrific."

Roy Graves, president of Calgary Stampeders, was surprised by Bassett's announcement that he'd withdraw the motion and he thought "there's something else in the wind."

He didn't know what the "something else" might be.

The Stamps would like to see the CFL continue widely Canadian and possibly expand within Canada in two or three years.

He said that besides Toronto and Vancouver, Calgary pays out money but this "is what it takes" to keep the league going.

BEST IN TROUBLE AGAIN

MANCHESTER, England (Reuter) — George Best, the wayward wizard of British soccer, was in trouble again Tuesday with his club, Manchester United, after missing training sessions. He is to be called before manager Frank O'Farrell to explain his absences. Best is currently serving a three-match World Cup suspension.

Ti-Cat Coach Stresses Basics

HAMILTON (CP) — Ignoring all the fancy terminology of football—withdoone, audibles, blitzes, red dogs, et al—Jerry Williams, coach of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, said Tuesday his team has to "block, tackle" if it's to beat Ottawa Rough Riders Sunday.

Hamilton has to overcome a 12-point deficit—the Ticats lost 19-7 in the first of the two-game, total-point Eastern Football Conference final last Sunday—to gain a berth in the Grey Cup.

All Williams would say about his club's chances was, "We have a chance."

He won't make any lineup changes for the game.

"There's no reason to change now. We won 10 games in a row and we beat them (Ottawa) three times. There's no reason to change."

Being behind after the first game of the conference finals doesn't worry the Ticats, but there's a difference this time in former years, Hamilton's muscle had been able to overcome the deficit. This time, the Ticats have their lead with a score of strength, dominating Hamilton physically.

Jon Hohman, a veteran of the Tiger-Cat offensive line which was criticized for its sicke performance in Saturday's game, said the Riders threw a few new, unexpected alignments at them.

"For instance they would come up in an alignment and then switch positions just before the ball went into play. We picked it up, but at first it was upsetting—just for a split second, but that's enough."

He credited Ottawa's defence for excellent timing.

They were so fast off the mark they were offside a couple of times and weren't called for it."

Tiger-Cat players, who practised on muddy natural turf in preparation for the opening game in Ottawa, didn't think it would delay the Rough Riders to work out on the artificial turf in Toronto, as they are contemplating.

"They're different kinds of turf—it's Astro turf here and Tartan in Toronto," said one player.

The Ticats feel their turf offers better traction.

CALGARY COACH QUITS

CALGARY (CP) — Ron Payne, offensive line coach for two years with Calgary Stampeders, has left the Western Football Conference club to seek a coaching job with a college or high school in the United States.

Payne played seven years for the Stampeders as a defensive end, defensive tackle, linebacker and tight end.

Mets Pitcher Top Rookie

NEW YORK (AP) — Jon Matlack, who mastered a major league curve ball just last winter and used it to win 15 games for the New York Mets in the 1972 baseball season, today was named the National League's Rookie of the Year.

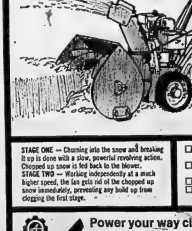
The 22-year-old southpaw was a runaway winner of the award, receiving 19 out of a possible 24 votes from the Baseball Writers Association of America committee.

His landslide win was the biggest since Kenny Hubbs of Chicago Cubs polled 18 after the 1962 season.

The writers distributed their remaining votes to catcher Dave Rader of San Francisco Giants, who received four ballots, and New York Met outfielder John Milner, who got one.

Matlack was a pleasant surprise for the Mets, who needed a second southpaw starter when Jerry Koosman came up with arm problems in spring training.

Matlack spent three seasons with the Mets' Triple-A farm team at Tidewater before coming up at the end of last season. He lost three games with the Mets in limited work, 1 h-3 h pitched winter h a 11 in Puerto Rico in an attempt to learn to control his curve.



Getting the opportunity to face major league hitting also improved his confidence. Matlack stepped right into the starting rotation and wound up the highest winner on the staff behind ace Tom Seaver.

Bombers Dominate Western All-Stars

MONTREAL (CP) — The running and blocking combination of Mack Herron and guard Bob Lueck, along with the passing and play-calling of quarterback Don Jonas, geared Winnipeg Blue Bombers to the top of Western Football Conference this season.

Herron's and Lueck's contribution to the Bombers' success was recognized in their unanimous selection by the Football Reporters of Canada to the WFC 1972 all-star team announced Tuesday by FRC president Pierre Proulx.

Jonas didn't get the nod of all the selectors, but he clearly had the edge over Edmonton Eskimos' Tom Wilkinson in the choice of who should lead the dream team as quarterback.

Herron, at fullback, and Lueck, at guard, each was named on all 10 ballots turned in by FRC members in Winnipeg, Regina, Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver.

Eleven Bombers — six on offence and five on defence — were picked for the 33-man team that includes three wide receivers, three guards, three defensive tackles and six defensive backs.

In addition to the 11 Winnipeg players, the selectors chose seven from Edmonton, four on defence; five from Calgary, three on defence; four from Saskatchewan, two on defence; and one B.C. Lion on offence.

Tied at wide receiver and guard on the offensive team and tackle and halfback on the defensive club accounted for the four additional players.

The team:

OFFENCE

Quarterback—Don Jonas, Winnipeg.

Running backs—Mack Herron, Winnipeg; George Reed, Saskatchewan; Tom Campana, Saskatchewan.;

Wide receivers —Jim Thorpe, Winnipeg; Jim Young, Rivière Columbia Lions; Gerry Shaw, Calgary Stampeders.

Tight end—Tyrone Walls, Edmonton.

Tackles—Bill Frank, Winnipeg; Charlie Turner, Edmonton.

Guards—Bob Lueck, Winnipeg; Granny Liggins, Calgary; Larry Watkins, Edmonton.

Centre—Bob Swift, Winnipeg.

DEFENCE

Tackles—John Helton, Calgary; John LaGrone, Edmonton; Joe Critchlow, Winnipeg.

Ends—John Baker, Saskatchewan; Jim Hoighton, Winnipeg.

Middle linebacker—Mickey Doyle, Winnipeg.

Outside linebackers—Dave Gamer, Edmonton; Ray Nettles, Edmonton.

Backs—Grady Cavness, Winnipeg; Bruce Bennett, Saskatchewan; Dick Dupuis, Edmonton; Gene Lalonde, Winnipeg; Frank Andruski, Calgary; Larry Robinson, Calgary.

Two players, Ugke and Tyrone Walls of Edmonton and defensive end John Baker of Saskatchewan Roughriders, were just one vote shy of being unanimous choices.

Herron, the WFC's nominee for the Canadian Football league's most valuable player award, made good use of Lueck's blocking in piling up 1,27 yards along the ground.

He ran for 11 touchdowns, added three more on passes from Jonas, 1971 winner of the CFL's MVP award, and ran 120 yards with a kick-off return for another.

Jonas had another impressive year. He compiled 353 of 547 passes, good for 3,583 yards and 27 touchdowns. On the debit side, however, he had 26 aerials intercepted.

The WFC all-stars included 15 repeaters from a year ago.

On offence were Jonas, Herron, Reed, Thorpe, Frank, Lueck and Swift. Making the defensive unit again were Helton, LaGrone, Baker, Gamer, Bennett, Dupuis, Andruski and Robinson.

DUNDAS ST. WEST NEXT DOOR TO TOWERS

McDougallville Is Slum in Bush

RED LAKE, Ont. (CP) — McDougallville is a rural slum of 12 shacks on the outskirts of this northwestern Ontario town which thrived when gold was king.

Most of the mines have closed but in McDougallville there's a torn plastic sheet covering a gaping window of one of the dilapidated homes.

Electric wires are dead; the only source of light is a candle or lamp.

Inside the drab 12-by-20-foot dwellings, a drain from the sink leads to a pail beneath the counter.

Roger Obonsawin, director of the Indian Friendship Centre, said two babies died in McDougallville last winter when stove fires in the uninsulated houses went out at night during sub-zero temperatures.

Indian and Metis leaders as well as several government departments say homes are needed but even in Red Lake itself, there is a shortage.

Linda Miller, co-ordinator of the centre's housing survey—carried out through a Local Initiatives Program grant—said two previous surveys by the Ontario Housing Corporation were inadequate.

She said the last OHC survey recommended 12 housing units which would not even begin to meet the housing shortage. The OHC is calling tenders for eight units in Red Lake.

The housing shortage arises from the decline of gold mining which makes financial institutions reluctant to grant long-term mortgage loans and from a lack of serviced lots for homes.

Toronto Skies Growing Busier

TORONTO (CP) — The already crowded skies above Metropolitan Toronto are becoming more congested with private light aircraft.

To cope with the problem, George Gledhill, an air traffic controller, has started a number of workshops across Ontario to educate the private pilot.

Mr. Gledhill has spent 15 "frustrating" years at Toronto International Airport watching the number of blips on his radar screen increase year after year.

He said in an interview that although there fortunately have been no mid-air collisions over Toronto, the chances that such a disaster might occur are growing with the crowded airways.

He said some of the pilots who crowd into the air space above Toronto don't know how to use the radio properly.

"There is no doubt that the rules for flying a Mickey Mouse aircraft in less crowded areas of Canada become absolutely deadly in Toronto," said Mr. Gledhill.

"Most pilots who get into trouble at Toronto do so only because of stupidity."

Toronto International Airport, the second busiest in Canada after Montreal, had 213,000 landings and take-offs last year. There were another 382,000 aircraft movements at Toronto Island, Hamilton and Buttonville airports.

To compound the problem, there are 63 airports, including farmers' fields, within a 50-mile radius of Toronto.

And there are 17,000 pilots in Ontario compared with 11,000 five years ago.

Michael Sifton, who runs Toronto Airways Ltd., a flying school, said he graduates about 18 new pilots a month. His course equips the pilot to handle Toronto-area flying.

So far, about 200 private pilots have taken the course organized and led by Mr. Gledhill at community colleges in Oakville and Belleville. Other courses are planned for Toronto, Welland and North Bay.

The course, held each Saturday for three weeks at a cost of $15, includes presentation of slides of aircraft movement on radar screens. A comprehensive rundown of the area control systems and listening to taped conversations between pilots and controllers.

A key feature is members' participation in simulated flights between two airports.

Curt Gerstenlaf of Durham, 28 miles south of Owen Sound, a pilot who took the course, said it should be a must for anyone flying in the Toronto area.

"I have so much more knowledge now of the problems which exist and what to look out for," he said.

In high-density areas like Toronto, commercial pilots operate under instrument flight rules and keep to strictly controlled traffic lanes.

Field Position Broke Bombers

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg quarterback Don Jonas, after a lacy of thought, says the Blue Bombers' failure to gain field position in the second half of Sunday's Western Football Conference sudden-death final was a major contribuion to the club's 27-24 loss to Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The West's all-star quarterback, writing in Tuesday's Tribune, said:

"There were pretty general reasons for our second-half breakdown, I thought. Most important, we were having trouble getting into field position, we kept giving up the ball in bad position, especially with those interceptions, and when we did that, we gave them the momentum they needed."

Jonas, named Tuesday as the WFC all-star quarterback for the second straight year, said the Bombers "perhaps scored too easily in that first half" when they built up a 21-7 margin, "or it could be we panicked when they started coming to us."

The Winnipeg quarterback credited Saskatchewan defensive back Lewis Cook with two big interceptions, but said "four interceptions shouldn't lose a game that you have under control for 2½ quarters."

"When I look back at those interceptions, I'd say the returns hurt us more than the actual interceptions. On the one Cook stole from (Paul) Markin, he ran it from around midfield back to our eight-and I had to make the tackle. When I have to make the tackle, we're in trouble.

"Then, on the one (Ted) Dushinski intercepted in the fourth quarter, he caught it on the 12, no problem, but he got it all the way back to the Saskatchewan 47 and that gave them the position they wanted. Over-all, the Riders returned the four interceptions off Jonas for 102 yards.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

THURSDAY, NOV. 23

Aries (March 21-April 19): When there's not so much pressure to get things done, you provoke rivalry or a difference of opinion among people. Must you? ?

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Use the chance to survey your resources, take an inventory of personal possessions. You have such planning to do.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You can't get at some people and their resources directly. Much of what must be done is one-time-only, so do your best.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Temptation is toward overdoing emotions as well as food and drink. You'll be proud of your self-restraint, moderation.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Where people want to talk money, put it off and let well enough alone. Decisions must be made promptly and lead directly in action.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Divergence from regular schedules requires extra attention; the earlier, the better. It's a productive day.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Enjoy what you have. Leave schemes aside for another time.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It's a pleasant day if you can go along with the general drift. Later in the day diversions, changes of plan are promised.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Gather your own set around you, share what you have with those you love. Count your blessings, they're many more than you'd realized.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): If you are open with familiar people you learn how to further group or family ventures in the future.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Nothing you do seems quite easy. Even being able to relax involves putting work and career out of mind.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Give thanks for what you have and your chances of holding onto the desirable while phasing out unproductive habits.

To Your Good Health

X-ray Important In Radicultis

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My mother suffers with a condition classified as "cervical radicultis" and she gets agonizing headaches. The right side of her head is constantly in pain and she can't use her right arm to lift anything without the side of her head being affected.

This started four years ago and she has been to many doctors without relief. No pills help her.

Please give me any information on the condition and any treatments that are possible. Her condition was ruled as hopeless, but she can't go on like this.

Radicultis is inflammation or irritation of the root of a nerve, at the point at which it emerges from the spine. The "cervical" places it in the neck portion of the spine.

While this is not, as a rule, an easy condition to treat, I would question whether it is "hopeless"—unless there are other circumstances which you have not told me about.

I also question why your mother went to "many doctors," although I know that such events occur. I recall a patient no longer perhaps than your mother, who went to—by count—20 doctors from coast to coast, and none advised an x-ray of the neck. Why? I don't exactly know. Perhaps some did, but perhaps she didn't listen. Or perhaps she was too insistent on an immediate diagnosis, thought that if she visited enough doctors, one of them would prescribe a pill that would cure her.

Anyway, in such cases, the x-ray is valuable beyond merit. It indicate where some pressure is irritating the nerves. It may be from arthritic changes, or from an old injury (such as from a "whiplash") or at times habitual poor posture may be at fault.

In the case of the patient I just mentioned, there was a fusion of two vertebrae in the neck. They were separated by surgery, and her pain vanished.

Lora was, I grant you, a rather unusual case, but it happened.

In many cases, improvement of posture is essential—yet the patient is puzzled as to why better posture can do anything to relieve pain in the head.

Sometimes neck traction, by means of a head halter, pulley and weight, can give considerable relief. Again, some degree of muscle spasm often—indeed, usually — exists, and medication is to be mention, along with application of hot or cold compresses.

Depending on the exact nature of the situation, treatment may vary, and a good many cases may require continuation of treatment before relief results. But again I say that I would be unwilling to say that the situation is "hopeless" until something more than pain medication has been tried.

The Art of Slam Bidding.

♣ A 10

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♥	Pass

Opening lead — queen of spades.

A reader asks what went wrong with the bidding when he got to six hearts and ended going down one when he had to lose a spade and a club. At the same time, our reader notes that six diamonds would have been a sound contract that could not be defeated.

Important principles of bidding are involved in this hand. To begin with, strong exception must be taken to South's four notrump bid.

Though Blackwood is an extremely valuable tool, especially for learning about aces, its ultimate purpose is defeated if the search for aces does not at the same time reveal whether or not a slam should be bid.

There is no good reason for South to assume that North's having two aces will produce a slam, nor that his having only one ace will preclude a slam.

An ace is a trick, and two aces are two tricks, but the absence of one or the presence of two does not by itself solve the question of whether a slam can be made.

The key questions here are whether a slam should be bid, and, if so, in which suit. Using Blackwood is a sadly misguided effort to solve these problems. Here is a reasonable sequence by which the diamond slam can be reached.

South	North
1 ♥	3 ♥
4 ♦	5 ♦

Four diamonds suggests a slam and North should respond encouragingly by cuebidding spades. South shows no ace of clubs in return and North should accept the slam invitation by bidding six diamonds, indicating that that suit is also playable.

It is surely no accident, from North's viewpoint, that South's natural heart length will provide a valuable club discard from dummy — if diamonds are trumps.

MPP Ejected Over Fidinam

TORONTO (CP) — Eddie Sargent (L—Grey-Bruce) was ousted from the legislature Tuesday when he attempted to introduce the Fidinam affair as a "matter of public importance."

Mr. Sargent had to be ordered six times to take his seat by Speaker Allan Rowter before he was "named" and escorted from the chamber by Maj. G. R. Soanes, sergeant-at-arms.

Later in an interview, Mr. Sargent was grim-faced when he explained he had deliberately provoked his expulsion to bring to the public's attention the "scandal" of a $50,000 election contribution Fidinam (Ontario) Ltd. made last year to the Ontario Progressive Conservative party.

The firm has received a $57 million contract to erect a building for the Workmen's Compensation Board.

Mr. Sargent said in the interim he had intended to demand that the government stop payment of a $15 million loan made to Fidinam and follow with a full judicial hearing.

The Liberal back-bencher also said he had intended to ask the Speaker to suspend the legislature's normal business and conduct a public debate on the loan and election donation.

Mr. Sargent is attempting to have the Fidinam project stopped by court order.

In a prepared five-page statement that followed Mr. Sargent's ouster, Premier William Davis reiterated that the Fidinam donation had no connection with "any past, present, or future involvement by the contributor with the government."

Mr. Davis was jeered by opposition benches when he declared that "the record of facts" reveals that the agreement to proceed with the Fidinam project for the WCB predated the time at which the contribution was reported to have been made."

He said cabinet approval was given June 29, 1971, the election contribution July 23 of the same year.

"In these circumstances it would not have been possible for the decisions of the board or of the cabinet to have been influenced by any prior knowledge of such a contribution."

Winter Works Plans to Be Outlined Soon

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government will disclose its plans concerning a winter works employment program by next week, Premier William Davis told the legislature Tuesday.

Mr. Davis said while he has not heard of the intentions of the federal government, he said he would hope there also will be a federal winter works program.

Loan Payments May Be Geared To Salaries

TORONTO (CP) — Jack McNie, provincial minister of colleges and universities, told about 500 protesting students Tuesday that future student loans may be repayable according to income rather than as a normal bank loan.

The students were addressed by Mr. McNie outside Queen's Park where they were demonstrating to protest fee increases and student grant reductions made last spring.

Mr. McNie said he hopes to amend the Ontario Student Awards Program by spring "to get loans repayable contingent to salary."

Statement Coming Today

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government will unveil a policy statement on urban transportation today, Premier William Davis said in the legislature Tuesday.

Community Services To Cut Off Aid to Y

Will Be Last Grant for 1973

By KENNETH SMITH, Staff Reporter

United Community Services announced today it is dropping its support of the Belleville Family YMCA because of "continuing inability of the Y to come to real grips with community needs"

While the YMCA will receive a grant for its 1973 operations from the 1972 United Appeal fund, assistance will end there. UCS will not support the Y from January 1, 1974.

A statement from Andrew Robb, the community services president, to Dr. Douglas Horne, president of Belleville Family YMCA, states that the Y's failure "to come to real grips with community needs within its scope" has brought the agency to a position where it "does not warrant continuing community support."

"Discussions by our two or three committees over the years have led to no apparent change by the Y in the direction it has been moving," adds Mr. Robb.

The YMCA executive met in special session last night to hear the Robb letter and draft a motion stating that the Y regrets the UCS decision and the fact it was, the Y contends, arrived at without prior consultation with the Y executive.

"Their decision was arbitrary," commented Y general secretary D. G. Diamantides.

With the letter, the Y executive were also sent the UCS press statement related to the United Community Services this morning.

The Y executive will meet in the next few days to draft its reply to charges made in the UCS statement. Mr. Diamantides indicated the formal Y response will be "a rebuttal, . . . (because) some of the statements (made by UCS) are not correct."

In its press release, United Community Services gives six reasons for dropping the Y from its list of member agencies. These are:

— That faced with expansion of recreation programs by the city and school boards and declining community interest in the Y, the agency has not measurably changed its emphasis.

— That the Belleville Family YMCA serves one residential area of the city but fails to attract substantial membership from other parts of the community. The Y has shown "no real drive to carry . . . programs to other areas in the community."

Ottawa Quiet Annoys Grits

OTTAWA (CP) — There seems to be a growing restlessness among some Liberal MPs with the low-key approach maintained by the Trudeau government since the Oct. 30 general election.

"I know that the prime minister is fully occupied with cabinet changes and his day-to-day problems," said one MP, "but as far as the public is concerned we've practically dropped out of sight."

There have been only two major government announcements since the election, one to change immigration regulations and the other to recall Parliament for Jan. 4. And many of the MPs critical of the low profile are also unhappy that Mr. Trudeau did not call Parliament for a December session.

"This is one time when we should be out there busting our backsides," said a veteran MP.

"Mr. Trudeau told the people that we will profit by our mistakes, but so far we haven't been doing anything for them to see."

Meanwhile, work is said to be proceeding on the throne speech for the opening of the new Parliament. With its minority position, the government is unwilling to develop a legislative package that will attract opposition support.

New Cabinet To Be Named Monday

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau will announce his new cabinet Monday.

He told reporters today, prior to a regular weekly cabinet meeting, that he has not yet completed the selection and "I am going to be working on it until Monday."

"I'll be announcing it on Monday."

No ministers or MPs have had advance notice of the cabinet changes, he said, and they would have a chance to meet with him during the next day or two.

Old Values Endorsed --Stanfield

EDMONTON (CP) — The electorate has endorsed Progressive Conservative economic and social policies, but, not as an expression of affection, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Wednesday.

"I think it is clever to the truth to say that many Canadians voted to reassert values in our traditional way of life which they felt were threatened and called into question," he told a luncheon meeting of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce.

"Many Canadians were concerned that the benefits of indulgence might become as significant as the rewards of industry that permissiveness might become more pervasive than self discipline; or that Canadians might come to be governed not through their political institutions but by an elite of task forces of technocrats."

He called the result of the Oct. 30 federal election a deliberate effort to conserve concepts and values which have served Canada.

Peace Talks In Fourth Day

PARIS (AP) — Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger and North Vietnam Le Duc Tho began their fourth straight day of secret peace bargaining today.

During the last three days their talks have become progressively shorter.

Tho left Wednesday's meeting with a grim expression. Kissinger appeared relaxed, however. He smiled and waved to reporters as he arrived and left the suburban villa where he and Tho have been negotiating since Monday.

Two Thugs Burn Four In Robbery

CHICAGO (AP) — Four persons are dead following a holdup at a phonograph record store in which two gunmen locked five robbery victims in a washroom and then apparently set the store ablaze with gasoline.

Two of the victims in the robbery-slaying and fire Wednesday were among the five persons locked in the washroom of the record shop. Two other badly burned bodies were found outside the washroom.

Sgt. Michael Maloney said the three survivors in the washroom all seriously injured told police they tried to break out when they smelled gasoline and minutes later were overcome after they smelled smoke.

Two of the victims were identified as Sister Willirose, 47, and Frank Mitchell, 19. The two other victims were burned too badly to be identified immediately.

The four persons killed were buried under debris as an explosion rocked the rear of the building. Cause of the blast was not known.

Small Systems Benefit Too

'Imaginative' Ontario to Spend $1.3 Billion on City Transit

HAMILTON (CP) — Ontario's decision to pump more than $1.3 billion into municipal transit systems over the next 10 years was described as an imaginative, far-reaching step Wednesday by presidents of the Canadian Transit Association (CTA).

"I think it is a very imaginative program—a recognition by the province that they are really concerned about public transit," said James Kearns of Toronto, here to attend the association's annual convention.

"Ontario is leading the way in recognizing thinking regarding urban transportation," said Mr. Kearns, who also is general manager of operations for the Toronto Transit Commission.

Increased provincial subsidies for the purchase of buses, trolley coaches and streetcars "will give a great lift to all aspects of (transit) systems in Ontario.

"With more modern equipment, they will be able to upgrade their whole system and make travelling more enjoyable," he said.

Several of the delegates attending the CTA's five-day conference were amazed at the announcement by Premier William Davis. The delegates represent 80 transit companies from coast to coast.

George Brady, general manager of the Ottawa Carleton Regional Transportation Commission, called the decision "a good breakthrough."

"We can organize things that before were utterly beyond reach. The whole urban transportation scene is beginning to pull together."

Aside from the increased subsidies for equipment, Ottawa, along with Toronto and Hamilton, was chosen for special subsidies for the development of new rapid transit systems.

"The thing that pleases me is that Premier Davis hasn't forgotten smaller transit systems," said Norman Grand-field, general manager of the Pranford Public Utilities Commission, which runs the city's transit system.

The new subsidies will help smaller systems to retire some of their old buses and replace them with new equipment, which in turn will help improve service, he added.

Good Plan Says Lewis

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Public transportation will announced Wednesday by Premier William Davis "sounds good," Stephen Lewis, Ontario leader of the New Democratic Party, said Wednesday.

"On the face of it, it sounds good," Mr. Lewis said in an interview before addressing students at the University of Western Ontario.

However, Mr. Lewis said he had not seen the proposals.

Mr. Davis said his government will pay 50 per cent of the cost of new equipment to upgrade transit systems or build new types of public transit.

Three Cities Get Top Transit Aid

TORONTO (CP) — The lion's share of the money committed by the Ontario government to help province's new transit plan will go to Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa.

That fact emerged Wednesday as Premier William Davis announced his government's intentions to try to get people out of cars and into public transportation such as the monorail-type system proposed for the Lake cities.

Mr. Davis said the 56.1 miles of the rapid transit system in Toronto would cost $735 million, an average cost of $13.1 million a mile.

In Hamilton, the cost would be $253 million, or $16.5 million a mile for the 17.3 miles projected while the Ottawa costs would total $150 million, or $17.1 million a mile, for the proposed 11.4 mile project.

The government would pick up $593 million of the $1.3 billion tab, leaving $300 to $400 million for the rest of the province over the next decade.

For smaller centres, Mr. Davis pointed to successful dial-a-bus experiments in suburban Toronto, Kingston and Stratford as possible trends to the future.

Labor Motion Endorsed

Heath Resoundingly Rebuked For Immigration Policies

LONDON (CP) — The government suffered a resounding parliamentary defeat over its controversial immigration policy Wednesday night and promised to amend it probably before Christmas. Since no motion of confidence was involved, Prime Minister Edward Heath's Conservatives remain in power.

By a vote of 275 to 230, the House of Commons approved a Labor-sponsored motion expressing disapproval of regulations proposed by the government to implement a 1971 act designed to tighten immigration laws.

The defeat by a margin of 35 votes was the worst for the government since it came to power in the June, 1970, general election. The Tories normally have a majority of 27. The pro-government Daily Telegraph described the defeat as "shattering" and the margin of the loss "astounding."

It was made possible by Tory back-benchers who revolted and either voted against the government or abstained. Their objection to the regulations controlling entry and settlement of immigrants was that they were being imposed without regard for the close links with Commonwealth countries such as Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

Prime Minister Heath, obviously shaken by the defeat, said new regulations will be brought before Parliament "in due course"—a period estimated within 40 days.

But the Conservative administration is not resigning, despite the Opposition roars of "Out! Out!" which followed the vote.

Opposition Leader Harold Wilson said: "I now ask the prime minister since this is a matter of major constitutional importance, a major defeat of the government—if he is not going to tender his resignations. Will he now inform the House what he intends to do?"

But Heath said that although the Commons had rejected the regulations, the government would still present alternative orders to replace them.

The new regulations come into force on Jan. 1, when Britain enters the European Common Market.

Exhibition Manager Says Programming Restricted

The Quinte Exhibition should pay more attention to programming for the young and leisure-time segment of the district population.

This is the feeling of Everett Gowsell, manager of the fair, who in his annual report to the board Tuesday night, said the 1972 event formed the largest segment of the area population but currently the midway is the only fair attraction catering to their needs.

Reviewing fair operations for the past season, Mr. Gowsell said that while the general assessment of this year's fair was "good" he said he could see deterioration in some areas.

He said that business generally was just too good for local merchants to go to the expense of setting up and manning exhibits in the commercial division.

As a result, all commercial exhibit space was not filled and Mr. Gowsell felt this trend would continue.

This, he said, suggested that the fair board should be thinking about using the second commercial building for other type of programming.

Mr. Gowsell noted that although the exhibition this year was shortened to four days and five nights, he felt this was still too long a period for exhibitors — especially those with cattle or other livestock — to remain at the fair.

Although a fairground might expect to be selective on his day of attendance and expect to see everything, Mr. Gowsell doubted if exhibitors would be attracted on that basis.

In his opinion, fairs of the future would have to be organized on the basis of "one day events" meaning that cattle or horse exhibitors show their breeds on a specific day and then take them home.

Further, in place of one fair during the year, it may be possible to have more than one event tied in with seasonal interests or conditions.

Referring to the fair board's plans to build a new women's division as being part of management, Mr. Gowsell said the move was long overdue.

He said the society would have to recognize the women members and afford them equal rights.

Looking to the future, Mr. Gowsell said he was concerned about the exhibition park. A roof was needed on the grandstand to successfully conduct events.

The board financial report showed 1972 receipts at $218,-[illegible] including $718,761 taken in from harness racing.

Expenditures totalled $700,-[illegible]08, including $703,108 paid out for racing, a total of $24,-700 for prizes and exhibit features, and $32,800 for maintenance and operating expenses.

Counting capital additions and bank loan reduction totalling $15,939, the net profit for the 11-month period was $27,-340, or 1.25 per cent of the total funds handled.

Harness race fans bet $355,-693 at the track while $462,-067 was returned to the public.

Retiring president John R. Bush said that the exhibition would require close attention in the future to maintain its level. Harness racing had been successful undertaking but the outgoing president warned that shifts there would be changing conditions to contend with, he felt racing was a worthwhile venture.

Mr. Bush referred to the reorganization done in 1970, stating that consolidating all divisions and giving them their rightful place with representation on the board of management was a step in the right direction.

Picketing Planned

Cement Workers Request Support

PICTON (Staff) — Stewart Norval, president of local 387 United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International Tuesday asked Prince Edward County councillors to join a busy trio of picketers in Queen's Park next week where the Sandbanks controversy will be protested.

Mr. Norval said he was seeking "moral and bodily support" and commented that union members will picket against the government's slow action in granting a quarry licence to the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. and "the Sandbanks situation."

Hallowell township in Prince Edward was designated under the Pits and Quarries Act last March and the cement plant now requires a licence to quarry at the Sandbanks. Although sand was stockpiled for operations this summer, it is now in short supply and the union fears job losses unless a licence is granted to the company soon.

Mr. Norval said the ban will be paid for by the union local and picketers will leave Belleville on Monday or Tuesday of next week.

Councillors did not state if they will support the union's latest move but did request Mr. Norval to confirm the date of the bus trip with the county clerk.

Two Arrested In Stolen Car

BRIGHTON (Staff) — Co operation between two local police departments Wednesday morning led to the arrest of two automobile youths driving a car stolen earlier that day.

Mrs. Shirley Potter of Brighton was parked at the Brighton Public School when a car backed into her vehicle, causing an estimated $500 damage. The car left the scene and she called Brighton OPP.

Constable Allan Tremeer was unable to stop the 1964 Chevelle and called for assistance from Trenton police.

Constable Harold Kaiser of Trenton apprehended the car on Highway 2 west of Trenton.

Gary Parsons, 17, driver of the car and passenger Larry Cloney, 16, both of Bowmanville, were charged by Brighton OPP with failing to remain at the scene of an accident. Liquor charges are laid by Trenton police and the pair was returned to Bowmanville to face charges earlier theft.

Whitefish Protected

The Lake Ontario shoreline of Prince Edward County is again under constant conservation surveillance.

For provincial government wildlife officers the watch is an annual affair — a week vigil by land, water and air.

Cause of the close watch is the lake's whitefish population, now in spawning season.

Whitefish is the last major commercial species surviving the lake's deterioration — speeded up over the years by pollutants. The southern Prince Edward shoreline is its biggest remaining spawning area. The ministry officials look to the day when fishing areas in the lake and the Bay of Quinte will see a numerical restoration of once-plentiful species.

In the meantime, whitefish protection is all important, say ministry officials.

Since patrols started this spawning season, no illegal netting has been spotted.

"Generally the fishermen are co-operative, since they realize it's in their own best interests to let these fish spawn successfully," says a wildlife deputy at the ministry's Napanee division offices, which administers the sanctuary. "If they fish illegally it can be a case of cutting off their nose to spite their face."

"But," he adds, "we're certainly prepared to enforce the law."

Homebuilders Not Developers Says President

A statement by Belleville mayoralty candidate Robin Jeffrey that developers were "taking over the city" has drawn resentment from local homebuilders.

Alderman Jeffrey made the remark while answering questions Tuesday night at a Hillcrest Ratepayers Association meeting.

Wednesday, Quinte Homebuilders president Mike De Mark issued a statement denying the remark, although leaving the source unnamed.

Mr. De Mark said Quinte Homebuilders "resent the question . . . which infers that developers are taking over the city."

Clarifying her comment to-day, Mrs. Jeffrey said she was not a reference to construction but to the city's "very weak zoning bylaws."

"The purpose of a developer is to purchase real estate and develop some to a marketable state. This is necessary to provide new homes to the citizens of Belleville," said Mr. De Mark, "but developers work under very strict control of subdivision agreements."

The largest single development in the city is the Ontario Housing project which provides homes geared to income, he said.

Homebuilders are not developers but rather builders who, with their subtrades, employ over 1,000 Bellevillians, stated Mr. De Mark.

"We ask these anti-developers, who would employ these people? . . . Who will provide the new homes to meet the needs and desires of the citizens of Belleville?"

Purpose of his statement, said the homebuilders' president, was to make "true facts" known to "obviously misinformed persons."

Ald. Jeffrey said today she was referring, to any type of construction whatever, particularly to the Ontario Housing Corporation which is providing needed homes for low rental groups and senior citizens.

"I was referring to the fact that we have very weak zoning bylaws and as a result home builders have a great advantage in constructing units indiscriminately in our city.

"Citizens who object in numbers to rezoning applications must be listened to," she said.

"We need development and we need developers. But, at the same time, the people of Belleville also need protection," said Ald. Jeffrey.

Church to Mark Anniversary

Rev. W. Clarke MacDonald, a man of ranking official of the United Church of Canada, will be the guest preacher for the 157th anniversary of Bridge Street United Church this Sunday.

Now deputy secretary of the board of the division of mission in Canada, Dr. MacDonald is a former secretary of the board of evangelism and social service. A native of Nova Scotia, he was minister of St. Luke's United Church in downtown Toronto for 16 years, where he initiated regular Sunday afternoon talks in Allen Gardens known as the St. Luke's Forum.

His services, which start at 11 a.m. will be What's Happening in the Church and why. There will be an opportunity for members of the congregation to prepare questions to Dr. MacDonald.

The anniversary service will be conducted by Bridge Street's minister, Rev. George M. Ward. The choir, under the direction of Robert Reid with Alex Gordon at the organ will present special music.

Grand Ends

— That the YMCA's volunteer leadership "has been allowed to dissipate over the years."

— That the Y has "not made a real effort to determine unmet community needs . . . that no other Belleville agency or institution is attempting to meet."

— That the Y's debt position has created a lack of confidence.

That meetings between the executives of the Y and UCS "have apparently failed to convince the YMCA board of our UCS proposal regarding the aims and direction of the YMCA."

Mr. Bruce Beckford, Belleville Family YMCA received a grant of $5,000 from United Community Services, an amount that was about 20 percent of all grants given by the United Group during the year.

No decision has been made on the sum to be given to the agency for its 1973 operations. However, Alderman Robin has advised the Y a decision on the size of its grant will be made on Dec. 15.

The YMCA has been criticized heavily over the last few years, this peaking in 1970 when the agency underwent attack from the Belleville Citizens for Belleville Committee.

In 1970, the Y announced a 23 point action plan that stated the Y would determine the extent to which its programs could complement others in the area. The plan also stated the agency's intention to gauge social needs of the young and determine how these needs could be met.

Members of the UCS executive indicate they believe the terms of the Action Plan were not met.

The YMCA is the second agency dropped by UCS. Two years ago the Boy Scouts of Canada was also dropped the list of member agencies because UCS contended too much of their financial resources were being handled at the national rather than local level.

Teachers Unite Against Report

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

BLOOMFIELD — Prince Edward County teacher reaction to the Belleville report containing 22 recommendations for salary negotiations and arbitration was heard in Monday at Pinecrest Memorial school, Bloomfield where a five - member panel led discussion.

James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox, participated in the meeting organized by local branches of the Ontario Teachers' Federation.

The Reville Report, written by judge R. W. Revile and initiated by the ministry of education was prepared over a two-year period and last night evoked comment from county teachers who feel it shows bias against them in certain recommendations.

Mr. Taylor told teachers he has followed the report's progress from its beginning and has met twice with the secretary and research director of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation to learn his first impressions of it. The MPP said he realized the report would spark several contentious issues since "a minority report is incorporated in the report."

He said never before have teachers been so united as in their views regarding this two-year study and attributed this unison to leadership.

Mr. Taylor observed there has been today "a common thread" in all teacher presentations involving the report.

He said its major issues seem to centre on the question of whether there is more than one bargaining table and if there is one or more, then what is placed on it to bargain for.

He also referred to the suggested province - wide concept of a tribunal which would arbitrate on a provincial basis.

Mr. Taylor said more than one table and one are placed on a bargaining table, since other considerations such as teachers' load and extra-curricular involvement through the teaching profession also must be reviewed. He stressed the need for flexibility.

The MPP said he favors free enterprise and free dealings between parties and for this reason supports negotiations of a board with its teachers.

"A "tit for tat" policy should be implemented when the question of assistance in negotiations is raised.

Mr. Taylor suggested it is unfair for trustees to be permitted to bring in experts of their choice while teachers are unable to do likewise.

He did not endorse the concept of a tribunal as "bigness for the sake of a common scheme" and observed areas with rural or urban characteristics possibly could benefit most from individual consideration.

Mr. Taylor termed a strike as "obsolete today" and said he was not opposed to binding arbitration since it provides negotiations with "some finality."

Mr. Taylor referred to the tribunal, noting the same type of collective bargaining evidenced in industry should supply.

The MPP assurred teachers he had attended the meeting to learn their points of view and to present them to the government. He recalled that in the preface of the Reville Report education minister Thomas Wells ata ed no legislation would be introduced before the viewpoints of all were heard and considered.

The 25 points of the Reville Report were read separately and teachers were invited to comment on each. The Ontario Teachers' Federation has prepared a submission in reply to the report during the past six weeks and this brief was read as well.

Teachers generally balked at a recommendation of the Reville Report stating that where parties agree by mutual consent, negotiations may be conducted on a regional basis. One teacher termed regional negotiations "a violation of local school board autonomy." and said the local board elsewhere should fulfil its obligations or forfeit its "local autonomy."

James Taylor agreed that by bargaining over a large area "you lose a lot of good things" since characteristics of the rural and urban areas cannot be fully considered.

James Bird, reeve of Picton and an elementary school teacher, said regional negotiations prevent a disturbing picture t politicians since county school boards are relatively new and deserve a better chance to prove their improved working abilities in such areas.

Teachers also resisted a recommendation providing a separate negotiating entity for principals in a local jurisdiction through a majority vote.

Arthur Jackson, principal of Southworth school, said principals should bargain with teachers, since they are teaching too.

Another teacher noted, "Every principal considers himself primarily a teacher. He added principals should remain with the negotiating team, and predicted "a dangerous situation" if they were to negotiate separately.

Other views on this question included a potential for poor staff relations and a feel ing of "defensive-ness" in the teachers' part. It was observed it is unfair to make such suggestions of vulnerability by bringing principals into a clearly defined relationship on the side of the teachers.

Teachers fought a recommendation stating only trustees should be permitted to seek expert assistance from sources of their choice during negotiations if desired.

Teachers were not granted a similar privilege by the recommendation.

James Taylor stressed teachers should not be placed at this disadvantage and said both trustees and teachers should be allowed expert help.

Jeremy Vincent, chairman of the panel, who joined in discussion at the report, read comments by Dr. Donald Fellner, general secretary of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, since he considered them relevent to the general attitude of teachers toward the report.

Dr. Felker, in a Toronto newspaper, stated, "This month history is reversing itself. All of the reactions published so far to the recent Reville report on teacher-board negotiations indicate that teachers across Ontario may be united as never before in a belief that the document would make bad legislation."

In his comments Dr. Felker referred to "an overanticipative bias expressed within the text of the report."

The panel leading discussion of the report Monday, included Miss Rebecca Rolston, president of the Federation of Women Teachers Association of Ontario, George Frederick, president of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation, Gerry Pounds, a member of the OSSTF and district 19 professional development chairman, Jeremy Vincent and James Taylor. Teachers from each municipal Prince Edward attended the meeting.

Park Betterment Russell's Aim

Further parks acreage acquisition with a continued program of parks development are the election planks of Alderman Paul Russell, chairman of the city parks board, who is offering himself for re-election.

"If re-elected I intend to pursue this avenue so that greater development can be achieved," he said.

Alderman Russell has served on council for the past five years and during that period has been a member of both the recreation committee and the parks board.

For the past three years he has served as chairman of the parks board.

Under his chairmanship, the board has acquired considerable parklands, notably the 33 acres on the west bank of the Moira River now being developed as a park site. Also was verted as parkland is the East Hill Playground, which was obtained from the Hastings County Board of Education.

This acquisition and development of parkland has been achieved in a most economical way, according to Alderman Russell.

Clean Food

VANCOUVER (CP) — The city is raising health standards in restaurants. Beginning in January, restaurant owners and managers will have to undergo examinations proving a knowledge of proper food-handling techniques before receiving a health department permit to stay in business. "We always had control over buildings and equipment, but this will give us control over people for the first time," city health inspector Dave Morgan said.

It has been done through co-operation with the board of education, with service clubs, the Moira River Conservation Authority, the Province of Ontario and the government of Canada.

Parks adjacent to school sites are being developed jointly with the board of education.

Alderman Russell also believes that top priority should be given to the servicing of industrial land as he feels that Belleville may have lost industry because of this lack.

In all, Ald. Russell wants a planned and orderly growth so that Belleville will be "a place to work — a place to play" not only for present residents but for their children.

City ANAF Duffers Hosts to Province

By A. S. HOBBS

At the Provincial Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans quarterly meeting the Duke of Edinburgh Unit was successful in obtaining the Provincial Golf Tournament for 1973. A tentative date in the second week in September was mentioned. To be eligible members must be perfect playing with the Unit team for at least three months.

At the same meeting it was announced that further information about purchasing his term membership a few weeks ago in the News is being gathered before a definite plan of action is decided upon.

Past Dominion President Jack Lundbert and President Hank Ford were invited by DSD Principal Joseph Pimenza to attend the school's Remembrance Day Service. The pupils acted the parts of all dignitaries and personnel connected with the Cenotaph Service but it was all accomplished in perfect silence. Most of the older children can read their instructions, and prayers and speeches were flashed on a screen.

They went through the ceremony without a mistake and with sincerity in what they were doing was very noticeable. Both the presidents are sure that these handicapped children fully realize and understand the true significance and meaning of the Service than most of the other schoolchildren in Belleville. Cde. Jack both congratulated and thanked the children through the principal. He remarked that it was something that would long remain in his memory as outstanding of all the many Services he has attended.

Last Wednesday President Hank Ford and sponsoring Chairman Stan Melbourne were presented with the Jim Brown Memorial Shield — Highest Rated Sponsoring Committee Award for Ontario. The Duke of Edinburgh Unit has both financially supported and helped in other ways the Belleville 608 Squadron, Royal Canadian Air Cadets the past four years.

On Wednesday there will be a presentation parade and all members are invited to attend and encourage the lads by showing your interest in their parading and duties. After the parade the Squadron has been invited to attend a reception in the Tartan Lounge.

Tickets will be on sale this week for the Annual New Year's Eve Ball. The tickets will admit one couple and are $10 each. There will be no tickets reserved and, as there are only 50 available, they will be sold on a first come, first - served basis.

The recent unmentionable weather seems to have had its effect on the sick list which is as follows: J. Carr, 407; G. Booth, 634; H. Denis, 506; W. McKenna, 613; H. Campbell, 708; J. H. Jones, 629 and G. Burns, 101, care, all in the Belleville General Hospital, Cde. P. Stalkovich is in the Kingston General Hospital and Cde. Sp. Gnl Stan is waiting in the E. Thoughts on Growth

Amid all the furore in Belleville about high-rise apartment buildings it is as well to recognize not only their need, but also the fact that in most instances the people who dwell therein do so by choice.

Alderman Ben Corke spoke the other day of a woman who was delighted she had been able to find an apartment on the 14th floor of a building and she was only one of many, he said, living in what he described as some of the better apartments.

By implication, as well as fact, there are those in our midst who can afford to pay for the considerable luxury some of these apartments provide. They are professional people and they also number retired men and women who welcome the convenience and comfort that apartment buildings can provide.

Town houses and condominiums are also welcome additions to the Belleville housing scene and the only objection that we — and many fellow citizens have in these types of development lies in the apparent haphazard and expedient character of their location.

As we pointed out recently planners must take note of the specific character of a district, of the housing that occupies it, so that none of these different types of accommodation clash with each other. This is simply common sense, but it seems to have escaped those responsible for the location of the city's most recent high-rise complexes.

Growth then has its problems and Alderman Corke had some interesting observations on the subject when he addressed a joint meeting of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs. In our view the city inevitably will see further development but to what extent is occupying the minds of many just now. As former Chamber of Commerce president Frank Murray — whom Mr. Corke quoted — has said, many people have chosen to live in Belleville because it is not too big. But now, he notes, we have high-rise complexes and trees have been cut down and some of the womenfolk are afraid to go downtown at night.

The question then is how far do we travel along the path of growth? It may be we have gone far enough for the time being, for big city problems we can do without. We must strike a balance, and this is something the new Council when it is elected in December is going to have to tackle.

Olympics Hassle

There is understandable concern over the possibility of the Olympics in Montreal in 1976 being another financial liability, in the same tradition of Expo. Montreal does not have the money itself and contrary to what Mayor Drapeau has said, the event has all the hallmarks of another burden on the Canadian taxpayer. Montreal itself has many needs to which it could be directing professional talent and funds. There are too the security dangers posed in the light of what happened at Munich.

At the same time, is there a city in the world that does not have problems of one kind or another? And controversial in so many ways that the Olympics can be, doesn't this great event tend to unite the city and the country in which it is held, and to the world at large.

What if there had been no Expo, even no Olympics at Munich, wouldn't we all have been losers? Must people and nations forever hide their light under a bushel because of a depressed economy, an inadequate money supply, or slums that might remain slums anyway given the character of such areas and the people who inhabit them.

So Montreal and Canada could chicken out of the whole deal . . . but is this really what we want? Denver may have taken this course over the winter Olympics, but it seems to us that the city and the people of Colorado are the losers. Maybe all the countries participating, and not just the host country should pay their share. Why should the burden be placed on one country alone? But to get out completely in our opinion is not in the spirit of Canadianism.

Tired of Supporting Liberalism

"Silent Majority" Almost Brought Down the Government

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It hurt the Liberals to lose some of those Southern Ontario seats, it stung to take such a skinning on the Prairies, it shocked them to get that hammering in British Columbia.

But some, if not most of the losses were feared, perhaps even expected, as the campaign drew to its incredible standoff close.

What really shook up the Liberals was their disaster in Eastern Ontario, its 10 constituencies, centred in Ottawa, were solidly Liberal.

And why not, since the government, lifgest single employer in Canada, dominated the National Capital Region as the one great single industry, like it did no other?

Here there is only the government, little more.

But the government took a licking here, losing five of those 10 seats.

Why?

A recent survey confirms the conviction of Urban Affairs Minister Basford that it was due to what he calls a backlash in "Middle Canada".

And if there is any place in the whole land that is "Middle Canada", it has to be the National Capital area, populated almost entirely by well - paid civil servants, housewives and thousands of "Mr. Ottawas."

Do not listen to the defeated - Liberal MPs who have been crying that they took their lumps because of an Expo hit and what the Quebec cabinet ministers themselves in Liberal - now-famed campaign TV film called "French Power" in Ottawa.

It was backlash, sure enough.

But it involved a whole lot more than the language thing.

It was, as beaten Labor Minister O'Connell put it, Ontario's small 'c' conservatism," and as Ron Basford saw it, "Middle Canada" reacting.

It was "Mr. Ottawa" — and he has his counterparts by the tens of thousands all across the country — reacting in the polling booth, according to the findings of the survey, to what small - "I" Trudeau liberalism was doing to his life.

All about him he detects the sights and sounds of trouble and dissent. He feels pressured. His values are ridiculed. He is the object of envy and attack by numberless militant minorities.

He has worked all his life, obeyed the law, cared for his family and respected the rights of his neighbors.

Now not even his home is impregnable, no longer his castle.

The barbarians are at his gates and he knows his plight is ignored by those in positions of political power because while he may be the silent majority, he is unorganized and safely can be forgotten by the politicians.

So he is voiceless, even helpless, silent in the suspicion that to cry out would make him even more the target by dissenters, and in the fear that his own protest might, in some vague way, irritate someone in a position to do him damage.

A typical "Mr. Ottawa," one of several interviewed in the course of the survey, has been widely quoted as saying:

"I feel like a milk cow for the Revenue Department; whenever the government needs money, it brings out the budget support all those hairy animals who run around screaming about their rights, including the right to loaf unless they can be given suitably pleasant and attractive jobs.

"And the government has given them the right to vote precisely when the taxpayers demurr.

"Work is no longer respected, even the Prime Minister says there is no obligation to work when there is the perfectly acceptable alternative of living on welfare and unemployment insurance.

"Achievement is in disrespect. Common decency is at a discount. Traditional standards and values are ridiculed.

The animals want a free ride and the wider the better.

"The government, as a freedom kick seems to think that anything goes, that anyone who feels so inclined has the right to anything they want and at my expense.

"But what about me and my rights?

"If some militant minority wants to be heard, then let it speak — but if I do not care to listen, that is my right — and if they threaten, browbeat and even blackmail their legislators to make them knuckle under, then I want a new government.

"We have been plagued by all sorts of special privilege groups that have been making life more costly and miserable for the rest of us."

And that is what happened election day. The harried, harassed silent majority, paying for all the small 'l' liberal nonsense and too unorganized and perhaps intimidated to do anything about it, found its voice in the polling booth.

That is what was going on in those last 10 days or so when everything had to calm it made the government nervous as it is what was described as that "eerie" quiet the silent majority was making up its mind to be heard.

"Mommy — have you heard? Peace is at hand! . . . Mommy . . ?"

Tri-Level Government Parley Closed To Public

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

Surely this must be one of the most ridiculous happenings in our Canadian political history.

We had here in Toronto this week the first tri-level conference of federal, provincial and municipal governments.

And the conference was in camera—its doors were closed. It was insulting.

Most of the 300 or so people behind the doors were the representatives of you and me. We elected them. In a sense they were, or should have been our presence at this conference, which in the purest sense was a meeting of the citizens of Canada.

By barring us they were saying: "All right you have elected us, now scram."

Or inferring that we didn't have the intelligence to grasp and fairly assess their debates.

It also was an indication of ignorance of communication. It was overlooking the fact that if there was to be any good understanding of whatever the conference accomplished, then the public should know why and how any decisions had been reached.

It was silly in that any meeting attended by 300 people, there can't be any lasting privacy. What does happen is that whatever occurred finally comes out in various distorted versions.

It made our elected representatives appear as people of fear.

It surrounded the whole conference with public suspicion and added to the unhealthy cynicism which the public tends to hold against attempts towards politicians.

And finally it set an extremely bad example and was horrifyingly smug.

Above all, this conference pointed up, perhaps more clearly than anything to date, just how amateurish politically we are in Canada.

Mayor Desmond Newman of Whitby, president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, when asked a some weeks ago about the closing of the conference, reportedly said that some people had said they wouldn't attend if the sessions were in public.

They would take home their hat and ball if they couldn't set the rules.

Those of us who are cause to politics but still onlookers know just how immature and unsophisticated our politics and public affairs can be.

With this particular kind of performance one has to wonder if they will ever grow up.

The Medical Profession Takes A Hard Look at Itself

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

There is a doctor in a community in Ontario who controls a health clinic, a laboratory and a drug store.

On Nov. 21, 22 or 23, a recommendation of its council will go before the council of the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons.

It will propose that doctors engaged in diagnosis and treatment should not have any outside interests in their profession which give a financial return unless it is shown that is necessary in the public interest.

If this is accepted, and it is expected that it will be, our doctor will have to rid himself of his laboratory and his drug store unless he can show that without them the community would not have lab or drug facilities.

And other doctors throughout the province who have ownerships in labs and other medical facilities will be on the same spot.

These outside holdings will be considered a conflict of interest and taboo.

This excellent action by the College is just one of a number of steps either taken or contemplated by doctors, organizations and by governments to tighten up the medical profession and incidentally restore full public confidence in it.

The profession as you know, as we all know, has come up with some egg on its face in recent years.

The stethoscope, and at times apparently pig-headed resistance by its leadership to public health insurance lost it some respect.

At the same time the profession has been affluent, and in some cases ostentatious.

And then there have been reports of apparent greed where doctors have been splitting fees or, and even more objectionable, having interests in labs where they have been making money out of tests they themselves order and which, of course, are paid for by the public through health insurance.

This has meant a tapping image for the entire profession, and many people in it have been embarrassed.

Government also has had its concerns about the escalation of its fees and no person in public life thereby giving the profession a nudge.

With the consequence of this all being that there is a three-direction effort afoot, though this is not entirely its objective, but naturally should mean a new, improved public image for the profession.

The College of Physicians and Surgeons, the ruling body of medicine, has taken a stiffer position.

The proposal for the conflict regulation is one indication of this.

It also is reflected in the College's discipline committee which has been showing a tougher attitude.

The efforts of government are not directed at the profession, of course, but in the end they also should help to improve it.

The first problem government has had has been "out of doctors who oversee OHIP. They spend their patients for a whole pannel of tests, many of which would not be necessary with more time by the doctor on diagnosis.

Then there are the outright forensics: doctors who bill the government health plan for services not rendered. On occasion some doctors go into a tandem-tomy and bill for the higher fee.

It is assumed, if only by the nature of the profession, that the number of doctors in this category is very small. It is taken for granted that crooks among doctors are rare.

But there are some. And as of now nobody knows really how many there might be.

For inside there has been no efficient way of either detecting them, or controlling them.

There has been some spot checking. And it has turned up cases of apparent abuse. One doctor, for example, had billed for more than 300 patient visits a day.

(A suspension was ordered by the discipline committee of the College and this is now being appealed.)

But with nearly 10,000 doctors practicing in the province obviously no spot check system could be really effective.

Now an intricate computer system is being installed for OHIP. It will keep a record of all doctors and all treatment. And when there is a discrepancy, or extraordinary it will flash a signal.

And it is expected that even the knowledge that the system is in there will deter false billing and will make test-prone doctors have second thoughts.

There still will remain the problem of the doctor who suppresses the existence of the treatment he is giving.

There has been one attempt to meet this. But it didn't work.

This was a program under which some 100,000 accounts a month were picked at random and sent to therapists for verification.

There were practically no replies.

And beyond it there still isn't any good answer.

One suggestion has been that patients be required to sign forms—a decision of the doctors office on each call.

Health minister Dr. Richard Potter has somewhat favored this but advisers have convinced him it would be unwieldy.

And yet of now this problem is still unsolved. There are those, however, who believe that the computer which will have both records of practice and hospital records will shed up any doctor who consistently tries chicanery.

The third, and the most positive, effort in image-building comes from the Medical Association, the professional organization of the doctors.

The OMA sets the standards and has led the fight against extreme out-of-control insurance. This has meant it has tended to be suspect by the public.

But it has come up with the most imaginative move of all.

It has undertaken an inquiry into itself — that is into the medical profession.

A committee of 11 prominent civilians is conducting this inquiry, and all proceeds behind public hearings throughout Ontario.

It is not at all in keeping with the image we have had of the medical profession for it to invite criticism of itself in public.

And the fact it has had the initiative, courage and boldness to establish this inquiry, in itself should win it back considerable public faith.

Most of the employees whose time sheets were altered during the two years Sekulich worked for the hospital did not understand English well.

OK Abortions

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The state Supreme Court has removed almost all restrictions concerning abortions in California, leaving the matter strictly between a woman and her doctor.

Wednesday in Richmond municipal court for four bikers charged in the case. Four others also charged in the case are still at large.

Pifer, whose vocal chords have been removed, says he may have just six months to live because of throat cancer and demanded immunity before testifying. "Because of the time left, I want on the streets."

Pifer said that in the spring of 1971 the two bikers from Georgia, Thomas (Big Tom) Shull, 24, and his companion, Charlie Baker, 30, were invited guests at the Richmond Hell's Angels clubhouse where Pifer was a member.

Pifer said the Angels snuffed cocaine and Shull's coffee and Baker's beer were spiked with LSD. Pifer said Shull became violent when someone pretended to him that Baker was a drug agent.

He said that Shull finally was subdued after prolonged beating and was hog-tied and taken to a bedroom where Pifer said he found him 10 minutes later, dead.

Then, he said, it was decided that Baker had to die too because he had witnessed what had happened to Shull. Pifer said William John Moran, 38, ordered him to kill Baker, but that he refused, and Moran himself then tried to strangle Baker first with his hands, then his belt, and finally succeeded with a rope.

Quebec Doctors Fear Privacy Will Vanish

MONTREAL (CP) — Patients will risk seeing their lives "displayed in front of an ever-increasing number of people" if Quebec passes the proposed Public Health Protection Act, the Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons charged Wednesday.

The bill, currently in second reading in the legislature, requires doctors to report to the government the names and addresses of all patients who have certain diseases.

The law will also make certain treatments and vaccinations compulsory for patients who have diseases listed by the government.

The government has not yet listed the diseases.

Putting medical problems such as heart disease, epilepsy, diabetes and alcoholism on public record would have "serious implications" for citizens seeking employment, credit cards, or insurance, Dr. Yves Leboeuf, college spokesman, said at a news conference.

The college wants the power to draw up the list of diseases. And to ensure confidentiality and protect professional secrecy, they also want a specific person—a physician named by law and bound to secrecy—to receive the data given out by doctors.

The doctors said certain contagious diseases such as venereal disease and tuberculosis must be reported to ensure public health safety but statistical data on the incidence and distribution of these diseases to allow better health care planning can be obtained through the health insurance board.

"Statistics can be gathered this way but it is not necessary to report names and addresses," Dr. Leboeuf said.

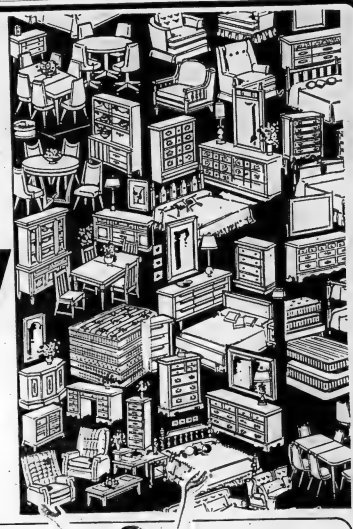
Postal Injunction Hearing Adjourned

TORONTO (CP) — An application for a permanent injunction requiring postal employes in the Metropolitan Toronto area to stay on the job was adjourned indefinitely Wednesday by Mr. Justice Lawrence Pennell.

Norman Chalmers, appearing for the attorney-general of Canada, told Mr. Justice Pennell he had agreed with representatives for the Council of Postal Unions to adjourn the application on the understanding that either side may bring it before the court on three hours' notice.

An interim injunction was issued Nov. 18 by Mr. Justice Dalton Wells directing striking mail-truck drivers and all other Metro postal workers to return to work.

The drivers, who became members of the Letter Carriers Union when the post office took over trucking operations from a private contractor last February, had staged a series of wildcat strikes, hampering mail deliveries in Metro.



Conciliation talks between treasury board officials and union representatives are continuing in Ottawa with wages and job security among the major issues.

Foster Father Shares

By DORIS CLARK

I remember distinctly when we received our first two toddlers on an emergency basis.

When bedtime arrived and we changed them, they began to scream as though we were preparing them for torture. I sat by the bed trying to soothe them and talking very softly, while rubbing their backs gently.

They appeared to settle. I left the room, light on, and went downstairs. My four-year-old son remarked, "They sure are scared, Daddy."

The crying began again and I then decided we had better bring them downstairs and see if we could comfort them. A thought occurred — why not ask my son if he would go and talk to the brother and sister — tell them they were safe here and that his Mummy and Daddy would not leave them, they would be here all night.

So I asked my son if he would and explained in his terms that they were very frightened. He said sure and all three feet of him proceeded on a journey to cope with an emotional trauma that adults at this time could not handle effectively.

I followed upstairs, stood outside the room and listened.

"Shhh, don't cry. My Mommy and Daddy go away and they'll be here. Do you want my teddy? Now go to sleep." They did!

Needless to say, he was their primary therapist from then on. — "A Foster Father Shares Professional Secrets" Ontario C.S.S. Journal.

Dear Doris: I would like to have a copy of the poem "If You Think You Can".

I never miss your column and always get something of value from it. I am going through a bad time right now, and feel very defeated and inadequate, as my husband of 30 years is leaving for a more exciting life, now that the three children are grown up and married.

He has purchased a motorcycle and is out nightly. I know I should get back to work, but have not been able to get the incentive, so the poem may just help me to get going. — Needing Encouragement.

Dear Needing: My guess is your husband sees youth slipping away; is making his own kind of protest about not being as young as he used to be — by trying to prove that he is! If he survives his fling, he may take another look at this lifelong companion of his — you.

The poem will help. So will anything that reminds you that you are an important and have done a big and largely unheralded job in raising your family; that you have learned much that is precious.

Take on a new interest outside of your home and make a job of bringing yourself up to date about this changing, fascinating new world we live in.

Then you'll be ready-ing yourself to complete the next task — that of raising your thrill-chasing boy husband to a wise, mature person over a half-century old.

Dear Doris: Will you ask the readers if anyone remembers the remainder of the toast widow goes: "Let's drink a toast to the man I was Before I started to drink because — I hated the man I used to be. Now both men hate all of me." — Ina.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Is a 'meanest thief' really mean?

PERHAPS not, though it is hard to think charitably of someone who would steal from the blind, say. Yet a "meanest thief," as he is popularly called, may not be as heartless as a petty crook who's always got his hand in the till. The "meanest thief" may indeed be a perfectly respectable individual ordinarily; but on occasion he may be driven by some deprivation in his past to commit the most despicable theft he can masquerade.

Do rebel teeners anger their parents?

YES; but not always because the young people want to test everything down and begin all over again. Nor do parents get especially angry at teenagers who rebel against "the hand that feeds them." Perhaps mothers and especially fathers resent it when they see their children striking out with a sense of independence and bravado that the older folks had felt when they were teenagers, but never had the luxury of experiencing.

Can a wife become too dependent?

YES; and it doesn't matter whether she is one who stays home or is a careerist. Once a wife lets her husband do her thinking, she is permitting a little of the love between them to diminish. A wife such as this may be more concerned about "feeling secure" without experiencing the need to accept personal responsibility than she is about working for the success of her marriage.

Ann Landers
'Nudism' Indecent — According to Ann

Dear Ann Landers: That New York gynecologist is out of his gourd. Bralessness does not produce Cooper's Droop. The reason African women look that way is because of genetic factors which go back centuries.

I haven't worn a bra in seven years and I'm right up there with the best of them. My bra size is 38-D. I have also nursed children which disproves that old wives' tale that breast-feeding gives a woman a pendulous and unattractive bustline.

In Europe last summer a great many women showed up on the beaches wearing only bikini bottoms. I'll bet next summer American women will go for waist-up nudity.

I realize you are over 50 and it's impossible to teach an old dog new tricks, but I hope you'll print a letter from a young woman who feels freer, healthier, and liberated.—Big Bertha

Dear Bert: I am indeed over 50, but this is one trick I wouldn't care to learn, and age has nothing to do with it. Furthermore, if American women decide they want to go "waist-up nude" on the beaches they'd better check the city ordinances first. So far as I know it's still considered indecent exposure.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife stoled or do I have a legitimate beef?

I will say to my husband, "John, I took $5 out of your wallet for groceries." No response. Then I'll ask, "John, did you hear me?" He'll say, "Yes, I heard you." I will then inquire, "Why didn't you answer me, John?" He'll yell back, "Because you didn't ask me a direct question."

This drives me nuts. Why is it so much trouble for him to say "Yes" or "No"—or anything? I have asked him at least 200 times to please say something when I speak to him. He claims it is unnecessary to answer unless I put a question to him. What about this?—Bessie Reader

Dear Bessie: You don't mention your ages, but you sound like 11-year-olds. If John doesn't speak unless he is asked a direct question, then ask him a direct question. Example: "John (you bonehead), I took $5 out of your wallet for groceries. Is that all right?"

Dear Ann Landers: A pleasant, middle-aged couple we know have lived in the United States (Minnesota) for five years. They have made it clear that they have no intention of becoming U.S. citizens.

They are at times very anti-American and have had a great deal to say about the mistakes our government has made. Yet they earn a good living here and seem to enjoy all the benefits the U.S. has to offer.

The thing that sticks in my craw is that whenever our national anthem is played at a sports event or a public gathering, they stand and sing in loud voices, "God Save the Queen." Naturally, this draws some caustic looks, but they ignore everyone and sometimes even confuse the people around them. I came within an ace of telling them off but my wife says one of the reasons America is so great is because it allowed freedom of expression. What do you say, Ann?—Boil-Over Mad

Dear Boil-Over: I say they are a couple of clods—rude and disrespectful. And since American is a free country, for you as well as for them, you should avail yourself of some of that freedom of expression and tell them what you think.

TV Birth Control

VIENNA (AP) — American space scientist Wernher Von Braun says he is working on a television project to aid birth control programs in India. He says the television programs on such subjects as family planning would be featured in the evening hours. "I think also entertainment programs would be broadcast during this time of the day to prevent people in rural areas from going to bed too early," he said.

American Women Stingy

HOLLYWOOD (Reuter) — These days gentlemen no longer prefer blondes. It's the blondes who "keep" the gentlemen.

That is the finding of author Anita Loos whose classic tale of the flapper of the 1920s, Gentlemen Prefer Blondes, has been made into a play and a film.

"These days it's women who are keeping men," says the tiny woman who looks like a miniature version of her heroine Lorelei Lee, as played by Carol Channing in the Broadway production.

"I know many more men who are kept by women these days than I did women who were kept by men in the 20's," she said in an interview.

Aged about 80, wearing a pony tail, fringed dress, and spectacles, she goes off into peals of laughter as she recalls the saga of women's liberation this century.

"I think men being kept is a rather satisfactory situation, provided the man is a real man and is not ashamed of his situation.

"You have to be a real 110 per-cent male to take money from a woman and make her like it.

"But the trouble is that American women are very bad keepers of men. They are stingy."

Chinese Acrobats Amaze Ottawa Folk

OTTAWA (CP) — It's mostly new, all different for North Americans, this Shenyang Acrobatic Troupe of China that opened a two-month tour of North and South America Wednesday night.

Take Chao Sung-pai's bending on six brick-shaped wooden blocks. So what?

Yes, but the blocks are piled end to end on top of a stool.

The stool is balancing on a kitchen chair.

The chair is balanced atop another, and another, and another—four in all.

The legs of the bottom chair rest on four glass candlesticks.

The candlesticks are on top of a table.

The whole, teetering, 15-foot tower is built up gingingly—one piece of furniture at a time—by Chao, mostly by moving around the climbing pole handstand fashion.

Chao's routine was one—and not necessarily the most spectacular—among 16 acts performed by the company of about 60 Manchurian men, girls and boys and a 15-piece Chinese orchestra.

The opening of this first-of-a-kind tour—following visits by Chinese table-tennis players, doctors and scientists—had the National Arts Centre audience of about 2,000 laughing, cheering and applauding almost non-stop for 2½ hours. Local critics wrote rave reviews today.

In the audience for an occasion rated a major diplomatic event, as well as a show-business fight, were Governor-General Roland Michener, Prime Minister Trudeau, many of his cabinet, an army of senior bureaucrats, politicians and diplomats.

The turnout of the politically important was the biggest anyone could remember in years and at least one Chinese official was jubilant afterwards.

It was noted by collectors of significant diplomatic nuances that the governor-general, prime minister and cabinet members spent almost an hour at a meet-the-cast Chinese Embassy reception afterwards. The usual staying span for top government people at such events is a courtesy-only 15 minutes or so.

Steel, Phone Calls To Cost More in U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP/AP) — Long-distance phone calls and new buildings will cost more in the new year as a result of price increases announced by United States telephone and steel companies.

American Telephone and Telegraph Co. said Wednesday it will raise long-distance rates something less than two per cent over-all to take advantage of a new profit rate approved by the Federal Communications Commission.

The FCC Wednesday said A. T. and T. could increase its long-distance communications rates enough to get an 8.5-per-cent return on its investment. It said the company could increase its profits by another 0.5 per cent through improved productivity and efficiency.

Steel prices were raised by three more producers, following the lead of the top industry giants, U.S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel.

Revising their basic price lists upward Wednesday were Republic Steel of Cleveland, the third-largest producer; fifth-ranked Armco and Middletown, Ohio; and sixth-ranked Jones and Laughlin of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The firms said the increases apply primarily to materials used in the construction of tool and die industries.

May Allow Acupuncture

VICTORIA (CP) — Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Wednesday a bill legalizing qualified technicians to practise acupuncture "may very well be introduced" at the next session of the British Columbia legislature.

He said he will meet with the College of Physicians and Surgeons to discuss the subject. Technicians are not doctors.

His comments followed the closure Tuesday of Roger Landrick's private acupuncture practice by the Workmen's Compensation Board.

"Under no circumstances would it appear likely I could come to Langrick's defence in this situation under the current law," said Mr. Cocke. "Under the present law it would not be possible to provide medical supervision of his practice because doctors assistants have to be licensed."

He said he will meet Friday with licensing department.

Legalized Heroin Asked for Addicts

VANCOUVER (CP) — A report prepared by four prisoner-addicts and four 'outsiders" on a project financed through an Opportunities-for-Youth grant calls for legalized heroin for addicts who don't want to quit the habit.

The four addicts, prisoners of the federal penitentiary service's Matsqui institution in the Fraser Valley, were employed mid-September at $90 a week each.

They worked with four "outside" women members of an organization known as Inside-Out, a group established to assist in the rehabilitation of prisoners.

The report on the project, made public Wednesday, said that as the group talked more about addiction "we realized that heroin addiction is no different from any other kind of addiction, except that it is illegal."

It says that addiction and the criminality that often goes with it should be treated as two totally separate issues.

"One man on the project," says the report, "says at this point that he will never stop taking heroin."

"The life style is exciting for him; he likes the community of people. He likes the feeling on the drug.

"The cops-and-robbers game is a challenge, and he feels he is his own boss when he is on the street.

"For a man in this position, legalization of heroin seems to be the most logical answer."

Metro Teachers Ready to Resign

TORONTO (CP) — Separate school teachers in Metropolitan Toronto voted Wednesday night to submit their resignations to their negotiating committee as a bargaining weapon in their wage negotiations.

By a vote of 1,202 to 580, the teachers agreed to hand in their resignations, effective Jan. 1, in response to the separate school board's latest wage offer.

But Ronald Doyle, chairman of the negotiating committee, said the resignations will not necessarily be passed on to the board.

"The reason for the resignations is simply to tell the board that the teachers are prepared to resign and that we have the resignations," he said. "It will be a tool for negotiating."

In any event, he added, resignations would not be given to the board unless they were received from 75 to 85 per cent of the teachers.

Hospital Budget Limit Soon Set

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Hospital boards in Ontario will find out shortly how large an increase the provincial government will permit in their 1973 operating budgets, Health Minister Richard Potter said Wednesday.

Dr. Potter, here to open a hospital addition, said that on hospital officials asked for eight-per-cent increase in their budgets several months ago he told them they should start planning on the basis that they may get no increase.

In recent years, the provincial government has set ceilings on a percentage basis for increases in hospital operating budgets.

Dr. Potter declined to be more specific about this year's spending ceilings, but said in an interview hospital administrators will be receiving letters from his department "within a day or two."

In Brockville, Ont., the city's two hospitals were told Wednesday by Dr. Potter that they will have to operate without incurring any additional costs next year.

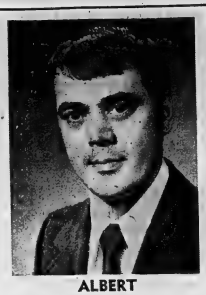
In a letter to the boards of Brockville General and St. Vincent de Paul hospitals, Dr. Potter said limited grants for construction will be available and will be confined to completion of work now under way. Some reductions would be required in the total volume of in-patient services.

Safe As Houses

AMESBURY, England (CP) — Gladys Holloway isn't taking any chances despite a hefty win on the pools. She won £23,000 (about $57,800) but with soaring house prices she plans to stay on in her £3-a-week caravan in Wiltshire rather than risk losing her place on the waiting list for council-owned bungalows.

Leak of Confidential Crime News Alleged

TORONTO (CP) — The 25-member Criminal Intelligence Service of Ontario (CISO), composed of police chiefs of major cities in the province, met in private Wednesday to consider a report on allegations that confidential information on organized crime had been leaked from its files.



Judge Thomas Graham of the Ontario Police Commission said the talks would continue today and that no final decisions were expected until next Tuesday or Wednesday.

The report was submitted by RCMP, provincial police and Metropolitan Toronto police investigators called in by CISO to look into allegations that confidential information had been made available to unauthorized persons.

Judge Graham said the chiefs had decided not to release any information on the report or their deliberations at least until they reach a decision on its findings.
